METHODS USED IN ALSACE-LORRAINE

NINE-TENTHS OF THE PEOPLE ARE FRENCH AT HEART.

Ex-Police Officer Stephany's Book Creates a Sensation—Called "The Germanization of Alsace-Lorraine and German Police Methods"—Hundreds of People "Under Suspicion."

Geneva Correspondent Pall Mall Gazette.

Since the publication of Lieutenant Bilés' book, depicting the "inner" life of a German garrison town, no work has appeared which has created a greater sensation and interest in the Fatherland than a volume which has recently been republished at Zurich. The author is e-polic officer Stephany, who has held high and important post in Alsace-Lorraine for many years, and lately retired disgusted, as he says, with the servile of continuous spying.

"The Germanization of Alsace-Lorraine and German Police Methods" is divided into three parts. Herr Stephany starts by stating that in spite of every means of coercion, 90 per cent of the natives of Alsace-Lorraine are at heart French still. Altho the Berlin authorities may not be aware of this fact the police of the two provinces are perfectly cognizant of it, and the result is a system of spying, perhaps, without a parallel in Europe.

Very man, woman and child who crosses the frontier into France, whether on profit or pleasure, is in future a marked person; his (or her) name is put down in the black list as a suspect, and thenceforth every action of 46 person is watched and noted. Peasants, deputies and wealthy business men appear on the list, and the author gives many well-known names. "In the event of a general mobilization, these 'suspects' would," he says, "be promptly arrested, and either imprisoned or expelled from German territory."

The police and secret police on the Franco-German frontier are chosen from the smartest men in the service, and speak Parisian French or patois as required. They have examined the French fortresses closely, and know not only the strong and weak points of the French defense, but the number of guns, automobiles and pigeons in them.

Herr Stephany confirms a sensational item of news that made the tour of the European press some six years ago. He says that it is a fact that the Kaiser secretly visited the Paris exposition in 1900 for a political purpose. The ex-polic officer was one of those entrusted with the arrangements of the visit, and he adds that he has documents in his possession to prove this or any other fact mentioned in his book.

A NOVEL DEFENSE.

A bright Chicago attorney won a case for the defendant in a breach-of-promise suit recently by a clever piece of work.

Counsel for the fair plaintiff began to read what was alleged to be a proposal of marriage on the part of the defendant. It was written on a telegraph blank. Turning to the jury he began:

"My Darling Marie—"

Counsel for defendant here interrupted. "May it please the court," he said, "this document being partly printed and partly written, it cannot be read by the rules of evidence be offered in part, but must be read entire to the jury," printed matter as well as written.

Protestations by the counsel for plaintiff were of no avail and the court ordered the printed matter also read. Reluctantly counsel for the plaintiff then read as follows:

"There shall be no liability on account of this message unless the same be repeated and thereby on condition that the claim shall be made within thirty days in writing." Then came the proposal, closing, "Yours devotedly, Harry. N. B. Read carefully the conditions at the top."

To the delight of the counsel for defendant, the jury on retiring, returned a verdict in his favor within twenty minutes.

FARMING AS A BUSINESS TO PAY, IT MUST BE CARRIED ON UPON BUSINESS PRINCIPLES—HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

New York Tribune. With the rapid growth of population and the shifting of the center of gravity there have been constant changes in agricultural practices. A study of the world's history shows that while agriculture was the primary basis of wealth it has reached its highest development where most closely allied with the factory. No country can continue to be prosperous where agriculture is the sole industry. The farm and factory must go side by side in order to bring about the greatest progressive, intellectual and industrial development.

The States bureau of plant industry, states that the output from the factory now constitutes 65 per cent of this country's annual production of wealth, and coincident with this development the factories in a community there has been a corresponding increase in the value of farm lands, as well as in the products of the farms. The great era of manufacturing upon which this country is now entering is bound to have a beneficial effect upon agriculture, for, aside from the great possibilities of agricultural development, there is without reference to other industries, it is clear that as factories continue to increase in numbers and enlarge their output agriculture must necessarily grow to meet the conditions.

Nearly all of the best arable land of the country has now been taken up, and those who are most vitally concerned with the development of this country henceforth the main problem for the man who intends to make cultivation of the soil his occupation will be not so much a question of greater acreage, but of greater production from a given acre. If America hopes to continue her phenomenal development she must be able to produce not only the enormous quantities of food required for her own increasing industrial population, but a large share of the food for other nations as well.

The population of twenty of the largest eastern cities and their contributory territory will aggregate 15,000,000 persons. Both population and wealth are constantly increasing, and in consequence there is a growing demand for something more than the mere necessities of life. On account of the rapidly increasing demand for the products of the soil, a great deal is being said and written about farming as a vocation. Many inducements are being held out to city people and others, and many erroneous statements are being made as to the opportunities in this industry. Unquestionably there is need for pointing out the advantages of rural life, but, like all good things, the tendency sometimes is to carry the argument far, and this results in inducing many people to go into the country or to undertake farm life who are wholly unftted for the work. The city man is often misled by statements written by those not wholly conversant with the facts, and again by those who have interests at stake and who would directly benefit by inducing the prospective farmer to invest in land.

While the present day brings many opportunities in agriculture, farming is, like every other industry, a business, and must be approached in a business-like manner in order to insure success.

In the recent English parliamentary election a number of literary lights were chosen, including C. F. G. Masterman, the author of "The Dead End," and others who are well known in the literary world, and G. P. Cochrane, a Cambridge historian and writer on historical themes.

FOR NERVOUS PEOPLE DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS THE BEST NERVE TONIC.

A Michigan Mother Preserved to Her Family by This Wonderful Remedy.

When the blood is impoverished the nerves starve and neuralgia or something more serious swiftly follows. Nervous people are generally pale people. By supplying through the blood those vital elements that the nerves need, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have performed those remarkable cures that make it impossible for any nervous sufferer to neglect them with justice to himself.

A recent case is that of Mrs. Peter Morrisette, of No. 815 Eleventh street, Alpena, Mich., who writes as follows: "My trouble started with childbirth. After one of my children was born I had a kind of paralysis. I was very weak and my mouth was a little crooked. I was always tired and was so nervous that I could not hear a dog bark or a bell ring—even the little bird in its cage would annoy me. My heart fluttered a great deal and I had dizzy spells. I was not able to be left alone.

"My doctor gave me different kinds of medicine, changing it several times. When it was evident that he could not help me he said he did not understand my case. This was three years ago and I was very much discouraged when my brother, who had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, recommended them to me. I tried them and noticed a change for the better when I was taking the second box. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I have been well ever since. I now do all my own housework, sewing and washing for seven of us. I have recommended the pills to a number of people and am very glad to make this statement."

The fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured this stubborn case, as well as others more severe, leaves no doubt that they will cure lesser troubles arising from disordered nerves and lack of nerve force. They have also cured diseases caused by impure or impoverished blood such as rheumatism, anemia and after-effects of the grip.

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or the remedy will be mailed, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.
