Reliable men need not go without work in Minneapolis if they want it. The Twin City Rapid Transit company want an army of new motormen and conductors. "Steady work and good pay to good men" certainly means good times in Minneapolis.

He had placed the money in one of the rooms and says that the other man took it and hired a team to drive to Minneapolis. The police are looking for the thief.

The W. P. A. lines already have the desired form of transportation and the Soo has offered its own 5,000-mile books. The craft wants an interchangeable system on the lines of the interstate western roads and is securing assistance and indorsement of its plan from all interested sources. QUIT JOB AT CAPITAL RATHER THAN POLITICS
One of the state capital employees resigned today because of political activity at the command of his superiors. Captain Rouleau, an old soldier, employed as a watchman in the rotunda, is a republican, but an adherent of Mayor Smith, and has been doing some work among the French voters for Smith. Complaint was made by some republican workers against Rouleau's "pernicious activity" and he was ordered to stop political work. He resigned the other day, and this morning left the state employ.

FREAK MAIL COMES FROM CALIFORNIA

LETTERS RECEIVED SHOW PVERTY OF PEOPLE.

Minneapolis Postoffice Receives Hundreds of Pieces, Written on Every Imaginable Kind of Paper and With Anything that Will Make a Mark—Postage Collected Here.

Souvenirs of the San Francisco disaster are now being received in quantities at the Minneapolis postoffice in the form of scores of letters written by refugees to loved ones, telling of their escape from death.
The San Francisco postoffice was somewhat damaged by the earthquake, the main portion of the building was left intact. After the disaster the first rush of people to notify friends and relatives in other cities, of their welfare, was to the telegraph stations. Most of these were wrecked. Nearly all the wires were down, and the few in use for several days were largely monopolized by the government and for urgent messages, all personal telegrams being strictly limited. The local boards thought, the people hurried to the postoffice to mail messages, as the only other means of getting into communication with those in other parts of the country. The postoffice officials opened their hearts to the appeals and permitted the mailing of anything and everything, with or without postage.

Paper at a Premium.
Thousands of people who desired to send letters, possessed no money at the time for the purchase of stamps, and did not even have paper. More than 200 pieces of mail were received at the Minneapolis postoffice in the last twenty-four hours from San Francisco.

The letters, or rather notes, are written on ragged pieces of wrapping paper or cheap, plain white paper, folded and addressed. In a number of instances the notes were written on halves of envelopes, the address on one side, the communication on the other. "Burned out; lost everything; are camping on the beach," is the extent of one note written on half an envelope.

Uncle Sam Helps Out.
"We lined up and government officials gave us one sheet of paper each," says another letter, explaining how many of the writers were supplied with the scant material they had. Some of the communications are in ink, but most of them are in pencil.

After mailing, the tattered and odd-looking communications were evidently sorted on the mailcars in trains and there they are packed in the joint express cities to which they were destined to go. If mixed with the regular mail in loose form, few of the letters could have held together for their long trips. This kind of mail is not infrequently carried, on arriving in Minneapolis, is turned over to the "unsorted mail department," and the postage collected from the parties to whom the communications are addressed.
