It was Dr. Deer's intention to go to Winona, Minn.

The Minnesota Phonological association meets tonight at McElroy hall, Eighth street and Nicollet avenue. An address will be given by Dr. L. Williams, of the University of Chicago, on "The Delineation of Human Character"; also vocal and instrumental solos by Miss Laura Distle and Miss Adol Malchow. The meeting will conclude with a public character reading, everybody welcome.

BURLESQUERS ARE STRONG

The Avenue Girls at the Dewey Give Brilliant Program.

Contrary to the almost invariable trend of the past few weeks, the burlesques at the Dewey theater this evening, with a company whose singing and acting abilities compare favorably with the best that has been seen at this house this season, contribute to the effect. This is not to say that the olio is not pleasing, for several numbers won deserved applause. Campbell and the proprietors, and the other excellent companies.

The first burlesque is set in a Japanese room and the designers seem to have reproduced even the atmosphere of the Bowery kingdom. The closing act, "The Goddess of the Moon," is equally artistic and is brightened by beautiful electric effects.

Olio artists and company, with impertuous of soldiers, firemen, and policemen, depicting their lives in the service of the people, have a novelty that won praise and stands high in the list. May Curtis, in a singing number, pleased. The Gregory brothers have a hoop act that calls for some careful work and introduces some innovations. Jules Bennett accomplishes some difficult things with his bugle. George P. Murphy and Jack Vincent start a flow of laughs that continues long after they leave the stage. The olio closes with motion pictures, showing "The Kidnappers."

John W. Thomas & Co. have a complete line of long gloves.

PREACHES LAST SERMON

Large Audience Bids Farewell to Dr. W. H. W. Boyle of St. Paul.

Dr. W. H. W. Boyle last evening delivered his final sermon as pastor of the House of Hope Presbyterian church, St. Paul. The church was crowded. The sermon was the last of a series on "Character," the special subject being "Character and Coronation."

"Character," said Dr. Boyle, "is the unseen chiseling which the hand of time is doing on the sensitive soul for a destiny as dateless as the years of God."

He then spoke of the necessity for care in the everyday life that character may eventually be moulded in the best form. He reminded the young people of the care that should be taken in their habits. "Youth is no man's privilege," he said, "and in its stead comes an accusing memory of lost years."

ADOPTS HILL PLANS

Wabash Severs Relations with Ontario Despatch Freight Line.

Freight offices have received notice that the Ontario Despatch freight line has been changed to the Ontario Central Despatch, and that it will be operated over the Michigan Central railroad hereafter, instead of the Wabash.

The Wabash road had given notice, effective Feb. 1, that all organizations known as fast freight lines would be discontinued and that the work would be handled by the road. This move is taken by local railroad men to be a result of the Burlingtonizing of the Wabash. When Joseph Ramsey, Jr., was ousted from management of the road, F. A. Delano, a typical Burlington man, was given charge of the traffic. He became surrounded by former Burlington men, and the methods learned in the Hill school were put into effect. The result has been noticed by railroad men.

MURDER COMES OF BRAWL IN SALOON

MANIE SEGERSTROM DIES OF INJURIES RECEIVED IN ROW.

Police Arrest Alfred Jorgenson, Who Admits that He Quarreled with Segerstrom and "Gave Him a Push"—The Assault Was Committed in Austin's Saloon Saturday Night.

Another saloon row has ended in murder.

Manie Segerstrom, 26 years old, 248 Fourth avenue S., died early this morning at the city hospital as the result of injuries received in a brawl in O. H. Austin's saloon at 315 Washington avenue S. on Saturday night.

Alfred Jorgenson, who admits having had trouble with Segerstrom, is locked up at Central station, and will probably be charged with the crime, while Charles Hendrickson, bartender in the saloon is locked up and held as a witness.

Altho the police have not ascertained all the details, they have obtained some idea of what happened from Jorgenson. The man talks but little and says that he is not to blame. It seems that Segerstrom, who was employed Fridays and Saturdays as a meat cutter in a downtown market, went into the saloon shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night, and bought a few drinks.

He was sober at the time he entered the place, but half an hour later there was some quarrel and the men in the place all appeared anxious to fight. Jorgenson says that he pushed away from Segerstrom, who had become infuriated. As he did so the other stumbled against the wall, fell heavily to the floor and lay unconscious.

There was a great scramble, and while some of the men left the saloon Hendrickson and another man carried Segerstrom to the lodging house above the saloon and put him to bed. He did not regain consciousness, and yesterday afternoon Dr. J. W. Hines was called to attend the man. He worked until early in the evening, and finding that he could do little, notified the police to take the man to the city hospital.

Doctor Was Misled.

Dr. Hines was told that the man had fallen downstairs and he made the same report to the police. He was misled, however, because Mrs. Segerstrom had missed her husband and had reported the fact to the police yesterday morning. He was misled, however, because Mrs. Segerstrom had missed her husband and had reported the fact to the police yesterday morning.

The persons in charge of the saloon and lodging house, who had been told that the man had fallen downstairs, but the wound looked as tho he had been struck with some heavy weapon. They later admitted that there had been a quarrel and that Segerstrom had been struck.

Jorgenson's address was learned and he was arrested just a few minutes before Segerstrom died. He was taken to the station, but was not told that the man was dead. Thinking that he would only be charged with assault he admitted that he had fought with Segerstrom and had pushed him against the wall. He said that the man was drunk and he was compelled to do it in self-defense.

This story, however, is not believed by the police. Mrs. Segerstrom says that her husband came home at 11 o'clock after work and about 11:30 he was sober. He had drawn but a small amount and had spent most of the money for provisions. He said he was going out for a few minutes, but would not tell her where.

An Old Quarrel Suspected.

For this reason the police think there may have been some old trouble between the two men and that Segerstrom intended to see the other man in the place. There is still much mystery about the case, but the police hope to get the whole story from Jorgenson and Hendrickson. They are positive that both these men had about the same case, and strenuous means will be employed to make them tell what they know.

Segerstrom, as far as is known, was a man of steady habits and was not a heavy drinker.

Shortly before noon Jorgenson was taken to the county attorney's office and there he told the same story he told the police. He said that Segerstrom was calling him down for talking too much and he either struck him or pushed him away and he fell.

The police are disposed to sympathize with Jorgenson, for he evidently meant not to hurt the other man, but other man. He will have to answer in the courts for it, however, and a charge of manslaughter will be placed against him.

Mayor May Act.

After investigating the brawl in the Landing saloon, 315 Washington avenue S., in which Manie Segerstrom received injuries which caused his death, Chief J. Doyle is satisfied that the place should be closed, and will report to Mayor D. P. Jones. It is believed that the license will be revoked before the day is over.
