ON SITE OF OLD MAIN

STAKES ARE SET FOR THE NEW WOMEN'S BUILDING AT THE UNIVERSITY.

The exact location of the Alice Shevlin hall, the new women's building at the university, was determined at a consultation yesterday between J. T. Wyman, president of the board of regents, and Ernest Kennedy, architect for the new building. Situated, as authorized by the university regents, on the site of the old main building, the women's building will not be shut off from the university library, about twenty feet back of the front of the historic old main. As a result the view of the main building will not be shut off, and the beauty of the campus will be much improved.

Work on the new building will start as soon as the weather will permit, and the building will be ready for occupation at the beginning of the next college year.

A good roads laboratory, thoroughly equipped for student study of the good roads problem, will be installed this spring in the engineering building at the university. The laboratory will be operated in connection with the engineering department, and it will be open for the use of all university students who are interested in the study of good roads.

Two machines, now in construction at Champaign, Ill., will be installed in the new department as a nucleus for apparatus equipment. One of these machines will be used for testing the value of rock as a material in macadam roads, and the other is designed for testing the relative values of different paving brick. Machines for chemical tests will also be installed.

The Minnesota laboratory will be the fourth among the colleges of the country. Cornell, Columbia, Illinois and Colorado have already installed similar laboratories.

On Monday evening, March 28, the annual banquet of the university branch of the Young Men's Christian association, will be held in the university lunch room, 420 Fourteenth avenue S.E. At this time officers for the ensuing year will be chosen and an address will be made by Mayor D. P. Jones.

Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago will address university students in the chapel on the evening of March 21.

John D. O'Brien of St. Paul will address the University Catholic association next Sunday afternoon in the library.

HAVE TILL JULY, 1907

CONTRACTORS NOT TO BE RUSHED ON NEW MAIN—AMPLE MARGIN FOR EXTRAS.

The contractors who are to build the new main building at the university are not required to finish it until July 1, 1907.

That limit is fixed in the contract, and also applies to the contract for the new administration building at the farm school. This means that another school year must go by under the present cramped conditions, but the authorities are not willing to rush the contractors on such important work.

The contract price allows considerable leeway under the money available, and it is evident that somewhat more room could have been provided in the plans, but it is too late to change. There is $406,000 available in all.

There was $5,390 paid for the foundation, and $34,458 is set aside for the regents to use in buying furniture and equipment. This, with architect fees and other items, reduced the amount to $364,764.78, and the main contract is $286,950.

Other allowances for architect and superintendent of construction, with the cost of the heating tunnel and its piping, will come to $7,690 more, leaving a margin of $70,124.78. Out of this will come the cost of extra boilers for the heating plant. The rest is allowance for extras, and it will be largely used in changing some materials called for in the contract for better articles.

The floors may be largely substituted for wood, and brick wainscoting for hard plaster. Improvements may be arranged for in the roofing, heating, plumbing, ventilating system and other details. Members of the board of control think the margin they have is none too large to work on.

PEAKE'S ISLAND STAR WOULD'NT DO AT BIJOU

Manager Lew Talbot of the "Bankers and Brokers" company, at the Bijou has been discharged from his own company by Mrs. Nick Adams, whom he appointed assistant manager. That is, he is discharged as an actor. Last night there was a horsehipping episode which involved one Smith whom Mr. Talbot discharged from the company.

It was up to Mr. Talbot to provide a substitute for Smith and there was none in sight.

"I have it—I'll play the part myself," Mr. Talbot exclaimed in a consultation with York and Adams, the comedians, over the dilemma.

"You! but can you act, did you ever play a part?" they exclaimed in surprise.

"Oh, yes, years ago I was leading man in our dramatic society at Peake's Island, Me., and I flatter myself I'm equal to the emergency. Why played in 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' 'Ten Nights in a Barroom,' and 'Still Waters Run Deep'—never mind me, I'll be there with the goods. Just have Mrs. Adams take place in the front of the house as manager and I'll go back and make up at once."

The part assigned Talbot was that of Wood B. Holmes, described in the program as "a broker who is a little below par."

At the end of the first performance, a note came back to Actor Talbot from Manager Adams. It read: "You're too much below par to suit me. Do better or I wipe you off the board."

After Monday night's performance, Mrs. Adams sent back a note with this: "Where is Peake's island? Can't find it on the map. Don't believe you ever played a part there or anywhere else. You have one day's notice. Have wired to Chicago for a man to take your place. You quit Wednesday."

There was no appeal, from Mrs. Adams' decision. Talbot acknowledged that he had appointed her manager with full power. Mrs. Adams said that she had acted upon the advice of everybody at the front of the house, and all agreed that Mr. Talbot was simply the worst actor they had ever seen. "You may be good enough for a star at Peake's Island, Me., but you won't do for Minneapolis, Minn.," she said firmly.

So Mr. Talbot is back in the box office counting up, and declares that he wouldn't act again for a farm.

GIVES POLICE THE SLIP

St. Paul Woman Disappears from Hospital While Carriage Waits.

Mrs. Elizabeth Auge, St. Paul, who was shot and wounded by her husband during a family quarrel several weeks ago, has disappeared from the St. Paul city hospital and the husband will probably go free.

Auge is now on trial charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, and the state sent a carriage to the hospital for Mrs. Auge yesterday. She was there when the carriage arrived, but she mysteriously disappeared while the police were waiting for her to put on her wraps.

The police are searching the city for the woman.
