It is with exclamations of delight that people passing the E. H. Moulton place on P Twenty-fourth street, pause and gaze in admiration at the magnificent tulips which crowd the garden. For several seasons the Moulton tulips have been really one of the spring sights of Minneapolis, but this year particularly the flowers are of rare beauty. Mr. and Mrs. Moulton are extremely fond of flowers, and the pride of the family is the exquisite collection of tulips.

From far off Holland came 20,000 tulip bulbs last fall, and they have sent forth blossoms of such rare beauty and wonderful coloring, that almost every person in town has made a pilgrimage to the Moulton garden to catch a glimpse of the gorgeous mass of bloom. Automobile parties from all over the city go to view the picture, and the pedestrians find it a spot of more than ordinary attraction. Even the school children are among the visitors, and almost every afternoon pupils make up parties with their teachers, to see what one does not often have an opportunity of glimpsing, 20,000 tulips in bloom. Mrs. Moulton supervises the planting of the tulips every year, for they are her special hobby, and later in the season when the time comes to exchange the tulips for other plants, she continues to plan for everything that goes to beautify the garden.

Once upon a time gardening was considered to be merely a fad among the society women, today it is almost as much of a duty as the daily financing of the household and the round of calls and entertainments. Few are the Minneapolis women who are not in some way interested in gardening. Truly, many of the women only supervise and plan their gardens, but even those who consume a great deal of thought and time, and the customary answer to a telephone call at this time of the year is "Mrs. X is out in the garden planting." Many of the Minneapolis women have fine flower gardens at their summer homes, Lake Minnetonka particularly is famous for its charming gardens and its fair gardeners. Mrs. Thomas Lowry and Mrs. R. R. Rand have beautiful summer homes at Monticello. Mrs. Lowry is constantly about her flower gardens and in the woods, and so fond is she of nature that not one of her large windows in the house is curtained from the vistas without. The house has high, broad windows, built for the purpose of giving an unbroken view of the beautiful sloping Minnesota land, the river and the ever-changing skies. The Rand country home is also one of these delightful places, where the mistress puts aside the formal mate, roses, of which Mrs. Partridge is especially fond, will fill a conspicuous place in the garden. Mrs. H. H. Kimball's rose garden is one of the famous spots during the month of June and July, and the mistress of the handsome home on Twenty-fourth street knows as much about rose culture as a specialist. Mrs. Kimball loves flowers, and her kitchen garden when in bloom is a sight worth seeing, for in it are planted all the old-fashioned blossoms which were known to grow in grandmother's garden. Mrs. E. G. Walton is another of the Minneapolis women who takes genuine reception at the Plaza, the hours for which will be from 11 to 12 o'clock. The Colonial Dames will discuss plans in regard to their society in the afternoon. Mrs. Cox will remain in St. Paul until Friday.

Mrs. Johanna Holtzermann-Madden, who has been in Cincinnati attending the May Festival, will return to Minneapolis the latter part of the week. Mrs. Holtzermann-Madden during her visit in Cincinnati has been entertained at a number of social affairs and many attentions were showered upon her. She met Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth at a buffet luncheon, which J. W. Schmidlapp gave for the Longworths at his beautiful home, Kirchheim, on the Grandin road, East Walnut Hills. Mr. Schmidlapp has been entertained at a party with Miss Roosevelt to the Philippines, and the affair which he

The Northwest's Greatest Store. St. Paul. Schuneman & Sons. Sixth and Wabasha St. Paul. Great Clearance Sale of Suits. Every Suit in stock on Sale Monday at 1/3 Off. Rarely indeed is such a sweeping reduction made so early in the season. Special preparations have been in progress for weeks to make this the most successful sale ever held here. Manufacturers' sample lines and surplus suit stocks have been secured and added to our already brilliant showing. These, of course, represent all the later designs which have received the stamp of approval of a critical public—and at one-third off are without a parallel. Most of these suits are light in weight and there are still many weeks in which they can be worn. There are Suits of Panama cloth in pearl gray, Alice blue, reseda, green, rose, coral, navy, black, brown, etc. There are also lots of the plain grays so popular this season, and hundreds of fancy mixtures—Worsted, Cashmeres and Tweeds—in every strictly new design. Note the display in our Sixth street windows as an index to the splendid values offered in the 1/3 off sale.
