"It is valueless to a woman to be young unless pretty, or pretty unless young."—La Rochefoucauld.

An all fresco wedding in the city was a novel and pretty event Wednesday evening, when the union of Miss Maude R. Fletcher, a sister of the bride, was consummated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Fletcher, 1022 Twenty-sixth avenue N. A bower was arranged on the spacious lawn and oriental rugs carpeted the grass. White ribbons were stretched forming an aisle, by little Violet and Donald Fletcher. The professional was the Loveland-grin bridal chorus, played by Mrs. C. P. Cleator, and the service was read by Rev. Mr. Waterman. There were about seventy-five guests.

The bride wore white Paris muslin over white silk and carried pink sweet peas. The bridal attendants were all relatives, the maid of honor, Miss Ruby Fletcher, being a sister of the bride, and the two bridesmaids, the Misses Lyon, being twin sisters of the bridegroom, who had his brother for his best man. Little Olive Fletcher carried the ring in a basket of flowers.

After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Lyon will be at home on the East Side.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Ulmer announce the engagement of their daughter, Mabel, to W. T. Warren of St. Paul. The wedding will take place in the early fall.

The marriage of William Edgar Emery of Minneapolis to Miss Margaret Stanhope Page, daughter of Mr. Mattie Given Page of St. Louis, is announced for Wednesday evening, Aug. 27, at 8 o'clock, at the family home, 4050 Morgan street. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Mr. Emery and they will be at home after Aug. 15 at 77 Spruce place.

In the St. John's Lutheran church at 5 o'clock last Sunday, Miss Camilla Stoltenberg of Granite Falls, Minn., and DeWitt C. Hackett of Chisholm, Minn., were married by Rev. Mr. Hackett.

"LAST MAN'S BANQUET"

A Dozen Survivors of Odd Organization Will Meet Tonight.

The members of the "Last Man's Banquet" will gather round the festive board tonight at Stillwater. There will be about a dozen present.

This strange organization was formed shortly after the civil war, near all the members being Stillwater residents. They all signed their names on the label of a bottle of champagne, agreeing that they should meet annually, and each year the names of those who had died should solemnly be erased, till finally the last meeting should take place when but one survivor answered the call for the "Last Man's Banquet."

And to him is left the honor of then opening the bottle and draining its contents in a silent, lonely toast to those who have answered the call of the fatal march of years.

Tonight the banqueters meet at the Sawyer house between 8 and 9. The bottle of champagne, the joint property of the club, will be broken and the cork in the vault of the First National bank and be given a place of honor at the banquet table.

TOOK THE LAST TRAIN

Policemen Enjoyed a Long Day at the Lake.

Minneapolis policemen with their families and friends took a day off yesterday and held their annual picnic at Minnetonka, while the city was put on their good behavior. There was a program of games and sports in the forenoon, and in the afternoon the detectives met the uniformed men in a ball game. The slouches won by a score of 11 to 8.

In the afternoon Mayor Jones addressed the officers, thanking them for their faithfulness in cleaning up the city. In the evening the crowd gathered in the pavilion for dancing. The larger part of the crowd came into the city on the last train.

SOCIAL LEADERS OF THE WORLD

The Federation Bulletin has gathered together and published an interesting symposium of the views of a number of prominent men and women in contrast to the strictures of Grover Cleveland. They are the careful judgment of men who have had opportunities to become familiar with the work of the clubs, their co-operation, and their opinions ought to weigh as heavily at least as those of some of the critics who confess to no actual experience with the work of the clubs and club women. Here is what some of them say:

James B. Angell, President of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor: "The women's clubs of Michigan have been very useful in promoting the culture and friendship of educated women and also in raising funds for the establishment of following in this university. We regard ourselves as under great obligations to them. They also discuss with great intelligence the problems of public education in this university. Clint Rogers Woodruff, Secretary National Municipal League—One of the striking characteristics of women's organizations in this country has been their passion for local improvement. Moreover, I have long been convinced that women's clubs have an important function to perform in the creation of public opinion and that they are performing it in a most acceptable manner. That club life with women is liable to abuse like club life with men has never seemed to me either an effective or a fair argument against them. We do not judge the Christian church by the few men and women who use it as a cloak for their iniquities. No more should we judge women's clubs by those who use them as cloaks for mere ambition, or as a means of avoiding the domestic or marital duties."

Ben B. Lindsey, Judge of Juvenile Court, Denver—For the last five years I have been actively engaged in the interest of better laws for the protection of the home and the children. In this behalf I have visited some twenty states. I have found in that time wonderful progress, and scarcely without exception it has been the members of the women's clubs who have championed every good law and secured the passage of nearly all the advanced legislation upon the statute books for the protection of the home and the children. I do not know of any other society which is more philanthropic in its purposes than are the women's clubs. Mr. Cleveland's criticism, though justifiable, would practically limit the activity of women to their own homes. Of course the individual home comes first in importance. No one has advocated this more than the women's clubs, but they are unselfish and Christian enough to appreciate that they owe a duty to society, and to other homes. They realize that to a certain extent all children are their children. Most members of women's clubs have already reared a family and some of the most active are, without sacrificing the duty they owe to their own homes, able to do much toward advancing every movement intended for the betterment of the homes of all the people. I am sure the ex-president has spoken without that due deliberation which so generally characterizes his utterances. Of course, he is sincere in his own championship of the home, but he cannot be well posted in the fight which is being waged so successfully in many of the states, unless he credits the results largely to the influence of good women who are members of women's clubs, who have worked unceasingly for others without neglect of their own homes. There may be exceptional cases of neglect of the home for club work, but this is not a more justifiable justification of the women's clubs than a similar condition in churches would prove them a menace to virtue."

CLUBS AND CHARITIES DRAWN FROM EXPERIENCE

Educators and Reformers Defend Their Co-Workers in Women's Clubs.

PROMOTING CIVIC BEAUTY Clubs Requested to Give One Program to Outdoor Art.

In a recent circular issued by the American Civic association this request was made of women's clubs: "We ask all women's clubs to devote at least one program during the year to some phase of outdoor art; to study what they may do to make the surrounding amid which they live more orderly and more beautiful; to accompany the usual study of art indoors with the practical application of art out of doors; to take one school ground and make a picture painted with grass for a canvas and trees and shrubs and flowers for the composition. The children who are surrounded by such influences will grow to love trees and flowers and beautiful surroundings, and when they grow up will insist on having homes that are neat, bright with pictures and flowers and set in a framework of green. Any exercise which tends to develop a finer perception of beauty or a more discriminating taste has industrial value."

FOR IMPROVED HOMES

Woman's Council of Duluth Shows Its Faith by Its Works.

Through the efforts of the Woman's council of Duluth, encouraged by the agitation of the educational work done by the domestic science committee of the state federation, a domestic science department was introduced into the state normal school of Duluth. The council exercises a motherly interest in and care for this department.

This summer, to emphasize still farther in a practical way its interest in domestic education, the council has arranged to maintain a two months' term in domestic science for 100 young girls. The work began last week in the Adams school building, under the instruction of Mrs. Hugh McCurdy of Chicago. The ages of the pupils range from 11 to 15 years.
