

purse of twenty-five silver dollars. Rev. L. A. Wilsey for the people of North church presented a silver bread tray containing thirty-two silver dollars. The gift of the Thirteenth Avenue people was a beautiful set of solid silver knives, forks and spoons. The presents from individuals and friends at a distance are so many and valuable. At the close of the exercises refreshments were served by the young men and women of the church. Misses Anna and Olive Taylor presided at the frappe table.

B. Roberts, Hoyt Woodward and Robert Stanton entertained the Misses Marjorie Thayer, Lucille Good, and Alice Dalrymple at Shattuck school commencement exercises at Fairbault. Miss Helen C. Jones chaperoned the party.

Miss Katherine Crahen was guest of honor at a quilting bee last evening given by Mrs. William Mathers. Eight of the old friends of the bride were entertained and spent the evening quilting for the bride, whose wedding day has been set for Tuesday. Thursday evening Miss Crahen was entertained by Miss Callahan at the home of Mrs. John Woolsey, at a unique shower. The twelve guests were entertained with games and music. White snowballs contrasted effectively with green foliage in the decorations.

Monday evening the bridal dinner will be given at the home of Mrs. James Curtin.

Mrs. Pauline Curle was the guest of honor at a birthday party given by Mrs. Charles Curle at the home of the latter on Emerson avenue S. The rooms were decorated with wild roses and dainty refreshments were served.

The senior class of the North high school held a farewell party Friday at Minnetonka. A chartered car conveyed the young people to Excelsior, where the steamer Comp was draped in the class colors, blue and white, after a tour of the lake a number of the class stopped at Tonka Bay and indulged in an afternoon of roller skating. Those remaining on the boat were entertained with music by A. Carlson and the class songs were given. In the evening a picnic supper was served at Excelsior. The party was chaperoned by S. E. Wilkinson. All arrangements were made by Curtiss Smith.

Mrs. R. Beteher entertained at a charming children's party Saturday in honor of her daughter Evelyn's birthday anniversary. Flags and spring flowers made a setting in the living room and in the library. The birthday cake had eleven small figures, each flag representing a year, and they were presented to the guests as favors. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Master June Herchemer entertained twelve of his little friends Thursday afternoon at a rose party in honor of Miss Mabel C. Kennerson has gone to Fairbault to spend a few days with relatives and friends. Miss Josephine Boardman possesses strong domestic tastes and is an intellectual and cultured young woman. She has been greatly and justly admired.

Senator Crane bids fair to become known as the present day 'great pacifier.' He is on friendly terms with more senators than any other man in the senate, on either side of the flag. The democrats like him almost as well as the republicans. He rarely has anything to say from his seat, but in the brief period of his senatorial service he has already become one of the influential men in the upper house.

There is no doubt that the European journey of Representative and Mrs. George Boardman, accompanied by their son, will be the memorable tour of the orient about which the United States and its dependencies are so full of wonder and interest.

Special to The Journal.

Washington, June 9.—Mr. and Mrs. William J. Boardman if this city, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Josephine Porter, to Senator Winthrop Murray Crane of Massachusetts.

Miss Josephine Boardman enjoys a social popularity of an unusual degree in this city, where her parents maintain such a splendid home and are prominent not only socially but in all things that stand for the good of the District of Columbia and its citizens. Senator Crane is a widower, in his fifty-third year. He is the son of Z. M. Crane, whose father, Zilas Crane, founded in 1801, the paper manufacturing business now directed by the senator. His birthplace was in Boston, Mass. At 17 he left school to begin business life as a rag picker, the lowest position in paper manufacture. After working up through all the grades of the business he was made superintendent of a large mill in Dalton, and afterward was admitted to partnership in his family's firm. He has been lieutenant governor of Massachusetts one term, and governor of that state for two terms. On Oct. 13, 1904, he was selected to fill the unexpired term of George F. Hoar, deceased, which will expire next August. The wedding day is not yet determined upon.

Miss Josephine Boardman's sister, Mrs. Boardman, accompanied Mrs. Longworth to the Philippines, and was for some time her constant companion, but of late, Miss Josephine Boardman, the younger sister, has been more with relatives and friends. Miss Josephine Boardman possesses strong domestic tastes and is an intellectual and cultured young woman. She has been greatly and justly admired. Senator Crane bids fair to become known as the present day 'great pacifier.' He is on friendly terms with more senators than any other man in the senate, on either side of the flag. The democrats like him almost as well as the republicans. He rarely has anything to say from his seat, but in the brief period of his senatorial service he has already become one of the influential men in the upper house.

and has generously given several handsome cups, so it admits men who will pass to have him among the summer residents.

The engagement has been announced in San Francisco of Midway Victor Nicholson Metcalf, son of the secretary of commerce and labor and Mrs. Metcalf, to Miss Marie Lucille Butters, daughter of the late Hon. Henry A. Butters, prominent residents of that city.

Miss Butters is a graduate of one of the fashionable finishing schools of New York, and is a great favorite in her set in Oakland. Mr. Metcalf is the younger son of Secretary and Mrs. Metcalf, and is so popular, particularly among his naval associates. The wedding, so it is announced from San Francisco, will not take place for a year yet.

Also many well-known persons are in the city, as evidenced by the informal assemblages at the Chevy Chase club, the entertaining that has made the season one of note is a thing of the past, and many houses still open are ready for the drawn blinds and boarded doors which give Washington in summertime the appearance of a city asleep.

As mid-June approaches, the real business of the summer resorts begins, and one hears familiar names as hosts and guests at Bar Harbor, Narragansett Pier, and the north shore of Massachusetts, which has lately become a favorite rendezvous.

The present season is remarkable for the number of guests who will pass the summer in Europe. Among the wayfarers, none will be followed in their journeys with a keener interest than Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth. Possibly no woman of her years has had a more varied experience as a traveler, and it takes one hears from her erstwhile follow-voyagers be true, few have a greater facility for making themselves agreeable under the stressful circumstances which are liable to beset even the most favored.

Among other sailing recently were Mrs. Elkins, the most elegant hosts at Nauheim, Germany. The return is set for the late fall.

Mr. Justice and Mrs. Brown also go over for an indefinite stay, and for this time until the 1st of July the exodus will continue.

Mrs. Hosley, wife of Commander Harry Herbert Hosley, at present in command of the expedition that is conveying the dry dock Dewey to the Philippines, left the city during the week for the Blue Ridge mountains. Mrs. Hosley and her daughter, Miss Genevieve, will go to Osterville, Mass., for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Westinghouse of Pittsburgh, who are expected back from Europe in a few weeks, will go to Genoa and occupy Parkside Park. The rose garden at Parkside, which was established a few years ago, has come to splendid maturity and is one of the features of the fine estate.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Foster, whose retirement from Washington society on account of mourning, during the past season, has been a great loss, as they are among the most elegant hosts at the capital, are about to close their residence on Eighteenth street, and go to their home at Henderson Harbor, where in company with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lansing, and their children, and Mrs. Dulles, they will spend the summer abroad.

Miss Nora Hoy arrived from Europe on Tuesday and is the guest of Miss Ethel Robeson. Miss Hoy will make a round of visits among her friends in this country and in England, and will sail for China, where she goes to stay with her sister, Mrs. Rogestvensky, whose husband has but recently been appointed first secretary of the embassy in China.

Miss Hoy is being extensively entertained while in Washington. Many friends in this city will be interested in hearing that Pierre Botkin, formerly secretary of the Russian embassy in this city, has been transferred from Brussels to the embassy at London. M. Botkin was a great social favorite here, and his wife, who was Miss Frances Peyton, was one of the most popular girls in Washington society.

Jerome Bonaparte will not go to Europe this summer as has been his custom, but will remain in Washington for the greater part of the warm season, making occasional visits to friends in Newport, Bar Harbor, and other northern resorts.

Edward H. Ozmun of St. Paul, American consul at Stuttgart, Germany, is spending some time at the Normandie, in this city.

To tone down, reduce, beautify the face, use Satin skin powder. Four cents. Only 25c.

However, as the etiquette of the court demands a décollete bodice, some distinct alterations will have to be made if the cut is to be in duty on the occasion of the presentation.

The Russian ambassador and Baroness Rosen were the hosts at one of the most distinguished as well as memorable dinners given in Washington for the entertainment in honor of the Japanese Ambassador and Countess Aoki. Although the war in the east has been over for nearly a year, and diplomatic relations between the two warring countries resumed after the signing of the treaty at Portsmouth, nevertheless this dinner marks the first resumption of social intercourse between the diplomatic representatives of the czar and the mikado, so that it had more than ordinary significance. The Countess Aoki was confined to the embassy on account of illness, so was unable to be present at the dinner. The guests were almost wholly made up from the higher diplomats at present in the city, together with the other members of the Japanese mission, the Japanese Ambassador and Countess Aoki. The ball already referred to will in all likelihood be a real housewarming, as by the time it comes off Dorchester house will have passed definitely into the hands of the American ambassador. The latest information to hand is that there is some doubt as to Mrs. Longworth's visit in June, an event for which the great festivity was in the first instance arranged. However, I have it on the best authority that the hostess means to take up her place as a leader of society this season. Already her invitations are out for a succession of dinner dances. At these, there will be in the elder guests, the option of playing bridge in the exquisite new card-room which is one of the features of the house unlike all the rest, for it is in eastern style, and contains the most beautiful Chinese and Japanese things, and is correct in every detail.

MRS. REID'S PATRIOTISM MAKES BRITISH PEEVISH

American Ambassador's Wife Lets English Friends Know How Proud She Is of Her Country—Many Englishmen Eager to Marry Her Pretty Daughter.

LONDON, May 19.—Everyone here is talking of the great ball which Miss Whitelaw Reid intends to give at Dorchester house in the height of the London season, namely, the end of June. Now that people are beginning to understand the ambassador's wife, they are growing to like her better, but just at first, she was regarded as far too exclusive for an American. The English like Americans to be, so to speak, "half-fellow-well-met." Even her most intimate friend could not apply this definition to Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and the English resented her frigidity.

Another thing English people say of Mrs. Reid is that at all her parties, whether at West Park or Dorchester house, the American element is perpetually to the fore. The stars and stripes are, figuratively speaking, always fluttering in the air of her visitors; it is absolutely impossible to get away from them. Then again she is everlastingly comparing English ways and English customs with American and always to the detriment of the former. Never was there a more patriotic American woman than she is.

There are heaps of titled would-be suitors for the hand of her pretty little daughter, but they receive no encouragement from Mrs. Reid, whose heart is centered on Miss Reid's marrying a man of her own nationality.

The arrangements for the sale of Dorchester house by its owner, Colonel Holford, to Mr. Reid are now almost complete. Of all the millionaire's abodes in Park Lane, there is not one more magnificent in architecture. Just now, with Whitelaw Reid's fortune behind it, it is looking majestic; comfort gleams from every window; daintiness and refinement are everywhere, and a wealth of color and flowers attract the eye of every passerby, while above all flutters the United States flag.

The ball already referred to will in all likelihood be a real housewarming, as by the time it comes off Dorchester house will have passed definitely into the hands of the American ambassador. The latest information to hand is that there is some doubt as to Mrs. Longworth's visit in June, an event for which the great festivity was in the first instance arranged. MRS. R. BETEHER, Who Will Spend the Summer Traveling in Europe.

Ms seventh birthday anniversary. Games and a rose hunt were enjoyed on the lawn, followed by a dainty rose luncheon. Tall silver candlesticks adorned in pink and a centerpiece of wild roses adorned the table. The birthday cake, with its pink tapers and garland of rosebuds, held the place of honor. The lilies appeared in small flower jars, each holding a tiny rose bush. The favors were little rose-colored baskets of pink and white candies. The little guests were: Marion and Martha Irwin, Judd Flory, Ferno Wright, Janet Dyer, Searle Valentine, Ted Andrews, Perry and Raymond Laraway, Myrabelle McDonald, Pauline and Harold Hewitt.

Mrs. T. E. Mathers entertained the playmates of her son, Verne, Friday afternoon in honor of his seventh birthday anniversary. Outdoor and indoor games were played. Each boy received a sailing boat as a memento of the occasion. Among those present were: Albert Peppard, Harold Danforth, Clarence Munzer, Nathan Stearn, Donald Blake, Irvin Stair, Guy Laybourn, Pearsall and Harry Evans, Edgar Johnson, Benno Bowmen and Earl Gansle. The decorations were in red and white and a large basket of the carnations was on the luncheon table.

Mrs. S. O'Connell was agreeably surprised at her home, 3519 Thirty-third avenue S., Thursday evening, by fifty of her friends and members of Ivy lodge of Rebekahs, in honor of her birthday and installation as incoming noble grand. The guests took complete possession of her home and decorated it with carnations and wreaths. Cards and other games were played and luncheon was served. Several piano numbers were given. The guests presented Mrs. O'Connell with a silver tea set.

Wilbur Coper was surprised Friday evening. Games occupied the evening and light refreshments were served. Those present were: Misses Iris Dames, Tena Hartman, Hazel Frich, Gertrude Wells, Florence Wells, Gertrude Davis, Ruth Johnson, Gertrude Johnson, Edna Rooney, Clara Hartman, Mary Duryea, Jennie Cooper, Nissa Cooper, Messrs. Harry Brant, Jesse Brant, Earl Rooney, Harley Davis, Herman Hartman, Roy Westworth, Wilbur Cooper, Buster Cooper and Kenneth Duryea.

A Pupils' Recital. An interesting recital was given by the pupils of Mrs. Harriet Walker Runyan Friday evening in Metropolitan hall. The following program was presented: "Concert piece" (Mrs. von Weber), Miss Ethel Payne, Mrs. Runyan at the second piano; "Sonata op. 87" (Beethoven), Eva Wilkinson; "Battle of Spring" (Sinding), Helen Cobb; "Murmuring Zephyrs" (Gosset); May Kenkel; duet, "Parade March" (Low), Marie Heywood and Mrs. Runyan; overture to "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Benel Mendelssohn), Bernice Barnes; "Barcarols in F Minor" (Rubenstein); "Poupee Valante" (Poldini), Eva Wilkinson; "Espanole" (Moskowsky), Ethel Payne; "Carnival" (Grieg), Madeline Holter; "Military March" (Schubert-Tausig), Bernice Barnes, Mrs. Runyan at second piano. Mrs. P. D. Sherwin and Miss Wilson assisted with songs.

Pertinent Personalities. Miss Celie White, who has been spending the winter in Italy, sailed for home last week on account of the accident with which she was married. Mrs. A. White of St. Paul, met with during the week while out driving.
