

A Budget of Social Gossip From the National Capital

THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. ROOSEVELT
Request the pleasure of your Company
At the marriage of their daughter,
ALICE LEE
to
MR. NICHOLAS LONGWORTH,
On Saturday, Feb. the Seventeenth,
Nineteen Hundred and Six, at Twelve O'clock.
An answer is requested.

THIS is the form of the wedding invitation of the president's daughter. Something unique was first suggested, but after all it was decided to adopt the old-fashioned form. It was first intended to use the words "request the honor of," but that was changed to "request the pleasure of." The letters "R. S. V. P." were also abandoned, and substituted therefor are the words "Answer is requested." The invitation is typed in a round hand, and already local jewelers are receiving orders for wedding gifts to be presented to Miss Alice by her many friends. Among the most notable so far ordered in New York is a massive silver vase and several trays. It is believed that Miss Roosevelt's wedding presents will represent in number and variety a greater display in gems, gold and silver than has been gathered at any official wedding in years.

One of the costliest of these is a diamond necklace, which is set with a pair of diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds, is also being made. A solid gold coffee set and a chest of table silver, each having unique designs, are being made in New York.

Miss Roosevelt's coming marriage has caused an upheaval in diplomatic circles in Washington, and a division in the ranks is threatened in consequence. Some days ago the question came up among certain of the foreign representatives as to whether or not it would be proper to send Miss Roosevelt a joint wedding gift.

The Austrian ambassador, Mr. Hengelmüller, who, in the absence of the Italian ambassador, is deemed the corps commander, meeting of the ambassadors to formally consider the question. Ambassador Hengelmüller, however, failed to serve notice on the ministers, and that makes the trouble. South American representatives and merely invited to join with the ambassadors in a gift to the president's daughter. The gift is not to be an official one in any sense, merely a token of good feeling from the corps in general.

Some of the ministers have said they will not go into it at all, but will go off and buy a gift themselves. Others believe that in the end ambassadors and ministers will jointly send a gift.

Miss Roosevelt and Mr. Longworth have had the choice of many private cars for their wedding trip, and at least six mansions have been placed at their disposal for the honeymoon.

Miss Roosevelt has confided to a few friends that her wedding gown will be trimmed with lace owned by her mother. The gown will have a full court train and will appear later in the year as her presentation gown at the court of King Edward. The foreign trip is looked on by Miss Roosevelt as her real honeymoon jaunt, and her troupeau is being constructed with a view to appropriateness for wear abroad. In Vienna Bellamy Storer, uncle of Mr. Longworth, will present the couple to the emperor.

Miss Roosevelt's going-away gown will be of gray broadcloth, matching in tone the magnificent set of silver fox, the skins of which were presented to her in Hongkong by the British governor general. Two other broadcloth costumes, one rose colored, with Persian trimming, and the other dark green, are also being made, as well as an elaborate evening gown of white satin and lace, and much of Miss Roosevelt's lingerie is being prepared in a local industrial home for girls.

In order that she might listen to the eloquence of the fiance, Miss Roosevelt will be in Philadelphia yesterday to attend a banquet which was given in honor of Lloyd Carpenter Griseom, who for the past two years has been the United States minister to Japan and whom President Roosevelt has now appointed ambassador to Brazil. Isaac H. Clothier, the well-known merchant of Philadelphia, was the host of the occasion, and it was he who selected Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, to whom the president's daughter is engaged, to make one of the principal addresses of the evening.

Invitations are out for a dinner in honor of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, with the Postmaster General and Mrs. Cortelyou as hosts, to be given Tuesday. Under the presidential ruling that these cabinet functions be varied by the presence of outside guests, each separate date has become an event of speculation in the social world, and those honored with an invitation rest content with the knowledge that their presence is indorsed by executive approval; but all do not know that with each list of guests submitted (before being invited) there are often ten or more names appended, from which selections could be made by the president in case the originals were not desirable or unable to be present.

In this way the cabinet homes have wit and culture of the world, and those who meet around the official board enjoy rare opportunities for better personal acquaintance than is usually obtainable under less exclusive conditions and with the added zest of variety hitherto lacking.

A rumor, persistently repeated and causing some surprise in diplomatic circles is the report of the engagement of the young daughter of the Chinese minister, Miss Liang-Cheng, to Mr. Jen, a young Chinese student, now studying at Amherst college, and a member of a distinguished Chinese family. If reports are to be credited, for nothing is authoritatively known, the engagement followed a consultation between the two families.

Miss Liang-Cheng is about 16 years old, and despite the fact that she is so popular among the younger set and has not yet made a formal bow to society, this young Chinese girl retains to a great extent the instincts of her people, whose social duties are concerned. She is well educated and quite pretty. She has been in this country a little more than two years. Until the education of Mr. Jen is finished, no thought will be given to the wedding preparations.

Miss Liang-Cheng is a familiar figure of the fashionable thoroughfares of Washington. The only touches of Americanism in her dress are her shoes and gloves, which are strictly those of American make.

The wedding will take place in China, but no preparations have been made at this early date.

Madame Fashion may carry her darling poodle when shopping, carriage riding, calling, or even churchgoing, but when she calls on the president's wife doggie must be left with the maid. Mrs. Roosevelt recently made such a rule at the White House, afternoon at homes and her regular day at home. She dislikes to see a woman carrying a dog constantly in her arms, and she instructed the ushers to inform woman callers who bore poodles and terriers that the pets must be left in an anteroom until the visit ended.

Some of the callers were loath to trust their treasures to strange men, but when it was a case of no-dog-or-no-admittance they submitted to the separation. There are a dozen or more fashionable women of Washington who boast their dogs never leave their arms in waking hours.

Mrs. Roosevelt's order about dogs recalls an amusing incident in Washington last spring, when Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish was giving a reception for the Railway Congress. Mrs. Fish owns a toy poodle who looks like a ball of long silky hair. His mistress and he are inseparable. Mrs. Fish was holding him in her arms when along came a delegate from the West who was attending other receptions no one could say. After greeting his hostess he exclaimed ecstatically:

Madam, what a glorious chrysanthemum you have there! Where did you get such a flower? It is hard to discern Mrs. Fish, and she made a nonchalant reply; but when that delegate was out of sight doggie was sent to the upper regions. He figured no more at receptions in her Washington sojourn.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt have issued invitations for dinners on Monday, Friday, Feb. 2, and Monday, Feb. 12.

Mr. and Mrs. John Roosevelt, who had been guests at the White House for ten days, have returned to New York. They have engaged apartments here for the middle of February, when they will come to Washington to attend the wedding of Miss Roosevelt.

The president and Mrs. Roosevelt have issued invitations to the reception for the members of congress, to be held at the White House on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson of New York have arrived in the city for a week's visit at the White House.

The fancy dance class, of which Miss Alice Roosevelt is one of the members, and which was organized by Mrs. Rebyrn and taught by Karl Marwig of New York, now meets three times a week, once at Mrs. Robert Patterson's, once at Miss Elkins' home and once at Raucher's.

Arrangements are about completed for the Pan-American carnival to be given by the women of Excelsior for the benefit of the Law Enforcement League in the Excelsior town hall, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The carnival will begin at 4 p.m. each day and will be open evenings. In order to accommodate visitors from the city, the street railway company will have late cars leaving for Minneapolis. Several cars have already been chartered by Mrs. Rebyrn and a good attendance is assured. W. M. Babcock of Temple Court is in charge of the chartered cars and will furnish information as to the entertainment. The committee on arrangements consists of Misses A. S. Angar, J. E. Bell, G. L. Cheely, G. L. Dickinson, J. J. Miner, Willard Dillman, F. W. Gilbert, Frank Dimond, Walter Sampson, Byron Frank, Donald McKenzie, G. La Paul, J. K. McBroome, A. H. Lyman, W. S. McWade, S. S. Smith, C. W. Spickerman and Frank Perkins.

In old New York a group of old-fashioned Dutch hostesses will receive. They are Misses Miner, Dillman, Frank Putnam, Walter Sampson, Frank Perkins, Spickerman, Baker and Miss Marie Perkins. Mrs. S. S. Smith will be one of the Dutch dames who will use the knitting needles skillfully and she will carry her knitting in an old knitting-bag, which was in her family 150 years ago. Mrs. Albert Lyman will rule in Aunt Dinah's cabin and has a great many surprises in store for her visitors. Misses W. S. McWade, A. M. Slocum, J. L. Benton, Misses Helen Goodnow and Josephine Hecker are chosen for the maidens in the Philippine booth and will wear beautiful costumes. The girls of the W. C. T. U. have taken charge of the restroom, where ice and cakes are to be served. A New England kitchen will be presided over by Misses A. A. Bost and F. L. Simpson. Mrs. Donald McKenzie will be the campaign girl and will sell the campaign buttons. On the street there will be the handorgan man, the popcorn man, the fiddler, the darkey and the well-known business man of Excelsior in disguise. Miss Laura Thoele will be the Salvation Army girl and will appeal to the people to "stuff the turkey." Miss Mabel Stone and Clara Quamme in the candy booth, Miss Florence Perkins in the vegetable booth, Miss A. S. Angar and Melvin Benna at the bargain counter, will be among those who will take part in the entertainment. Supper will be served at 6:30 p.m. and the theatricals will follow. A Dutch supper will be served Thursday evening, in charge of a chef, and the act from the "Sultan of Sulu," a pantomime and tableaux will be on the bill. Friday evening a Scotch program will be given and there will be a change of program and of supper every evening.

Mrs. C. W. Spickerman entertained at a birthday dinner Wednesday evening at her home in Excelsior in honor of Mr. Spickerman's birthday anniversary. Covers were laid for eight and of their fine feathers at a crowded reception that many wise ones will not wear new and costly gowns at such affairs. In former years it was the custom to invite 6,000 or 7,000 guests to a White House levee, and it was tempting Providence to wear expensive garments. Everybody recalls the fate that befell Mrs. Dewey's $5,000 ruse point gown which she wore at the first reception she attended after she was married to the admiral. So great was the curiosity to see the couple that the crowd hemmed them in, and in her anxiety to escape Mrs. Dewey's robe was shredded. Mrs. Roosevelt never permits more than 3,000 cards to be issued for a reception. The White House can hold such an assemblage comfortably. The public has not yet realized the changed conditions and it is seldom fresh and costly raiment is seen on such evenings in the White House.

Madame Fashion may carry her darling poodle when shopping, carriage riding, calling, or even churchgoing, but when she calls on the president's wife doggie must be left with the maid. Mrs. Roosevelt recently made such a rule at the White House, afternoon at homes and her regular day at home. Mrs. C. W. Spickerman entertained at a birthday dinner Wednesday evening at her home in Excelsior in honor of Mr. Spickerman's birthday anniversary. Covers were laid for eight and after the dinner, music and social pastimes occupied the evening.

Miss Lois Spickerman entertained last Saturday evening at her home in honor of Miss Nina Newman. Forty of the younger people had been invited for the evening, and the party was a delightful surprise for Miss Newman. Parlor games and music furnished entertainment, and refreshments were served. The party was given as a birthday celebration for Miss Newman and a handsome signet ring was presented to her as a souvenir of the day.

The February meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Okey Sigafos on Feb. 16. At the last meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. James Goodnow, a number of new members joined the union.

Mrs. Walter Sampson was hostess at the meeting of the Ladies' Euchre club, to be held on Friday afternoon. After the games light luncheon was served. Fourteen members of the club played.

The Woodmen lodge of Excelsior held its annual social in the lodge parlors Monday evening. Over 100 Woodmen were present and their families and friends, and informal games of cards and music filled the hours pleasantly. Arthur Wilson gave a short talk, and an oyster supper was served at 10 o'clock.

A. O. U. W. and Degree of Honor of Excelsior will hold a card party and social in Masonic hall Tuesday evening.

Mrs. A. A. Bost will entertain the Ladies' Aid society at an all-day meeting at her home near Excelsior. Mrs. Walter Sampson was the hostess at the last meeting of the society.

Rev. Donald McKenzie entertained his Sunday school class at a sleighing party Wednesday evening. The party went to the home of James Kamps near Eureka, where an oyster supper was served.

The Women's Relief corps will give a dinner in the corps hall Monday at 12 o'clock, to which all the members of the G. A. B. and their families are invited. In the afternoon there will be a joint installation of officers and a public installation. Ten officers of the Minneapolis department of the G. A. B. will be present.

Mrs. C. I. Cheely will entertain the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church at her home next Wednesday afternoon.

The cold evening did not lessen the attendance at the Tuesday night meeting of the Excelsior Magazine club, at the home of Mrs. James Goodnow. The quotations were from Spanish authors, and Mrs. Goodnow followed these with a very interesting paper on the "Old Missions of Southern California." Mrs. R. B. McGrath gave a reading from "Romona." Miss Laura Thoele sang two pleasing solos and Miss Thoele and Mr. Shannon gave a duet. Miss Helen Goodnow furnished the instrumental music and J. E. Miner presented the current events, which included a resume of the law enforcements in Minneapolis and Excelsior. As the program for Feb. 6 the members will quote French authors.
