THE WEATHER

The Predictions. Minnesota and Iowa—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight; brisk southwest winds. Upper Michigan—Probably showers or snow flurries tonight and Saturday; rising temperature; brisk to high southwest winds. Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight and in east portion Saturday; brisk to high southwest winds. North Dakota—Fair tonight and Saturday; moderate temperature. South Dakota—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer in east portion tonight; rising temperature; brisk to high southwest winds. Montana—Fair tonight and Saturday; cooler in northeast portion tonight. Weather Conditions. The low-pressure area over Minnesota and the upper central middle Mississippi valley yesterday morning has moved rapidly eastward to the New England coast; its passage has been attended by precipitation during the past twenty-four hours along the Mississippi river and thence eastward to the coast, except in the states bordering on the gulf, also in portions of Minnesota and North Dakota, and in northern Texas and southern New Mexico. In the Mississippi valley the weather has cleared but rain was still falling this morning in eastern Tennessee and Virginia, and snowing in the western parts of New York and Pennsylvania while the barometric readings along the middle Atlantic and New England coasts indicate a severe storm off the coast. The temperatures have fallen somewhat in the middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys, because of the low, prevailing northern Saskatchewan. No precipitation is expected in this vicinity tonight and Saturday, and the temperature tonight will be higher because of the north wind. T. S. Outram, Section Director.

Weather Now and Then.

AROUND THE TOWN

Men's Club at Feast.—The Men's club of the Church of the Redeemer will have its annual banquet this evening at the Plaza. Quits Police Force.—Patrolman W. F. Witche has resigned from the police force to go into business. He went on duty last February and has served only two months. No School for a Week.—When the pupils of the public schools left for home this afternoon it was with the gloomy prospect of nine continuous days of freedom staring them in the face. The children will have a vacation until Monday, April 16. Pleads Not Guilty.—Louis H. Engstrom was arraigned today before Judge F. C. Brooks and entered a plea of not guilty to an indictment charging him with receiving stolen property. The goods in question were a pair of men's cigars claimed to have been stolen from the Milwaukee railway company. Ask Car Line Extension.—The Walton Park Improvement association is holding a meeting Saturday night in the chapel at Crystal Lake cemetery. One of the moves in which the association will interest itself is the extension of the Emerson avenue car line so as to bring the prosperous and populous section in closer touch with the business portion of Minneapolis.

Minneapolis Men in Trouble.—William Jackson, B. Olson and T. C. Weldon, claiming Minneapolis as their home, were arrested in St. Paul early this morning and charged with burglary. They are accused of breaking into J. D. Cohen's jewelry store on Broadway street and were loitering about the place shortly after the robbery. They refused to give their addresses in Minneapolis.

Cat Disturbs Peace.—The loud wailings of a cat have for the last three days disturbed the rest of people living at 1303 Second street. At some time the whereabouts of the bothersome animal was not known, but it was finally decided that the crying tabby was imprisoned in the cold air duct leading to the furnace of the Minneapolis Humane society was notified this morning and an agent was sent at once to rescue the suffering cat.

Work for Boy Found.—Three jobs are open to Seth Johnson, the 16-year-old boy whose need of work was told in a story which appeared in The Journal yesterday. As soon as he reports to the manager of the Salvation army he will be fitted to employment which will enable him to contribute to the support of his invalid parents and two small sisters. Several persons have called up Ensign Miller and, quoting The Journal, have offered employment.

Governor at Oratorio.—Governor Johnson will attend the first performance of the oratorio "Golgotha," at the Auditorium this evening. The governor is a friend and townsman of the composer, J. Victor Bergquist, who was born in St. Peter. Governor Johnson weeks ago gave his conditional promise to attend the "Golgotha" performance, and this morning saw his way clear to keep it. The governor and his party will occupy one of the boxes.

MOVEMENT IS ON TO CLEAN CITY

IMPROVEMENT LEAGUE CALLS MEETING TO START CAMPAIGN.

League Backed by Mayor, Health Commissioner and Others, Will Try to Secure for City Such a Renovating as It Has Never Had Before. The improvement league plans to start a general spring city cleaning at a meeting called for tomorrow at 1 p. m. at Donaldson's tearoom. Mayor David P. Jones, who has recently returned from an extended eastern trip, on which he observed conditions of streets and alleys in other cities, has been invited to attend. He is expected to make a strong address on the necessity of some thorough work by the city and the property owners generally. Dr. P. M. Hall, the commissioner of health, will also give information on the plans of the health department. Representatives from various improvement associations and other organizations will be present and an effort will be made to arouse all parts of the city to an active interest in a movement which will give Minneapolis the most thorough cleaning in its history. There are no less than a score of local improvement associations, commercial clubs and other organizations which can co-operate in this work, and there is no reason to believe that any of them will fail to respond to the call. The addresser can do more in this work than anyone else. They have under their control not only the men and the implements, but the ward funds. Ordinarily, the ward funds are used for grading and road-making, but there is nothing irregular in using a portion in streetcleaning. In fact, the greater portion of the fourth and fifth ward funds are devoted to this purpose. Every street and alley should be carefully cleaned of the winter accumulation of rubbish, and this program the improvement league will labor for. The work of cleaning up unsightly vacant lots will depend largely on the efforts of individuals, backed by local improvement associations. R. S. Keeler announces the opening of his new quarters in the Boston Block corner of Second and Hennepin streets, new and complete line of Men's Furnishings and Hats. PRISONER ESCAPES IN SHOWER OF BULLETS

One prisoner escaped from the St. Paul workhouse at 8 o'clock this morning and another who tried to escape was caught. Both men were fired at by guards, but spectators who witnessed the shooting were not injured. The escapee was seen by a guard in the swamp and stood in his tracks firing wildly. The other prisoner ran down Como avenue to Front street, where he was captured by a telephone lineman. This man was also fired at several times. When the guard reached him he beat him almost into insensibility with the butt end of his revolver, according to the story told by onlookers.

MANY TROLLEY POLES BROKEN BY A RUN-AWAY

Local Salvation Army Records Supply Beginning and Closing Chapters—Montana Cow-Punchers Do the Middle and Stroumous Part of a Tale with Colt's 46s.

All the trolley poles on the Cedar avenue line, from Fifth street to Ninth, were broken down this noon by a runaway team. As the heavy team of horses rushed up the avenue one pole after another was struck and felled to the ground. Streetcar traffic was entirely suspended for some time. The accident is one of the most extraordinary that has ever occurred in the city. The driver, Peter Rasmussen, was thrown out at Sixth street and struck on the brick pavement with his head. He was unconscious when picked up and appeared to be badly hurt. Rasmussen is a farmer and dairyman at Twelfth avenue S and Fiftieth street.

LONDON BANKERS SEE MINNEAPOLIS' GROWTH

N. A. Simpson and C. C. Cripps, bankers of London, members of the London Stock exchange and identified with bond and investment affairs in the financial center, were in Minneapolis today, the guests of Henry L. Little. Both gentlemen are holders of the securities of the Pillsbury-Washburn company and Mr. Simpson, who visited Minneapolis about twenty years ago, is of the banking firm identified with the flotation of the new company at the time the Minneapolis flour mills of the Pillsbury-Washburn company were taken over by the English corporation. Messrs. Simpson and Cripps after landing went from New York to Montreal, to Toronto, thence to Winnipeg and Edmonton. Many things along the Canadian Pacific road and in western Canada impressed them as being of the surprise of it all awaited Mr. Simpson when he reached Minneapolis. So many had been the changes, so great the improvement and so evident the growth of the city that he was astounded. A visit was made to the mills and inspection of the plants and the waterpower and the new dam now being prepared for an increase of power, convinced Mr. Simpson that there is a much greater future before Minneapolis as a milling and manufacturing center. "English investors who bought the securities based upon your Minneapolis properties, at 90 for the bonds, and who secured the 8 per cent preference shares before Minneapolis was a well," said Mr. Simpson. "No bonds are now obtainable in the open market. There is a great deal of conservatism about English finance. Sometimes American investments made by Englishmen do not turn out so well, but from the success of the Pillsbury issues, the investment and stock exchange houses whose reputations depend upon their ability to handle funds safely have come to look upon Minneapolis milling property as sound basic material. Favorable reports of the growth of Minneapolis, carried away by visitors, who cannot fail to see it, will very materially."

WHOLESALE HOUSE GUTTED BY FLAMES

Fire nearly destroyed the plant and stock of the Central Supply company, 110-16 Third street S, early this morning and for a time several wholesale houses in the vicinity were threatened. The flames started in the rear of the first floor and spread rapidly to all parts of the building. Patrolman William McLeod was the first to see the blaze and turned in the alarm. When the department arrived the entire building was afire and the attention of the firemen was directed chiefly to saving the surrounding property which was in great danger.

COWBOY BULLETS REFORM A HOBO

Forty-five-caliber bullets, judiciously directed, were the means of making a valuable citizen out of Charlie Henderson.

It lacks just one week of being a year since Henderson strayed from his father's farm in Vermont, and completely "busted" in health, wealth and spirit by a too strenuous life of the west, drifted into the industrial home of the Salvation Army, a worn-out private from the army of industry. Various opportunities were offered him, but he failed to take them, seeming to lack the courage and energy essential to success. Forged into a corner and asked what he could and would do, Henderson feebly asserted that he was a farmer. Taking him at his word, Staff Captain J. H. Gooding secured employment for him on Berry brothers' ranch, fifty miles from Wibeaux, Mont. The captain lost track of him until today, when a visitor from Wibeaux told him the rest of Henderson's story.

Local Salvation Army Records Supply Beginning and Closing Chapters—Montana Cow-Punchers Do the Middle and Stroumous Part of a Tale with Colt's 46s.

Henderson was the tenderest of tenderhearts when he struck the ranch. The wild whoops and gunplay of the cowboys terrified him, and he would hide in the vegetable cellar when the boys were due to return from the range. This, and other things, might have been overlooked, but he refused to wash. The other men in the bunkhouse did not care if this was bad for Henderson's health, but when the neglect reached a stage where it interfered with their comfort, they remonstrated. "When your hair grows," was the command of the burly foreman, and he backed it with one of the biggest canons that ever traveled in a cowpuncher's holster. "To the Yellowstone, you gals! March! Strip, you bony! Grow in, you highly qualified yokel! Blank!" Shrinking from the unaccustomed contact of the water and wincing as the bullets whizzed by his ears, the victim proceeded with his ablutions to the accompaniment of the pistol-shots and profane comments of the foreman and his gang, who were executing a wardrobe about his burning garments. When the water was turned off, Henderson was "washed" and a heap and shot up a plenty," they allowed him to come out of the water and proceed to the bunkhouse, attired in a barrel.

Woods and Wins Widow.

This was the making of the man from the east. Shortly after, he left for the west for a job on the section at Wibeaux. His habit of cleanliness, acquired under fire, clung to him, and with it his self-respect increased. Casting his eye upon the only poor person in town, a widow with five children, he went a-wooing and won. The irate populace threatened tar and feathers, but Henderson, more of a man, stood his ground so firmly that the wedding was permitted to proceed and public opinion confined its manifestations to a shrill which was remain among the classic legends of the Yellowstone for many years.

Woods and Wins Widow.

Backed by his wife, Henderson slowly won the respect of the community. Today he is section foreman, has the neatest shack and the best-kept garden in the town, and is a leading member of the local church.
