All aboard. Tomorrow's the day. The Journal's two big excursions on the Mississippi and St. Croix rivers to Stillwater will take place tomorrow. The weather man says that everything is "favorable for excursions," and The Journal proposes to give the best of the season tomorrow. There will be a trip of more than 100 miles by river and rail for the remarkably low price of 95 cents. The palatial steamer J. S., one of the largest and safest stoeamboats on the Mississippi, elegantly equipped, will carry The MAY BORE FOR HIDDEN WATERS

Journal excursionists on the two

Journ'al excursionists on the two scenic rivers. The J. S. has a commodious dance hall, women's cabin, a smoking-room and everything that goes to make a first-class steamboat. There will be a good orchestra in attendance, and those that wish to dance will be allowed to do so. The big steamer has a capacity of 2,000 passngers, but The Journal has limited the sale of tickets to only 400, thus insuring plenty of room and the greatest comfort to everybody who goes.

The department of commerce at Washington has taken up the cause, and Chief Canterbury has been informed that such a law will be introduced at the next session of congress. The law will probably be drawn up in the rough at the convention after Chief Canterbury has read his paper.

ELEPHANT LIKED GOOD CIGARS Peculiar Double Negative Prints Freak

Photograph—Causes Much Merri-ment at New Store. Instances of peculiar and often very aughable photographic "doubles," or two exposures on one plate, are frequently discovered by photographers who develop negatives for amateurs. A case of the former kind was recently brought to light at The New Store. A young man who has become fuss in Chicago by publicly accusing quite expert with his camera brought Fire Chief John Campion of corrupt quite expert with his camera brought half a dozen negatives to the New Store photo department to be developed, and among them was a double exposure. The first view was that of a recent circus parade, the second being a likeness of the young man's father, a prominent business man, and the odd part of the picture was that the gentleman, who is sitting, appears to be seated sidewise upon the broad back of one of the circus elephant's trunk is seemingly poked into an open box of cigars near at hand. The funny 'double' caused much amusement at the New Store and among the young man's friends.

Incidentally it may be stated that the gentleman is a strong republican, and in view of this fact seems to be well seated.
