A Budget of Social Gossip From the National Capital

Washington, Feb. 24.—The week of the White House wedding will go down in history as Alice Roosevelt week. Indeed, Miss Roosevelt dominated it. The much-talked-of wedding, about which there were so many conjectures, so many anticipations, and some few disappointments, has taken place. The agitation of conjecture, the hurry of preparation, the fevered rush, is all over, and our eyes were not satisfied with seeing, nor our ears with hearing. Rumor and report assumed almost a semblance of fact, amid the general agitation, and the veriest myths and fabled fancies were applauded. So widespread, in fact, was the public interest in the White House wedding that not two hearts, but 80,000,000, beat as one. Now a great calm seems to have settled over the city, and many look around them as in a dream, in wonder that it is all over—so soon—over forever—to be put aside with the memories of the past, to sleep with the shadows of ages.

The present season, which has been in ordinary and minister plenipotentiary of Belgium to the United States. The baron was a widower. He fell deeply in love with Charlotte Clayton, daughter of General Powell Clayton of Arkansas, until recently ambassador to the republic of Mexico. It took Miss Clayton some time to capitulate to her Belgian suitor, but surrender she did finally, and the marriage of this American woman to a foreigner has turned out happily.

Baroness Moncheur has an exceedingly attractive sister who visits her in Washington during the society season. It is possible before long that there may be another international alliance to be announced. Miss Clayton lived in Mexico city for a time while her father was there as ambassador. It was generally believed that she would be married to Grant Duff, secretary of the British legation, but the engagement was broken.

Not long ago Brazil raised the rank of its representative at Washington to that of ambassador extraordinary and many ways the most brilliant in the social annals of the capital, will soon be over, too. The chaperons freely confess that they are tired, the debutantes begin to look a little fagged, and even the men show signs of fatigue. The Lenten season will be welcome, and for awhile, at least, there will be a cessation of festivities.

Family friends and guests of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who were present at the Longworth-Rosevelt wedding, took their departure from the White House last Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Lee of Boston, the grandparents of the bride, her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson of New York, and the schoolboy friends of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., left in the morning for their respective homes.

During the early hours of Monday scores of visitors called at the White House to visit the east room, where the lower apartments of the mansion. Most of the decorations had been allowed to stand as they were on Saturday and they were the subject of lively and interested comment on the part of the visitors.

For the first time in many days the White House is now without guests, and the next few weeks will be spent in getting used to doing without the sollicking, good-natured, cheery companionship of its former young tenant, who, as Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, is now making her wedding journey.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Kermit, and some of them cousins, who came on for the wedding, went down the Potomac in the Kala Shop in the fine Arts building and will devote her time to that business. The Kala Shop is the name of a place where the arts and crafts workers around the country dispose of their productions.

Social Clubs and Lodges. The Congregational club met Thursday with Mrs. Thomas Lyon, 1504 Fourth avenue S, as president. Prizes were won by Mrs. G. Miller and T. Lyon. After the games supper was served from a table decked in the national colors. The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. Seunt, 2536 Elliot avenue.

Pansy Rebekah lodge, No. 54, will give a dance Saturday evening at 320 Nicollet avenue. The Union Card club will meet with Mrs. Millar, 3449 Third avenue S, Tuesday.

Hennepin Court, Royal Ladies, will entertain Hennepin Council, Royal Arcanum, Wednesday evening at a literary and musical entertainment. The day is the eleventh anniversary and it will be properly celebrated.

Anchor Hive, 728 Ladies of the Modern Maccabees installed the following officers Thursday evening. Past lady commander, Frances T. McFarland; lady commander, Hattie E. Schweitzer; lieutenant commander, M. Peacock; recorder, Emily Anderson; finance keeper, Elizabeth Woodworth; chaplain, Emma Wheeler; mistress of arms, Letitia Shaffer; treasurer, Myrtle Turquo; sentinel, Mrs. Garrison; picket, Miss Powers; musician, Sophia Borgon. At the close of the meeting the past lady commander was presented with a beautiful bracelet by Mrs. Christopher, Mrs. John Glueck entertained the members of the Deutscher Frauen club Thursday.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Sr., and her daughter, Countess de Chambrun, left Washington Monday afternoon for Cincinnati, where they will remain for some time visiting Mrs. Wallingford, the elder daughter of Mrs. Longworth.

It has been said of the Belgian legation that the door of its headquarters, the residence of Baron and Baroness Moncheur, is never closed. The legation is on H street, near Seventeenth, one of the most fashionable neighborhoods in Washington. The Baroness Charlotte Moncheur entertains almost constantly, the interims in gaily during the season being only the afternoons or the evenings when she is called upon to be a guest instead of a hostess.

Baron Moncheur is the envy extra-was Elizabeth Glover, daughter of a veteran Washington banker, and before she was won by the ardent suit of the Dutchman she was a belle in the capital. She was presented to the minister by Mrs. Roosevelt, and the president's wife attended the wedding that was the outcome of that meeting. It was a quick courtship—four months long. Mrs. Roosevelt has taken a deep interest in the happiness of the couple. When the baby was only a few hours old a cluster of roses came from the mistress of the White House, with a gold spoon.

If her father were not wealthy and she sought to make a living by her talent, Miss Margaret Hitchcock, daughter of the secretary of the interior, would come to the fore as a soloist in oratorio. She frequently lends her voice to her favorite, Washington place of worship, the Church of the Incarnation. She studied music in Paris and Berlin, and still pursues the art under the best American masters. Her voice is a mezzo-soprano of good range and much volume. In Washington she is the leading spirit in all amateur musical affairs and is a charter member of the Polyhymnia, organized to promote a revival of the classic Greek ode.

Miss Hildegarde McKenna, daughter of Justice and Mrs. McKenna, was married to John L. Putz of New York, at noon on Wednesday in the home of her parents, Rev. Edward L. Buckley, assistant pastor of St. Matthew's church, officiating. A license was issued on Monday for this marriage, and at the same time another was issued for Miss Marie McKenna, eldest daughter of Justice and Mrs. McKenna, and David, son of Brown of Boston. The latter wedding will take place in April.

Senator W. A. Clark has loaned to the Corcoran gallery, Washington, fifty-six extraordinarily interesting and valuable paintings from his private collection, which have been congregated in a single room and formed into a special exhibit.

Speaker Cannon is to dine the Grid-iron club next month at the New Willard hotel. The organization, at a business meeting yesterday, fixed the date of March 17, St. Patrick's day, for the event. To meet the club on the occasion Mr. Cannon will issue invitations to 200 persons hailing from every section of the country, thus making the gathering a national affair.

The club membership is sixty-nine, and the members have already begun to busy themselves preparing for the event, which promises to be a special red-letter night in the club's twenty-one years existence.

Mrs. La Follette was at home at the Ontario Thursday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. She made this last Thursday of the season something of a Wisconsin day, and all Wisconsin people visiting or residing in the city were welcome. Miss La Follette, eldest daughter of Senator and Mrs. La Follette, who is studying in New York City, came home for the occasion.

WEDDING GIFT ETIQUETTE

“Presents may be sent at any time from several weeks before the marriage until the day thereof. It is the custom to send the gifts by messenger or preferably to have them forwarded direct from the store where they are purchased to the bride's home, with a visiting card bearing some brief expression of good wishes. Only relatives or close friends may offer their gifts in person.

“When wedding gifts are marked, the initials of the bride's maiden name should be used. This is not due altogether to the fact that they are sent to the bride before her marriage, but rather because it sets the gifts apart as her property, and individual property, always thereafter to be cherished with special interest.

“A belated gift, sent after the wedding day, should be marked with the initials of the married name.”
—The Book of Weddings.

As to the gifts themselves, we have the most charming collection of appropriate things in the Northwest. If you wish the Conventional Silver or Cut Glass, it's here; if you prefer something in modern or antique jeweled designs, splendid values and assortments at prices—diamond signet, or pearl and diamond cluster rings and brooches, we have them.
