RELATED FEDERAL AID FOR ALASKA

Important Legislation for the Wonderful North Now Expected from Congress.

By W. W. Jernane.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The trip of a congressional party of twenty-three to Alaska last summer, headed by Speaker Cannon, is likely to result in important legislation for that district at the next session. For one thing, the speaker himself is now friendly to this legislation, whereas heretofore he has opposed it.

The question of Alaskan representation in congress will come up again, instead of providing for a delegate, congress may decide to have a committee on the district of Alaska composed of seven members, analogous to the committee on the District of Columbia. A committee would, it is asserted, give Alaska more prominence in congress than it could possibly secure thru single delegate.

There is no more reason, it is urged, why Alaskan legislation should be referred to the territories committee than that District of Columbia legislation should be so referred. Neither is a territory in its form of government, and both are so nearly alike in their political status as to require similar legislative machinery.

Why a Delegate Fails.

Besides, it is said no single delegate could adequately represent the diversified and widely separated interests of the country. A delegate living in southeastern Alaska, for example, would be no more fitted to represent the great interior of the country and the northwestern coast, than a congressman from Alabama would be fitted to represent the northwestern states. Three delegates coming from different localities, respectively, would be needed if the territory were to be admitted to the union. A standing committee of seventeen, it is declared, would get around all these objections. And as the speaker, owing to the largely increased republican representation in the next house, will not have enough places to go around, the "practical" argument for the creation of another large committee of the first class is emphasized. The attention of the speaker will be called to this matter at an early date, and it is believed that his more favorable attitude toward Alaska will prompt him to consider it without prejudice.

Need of a Railroad.

The congressmen who visited Alaska last summer are impressed with the need for a railroad running from Valdez thru the Copper river country to Eagle City, via Fairbanks, the great gold camp on the Tanana river. Such a line, probably six hundred miles long, would tap mineral country of the greatest value.

Major Richardson, who is in charge of the government road and trail building in Alaska, submitted data to Speaker Cannon and his colleagues last summer showing that such a road would be of immensely more value to the government than any one of the transcontinental lines to which direct federal subsidy was given.

The plan is to have the government guarantee 3 per cent on the bonds to build such a line, as has been done for railways in the Philippines.

More Attention to Alaska.

It is said that Alaska will receive more serious attention in congress next session than at any previous time. The senate committee on territories is already familiar with Alaskan conditions, and while the house members have learned will give Alaska staunch supporters in both houses.

Among other things which strongly impressed the visiting congressman is the fact that Alaska, although plentifully provided with rich forests, and a consumer of 50,000,000 feet of lumber annually, manufactures but 15,000,000 feet of what it consumes, the rest coming by water from Seattle at a cost of more than $7 a thousand feet. The railroad project would open up the vast timber lands and give Alaska its own lumber supply at prices much below those demanded under present conditions.

HARPER AGAIN ILL AND HIS FRIENDS ALARMED

New York Sun Special Service. Chicago, Sept. 19.—Inquiries made by alarmed friends of President W. R. Harper of the University of Chicago as to the reason for refusing all guests admittance to his home, and not allowing telephone connection to be had with the residence have led to the issuing of the following bulletin by his physicians regarding the state of his health:

On Monday, a week ago, Dr. Harper returned home, and during the week suffered from indigestion and constipation. On Sunday a minor operation was performed by Drs. Murphy and Bevan, which was so slight that neither chloroform nor ether was required. Dr. Harper has reacted and has taken food all day and has a normal pulse and temperature. He will be up and about his usual affairs within a few days. Inasmuch as Dr. Harper's general health is good, and the operation so insignificant, no further statements will be made by his physicians.—Dr. F. Billings.

MADMAN ESCAPES AND BECOMES GLOBE-TROTTER

New York Sun Special Service. Peoria, Ill., Sept. 19.—After an absence of four months, during which he had traveled all over the United States and had made a trip thru Ireland and European countries, John McDonald, a patient of the Bartonville asylum for incurable insane, walked into the institution today and announced that he wanted his old room back. He disappeared from the institution suddenly and all efforts to locate him were fruitless. From Peoria he went to Chicago, where he visited relatives and secured money with which to go to England. He made the trip, visited relatives in Ireland, passed the officials at New York and came back to Peoria without anyone suspecting that he was insane. He is incurably insane, and at times is almost unmanageable.
