

CITY NEWS

THE WEATHER

The Predictions. Minnesota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; light frost with cooler in south-ern portion; fresh northeast winds, becoming variable. Upper Michigan—Fair tonight and Tuesday; light frost in interior tonight; warmer Tuesday; fresh northeast winds, becoming variable. Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler tonight, with light frost in low-lying sections; fresh north to northeast winds. Iowa and Montana—Fair tonight and Tuesday; light frost in low-lying sections; fresh north to northeast winds. South Dakota—Local rains tonight and Tuesday; with warmer in central and west portions; variable winds. Since Saturday, local rains have occurred in the middle Rocky mountain region, in the states of the Missouri and middle Mississippi valleys, and in the middle Atlantic and New England states. Temperature changes have been slight, except from Lake Superior, where the Dakotas, where they have been a twenty-four hour fall of about 10 degrees. At Bismarck and Devils Lake, N. D., the minimum temperature this morning was 29 degrees.

Fair and cool weather is indicated for the upper lakes and the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys during the next thirty-six hours, and conditions will be favorable for light frost tonight in exposed and low-lying districts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, upper Michigan and northwestern lower Michigan.

Weather Conditions. There has been a fall of temperature in the Dakotas and Minnesota and thence northward, the greatest twenty-four hour temperature falls being 18 degrees at Fort Arthur, 14 degrees at Bismarck and 12 degrees at Moorhead. The lowest 7 a. m. temperatures were 40 degrees at Bismarck and Minnecosia, and 48 degrees at Devils Lake. The following minimum temperatures are reported: 46 degrees at Crookston, Minn., 48 degrees at Moorhead, Minn., 45 degrees at Amana, N. D., 44 degrees at Bismarck and Devils Lake, N. D., 41 degrees at Larimore, N. D., 40 degrees at Lisbon, N. D., and 36 degrees at Pembina, N. D. Rains have fallen during the past twenty-four hours along much of the Atlantic coast, and New England and the lower lake region, parts of northern Minnesota, South Dakota and scattered points in the southwest; Northfield, Vt., reports 2.24 inches of rain.

Weather Now and Then. Today, maximum 68, minimum 55, minimum 61 degrees.

AROUND THE TOWN

Sheriff Dreger Leaves Town—Sheriff J. W. Dreger will leave tonight for Chicago where he will meet his brother, H. He will be gone several days.

Rate Clerks in Session—Rate clerks of northwestern lines are holding a summer meeting at the Tonka Bay hotel, Lake Minnetonka. The session is expected to last several days.

His Work is Done—Leonard Erickson, chief of the federal census bureau of manufacturing in Hennepin county, reported today that the census is complete. Mr. Erickson will leave tonight for Washington, D. C.

Delays Are Costly—All liquor dealers who neglected to pay up their special taxes to the city of Minneapolis will wake up tomorrow and find that an additional levy of 12 1/2 per cent will be in force.

Tells of Husband's Record—Minnie Hobbs has begun suit for divorce from her husband on the ground of habitual drunkenness and cruelty. The wife alleges that at least twice week for the past ten years Mr. Hobbs has been drunk and that when he is in that condition he beats and abuses her.

Bridge Engineer Hurts—Joe Allmon, a bridge engineer employed on the Soo road's viaduct bridge at Camden Place, was struck by a falling timber while working this morning. He was seriously injured and taken to the city hospital. His home is at 4159 Lyndale avenue N.

Possibly Frost Tonight—Overcasts will be the worst feature of the night, but there is a high pressure barometric area and way down to the south near Little Rock, Ark. There is a low area, possibly over the Gulf of Mexico. The weather bureau predicts fair weather, but possibly light frosts.

NECROLOGIC

LEWIS B. RAYMOND—The funeral of Lewis B. Raymond was held this afternoon from the family home, 207 E. Seventeenth street. Mr. Raymond died last Friday at Chicago, from appendicitis. He was one of the survivors of the Tribune fire of 1889.

GEORGE HENRY ROBERTS, a pioneer of southern Minnesota, died last Saturday at the age of 77 years at his home, 2002 Crystal Lake avenue. He came to Minnesota from Portland, Me., in 1855, and spent the winter of 1855-56 in Winona. He lost his wife in the panic of 1857 and retired to his farm. In 1873 the family moved to Minneapolis where it has since resided. The survivors are Mrs. Roberts and two sons, Benjamin E. and George H. Roberts, Jr. The funeral was held at the home this afternoon.

GEORGE M. SKARO—The funeral of George M. Skaro, who died last Wednesday at the home of his parents, 421 Eighth and one-half street, took place from the residence Saturday afternoon. Interment was at Lakewood. The deceased is survived by his parents and three sisters, Mrs. M. D. Shutter, Mrs. A. Dahl, Mrs. Nell Munson, Mrs. McCullum, and Theodore Skaro.

MARGARET ADSEN, 18 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Adsen, died Friday evening at 7:30, at the residence, 1818 Fourteenth avenue S. Funeral Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. from residence. Interment at Layman's.

HANS P. JOHNSON—The funeral of Hans P. Johnson will take place from the residence, 1818 Fourteenth avenue S., Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., and not Monday, as previously announced.

FUNERAL OF S. H. HALL—Rev. M. D. Shutter Will Have Charge of the Obsequies.

The funeral of S. H. Hall will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday from the home, 91 Ridgewood avenue. Rev. M. D. Shutter of the Church of the Redeemer will have charge, and in addition to the address remarks will be made by several friends of the deceased. The honorary bearers will be David F. Jones, W. S. McLain, J. F. Conklin, Dr. C. M. Jordan, E. J. Salisbury, W. H. Eastus, E. S. Phelps, S. G. Palmer. The active bearers: Judge F. C. Brooks, E. C. Best, J. S. Gregg, E. F. Smith, C. W. Gardner, J. C. Sammons, W. H. Wright, and J. M. Ellis of Chicago. The burial will be at Lakewood.

The Great Northern will raise the locomotive numbered in the Kootenai river last April near Idaho, in a landslide. It is hoped that the body of English will be recovered. The engine weighed 257,000 pounds and is worth about $18,000.

SAVED THE LIVES OF NINE PERSONS

HEROIC WOMAN COURAGEOUS IN EXCELSIOR FIRE.

Aroused Occupants of the Prairifer Block When a Few Minutes' Delay Would Have Meant Death to the Sleepers—Minneapolis Fire Department Called on for Help.

Presence of mind and courage on the part of Mrs. G. N. M. Segerstrom saved the lives of nine people sleeping in the Prairifer block which was destroyed early by fire this morning in Excelsior, Lake Minnesota. The fire broke out at 1:30 a. m., and it was only by great effort that Mrs. Segerstrom aroused the occupants of the building. She was the first awakened by the oppressive heat and by the roar of the flames below. She at once started to leave the room, calling her husband to assist her in rousing the other sleepers. The door was burning hot, and when the door was opened by the dense smoke which poured in volumes into the room. A glimpse towards the stairway showed her that the downstairs was all aflame. As the sleeping people were roused, the second floor the rescue was easily carried out after they were once awakened.

Among the people who were in the burning building were Mr. and Mrs. Segerstrom, Mrs. Ida Darso, Mrs. Emma Hess, George Darso and three visitors from St. Paul.

Volunteer Fireman Overcome. George Prendergast, a volunteer fireman, was overcome by the heat and smoke and had a narrow escape from falling from the roof into the flames. The fire started in the rear of the Darso building, which is situated on the corner of the Odd Fellows' block, with the dry goods store of A. T. Morse on the ground floor, and the other building is occupied by the Odd Fellows' hall. The Odd Fellows' block was on fire twice, and nothing but the well-constructed firewalls of the buildings saved them from being completely gutted. Had the Odd Fellows' hall been a business district of Excelsior would have been wiped out.

Asked Help from City. As soon as the members of the volunteer fire department realized that they were unable to hold the fire, if the wind should spring up stronger, a call was sent to the Minneapolis fire department for an engine and hose carts. The train made the fastest time ever made between Minneapolis and Excelsior. By the time the apparatus arrived the flames had been checked and all that remained for the firemen to do was to prevent a possible spread from the still burning ruins. At one time the safe owned by G. Hawkins was on fire, and nothing but the greatest efforts prevented the spread. The loss to the building and contents will be $4,000. Both the Odd Fellows hall and the dry goods store of A. T. Morse were but slightly damaged and Elliott's meat market suffered but little from water.

Free Collars for Laundry Customers. Save $1 worth paid laundry slips and we give one 10c collar free. Collars 10c, cuffs 10c, shirts 10c. Underwear a specialty. Hoffman's Laundry Dept.—3 stores.

LEGACIES GO ABROAD

JOHN C. OSWALD REMEMBERED RELATIVES IN OLD COUNTRY IN MAKING IS WILL.

John C. Oswald's estate is valued at $400,000 in a petition to prove the will, filed in the probate court today. Of this, $200,000 is in real estate. This valuation is regarded by those well acquainted with the affairs of the deceased as surprisingly low.

The testator bequeathed his property to twenty-five relatives, the heirs of these live in foreign countries, mostly in Switzerland. The others live in Minneapolis. Twenty-two of the heirs will receive a total of $180,000. The bulk of the large estate is left to the three daughters of the deceased.

ABUTTING OWNERS TO PAY

JUDGE ELLIOTT HOLDS THEM RESPONSIBLE FOR PAVING ON BRIDGE APPROACHES.

Judge C. B. Elliott holds, in decisions dated July 20, that owners of property abutting on bridge approaches must pay for paving said approaches. He holds that paving is not a necessary part of maintaining and keeping in repair, which comes out of the city's general fund.

SEE TRUST'S SHADOW

Milkmen Will Organize to Combat Central Supply Bureau Scheme. The executive committee of the Minneapolis Dairymen's association will call a meeting of local milk dealers to see what may be done in the way of a campaign of education to head off all possibility of a central milk company in the city, as has recently been suggested. It is claimed that the plan for purity and freedom from germs and other reptiles that are said to exist in milk is pure pipe, and that the real object of the movement is the organization of a milk trust to control the prices paid to producers and the price that the public shall pay hereafter.

GOVERNOR TO NAME DELEGATES.

Governor J. A. Johnson today received a letter from August Belmont in New York city, asking him to appoint two Minnesota delegates to the national conference on immigration to be held in New York, Dec. 8 and 9, under the auspices of the National Civic federation. Rev. J. L. Milligan of Allegheny, Pa., general secretary of the National Civic association, has sent a letter to Governor J. A. Johnson, asking him to appoint delegates to the executive committee at Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 21-22.

WANTS 41 LOTS IN BRYN MAWR

GREAT NORTHERN BEGINS CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

Petition Filed Today Asks for Appointment of Appraisers—Company Declares It Needs the Land for Trackage and Spurs to Meet New Business and City's Growth.

The Great Northern Railway company has begun proceedings in the district court to condemn the whole or part of forty-one lots along its present right-of-way between Clearwater junction and Cedar lake, in Bryn Mawr. A petition was filed today and will be heard tomorrow before Judge D. F. Simpson.

The property sought by the railway company is a part of the estate of the late John C. Oswald, and Theophilus Basting and Henry Oswald, executors of the estate, have been served with copies of the petition and asked to appear in court to state their objections to the condemnation at tomorrow's hearing. The tract to be condemned begins a little east of Logan avenue N and extends north to the site of the present tracks a little beyond Irving avenue N. Besides the lots wanted, the company asks that parts of Logan, Knox, James and Irving avenues N be vacated.

"The Great Northern has outgrown its present yard facilities," said one of the company's officials today. Our freight business is now larger than we can handle in our present yards, and with the increase that is bound to come with the transportation business, we will need all of the new territory we are seeking to acquire. "The new land, comprising several acres, will be used for yards, spurs and other facilities that will be needed in the future, and will be in a position to meet the city's growth."

PLEADS FOR CHUM WHO 'SHOOTED' HIM

VICTIM FEARED PLAYFELLOW WOULD BE ARRESTED.

Harry Burk, Shot in the Back While He and William Fisher Were Playing, Is Brave Thru His Suffering and Wanted to Exonerate His Companion—Is at Hospital.

"Don't arrest Willie. He shot me, but he didn't mean to, and besides, I guess I shot my own back," said Harry Burk, who was accidentally shot in the back by his chum, William Fisher, this morning, to a policeman who went to investigate the matter. The two little boys were shooting at a target at the rear of Burk's home at 932 Thirteenth avenue S. As Harry ran excitedly to the target to see the result of his last shot, he accidentally dropped the revolver and was discharged, the bullet striking Harry's back. He stumbled and fell and as his chum walked away, he was followed by neighbors ran into the yard, followed by a policeman.

An examination showed that the bullet had entered near the spine. The patrol wagon was immediately summoned to take him to the city hospital. While they were waiting for the wagon, Burk pleaded with the policeman not to arrest his friend, and being satisfied that there was no accident, the officer went away.

JULY TRADES ARE CLOSED

DELIVERIES TODAY OVER A MILLION BUSHELS—OPTION MARKET IS ERATIC.

Wheat deliveries at the Chamber of Commerce today were 1,000,000 bushels, which quantity was taken over by millers principally, and paid for in cash. This being the last day of July there was much nervousness over what might be the result of the session. It passed off very quietly. July closed at $1.04 1/4. In the option market the trend of prices was very erratic and a down and back between 80 1/2 and 81 1/4 for September.

A special crop bulletin issued this morning by the Northwestern Miller, reported the discovery of black rust in the wheat fields of the Red river valley in North Dakota. The report was conservative and free from sensationalism. The views of the special correspondents of the Miller who are now covering the valley are that the wheat has chance to yield well with proper weather, but the situation is critical.

The market advanced 1 1/2 cents upon receipt of the May 1, 1905, but fell off again on big selling in Chicago. The weather observer sees light frost as a possibility for southern Minnesota tonight. Frost at this early date would be extraordinary.

TRIBUTE FROM FRIEND

Dr. Cool Takes Life of Dead Bishop for Inspiring Theme.

Taking for his text the words found in Jeremiah, xvii, 8, "As a tree planted by the waters," Rev. Dr. P. A. Cool, pastor of the First Baptist church, spoke yesterday morning on the character of the late Bishop Joyce. As a member of the conference which chose Rev. Mr. Joyce bishop at New York in 1888, and a personal friend, he was able to speak with knowledge and feeling of the life and work just ended. He said in part: "Bishop Joyce was a notable man among us. In the estimation of the public, as well as in the eyes of the church, which suffers so grievously by reason of his death, he has left an ineffaceable memory. "Among the strong men of Methodism, Bishop Warren draws his illustrations largely from the scientific world, and Bishop Joyce from history, while those of Bishop Joyce were drawn in a great measure from practical human experience. He lived close to human nature. "Bishop Joyce was an advanced student of modern psychology and was ever in close sympathy with that human nature which he understood so well. His preaching appealed to the common experiences of humanity and touched people of all classes and of every race. "His field was the broad field of human nature; his delight the furtherance of helpful sympathy wherever it was needed; his empire the human heart. "He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the present age are not before the public eye, and which he would have been sadly missed in the present age. For in this age of shallow education, shallow literature and shallow religion, the country needs men who have convictions, and who have formed sound opinions on all the manifold and pressing problems of the day. Bishop Joyce was such a man. "He was a man of profound energy. He gave himself not a moment's leisure, and he worked hard and long. "His life was a life of sacrifice. He never took a day of rest, and he never took a day of idleness. He was a man of strong convictions. He believed in the Bible, in the divinity of Christ and in many of those things which in the