A frame filecase of forty shelves was consumed. The heat was so intense that steel shelves nearby were warped and melted, and solder ran down in streams to the floor. Saturday the floor in the oilroom was oiled. It is probable some lint from the oily cloths accumulated under the one frame flecase in the room, and there ignited by spontaneous combustion. CONSULTING LABOR SITUATION BECOMING ACUTE

DEMANDS FOR MEN IN EXCESS OF SUPPLY.

Railroad and Other Contractors Exhaust Available Supply and Farmers Will Soon be in Market for Harvest Hands -Crew Foremen Hire Laborers Independently of Agencies.

With a scarcity of nearly all kinds of labor in the market today, employment agencies are wondering what will happen at harvest time. If all the grain planted in North Dakota comes to harvest, it is said there will not be enough men to take care of it. Inasmuch as the prosperity of the railroads of the northwest, and of Minneapolis, depends on the saving of the grain at harvest time, the future is already causing some worry.

"You can't make it too strong that we need men in this market," said an employment agency man today. "Men are needed in railroad work and we can't get them. The average wage for company work is $1.75 a day, while railroad contractors are paying $2 a day. If anything over that amount is offered. If anything over that amount is offered it is presumable that the work is unusual. For instance, a contractor has offered $2.25 for work in Wisconsin, but I found that it was a place where men had to to work up to their hips in the mud. Trick of Contractors.

"It is reported that common labor commands $2 to $2.50 at Duluth, and that men are not easy to find there at those figures. That may be true, but it is often a play of labor contractors to get out such newspaper articles to head a lot of men in their direction and head a lot of men in their direction and then they will pay them only what they have to, because with a resulting con-gested market wages necessarily drop." This is the season between hay and grass with labor. The spring lumber work is over and the fall harvest has not begun. Between June 15 and July 15 it is nectively and

TECHNICALITY OF LAW

The steeten June 15 and July 15 it is pretty hard to get a lot of good men to work. If they have a little money to spend they will lay off for a while. Another class which is not working is the "bum" class.
Several causes contribute to the present scarcity of labor, beside the immense amount of work that is under way. The street railway company is hiring hundreds of men for revision and betterment work, the city has a long pay roll for summer work, and so has the park board. Great crowds of men that would have been available this summer have gone to the Pacific coast and will not be back for several seasons, and Canada has made heavy draft on the northwest for labor. Thus, with any number of men taking their vacations, the cause of the shortage is easily figured.

A gang of Austrians, who are the most independent among the laboring people, was offered $1.50 in St. Paul yesterday, with transportation, cook pay, free cars and coal, but they demanded $2, which the agent refused to agree to. It is probable that some contractor will take them at their price, however, so close is the competition.

A contingency now in sight to bother the railroad contractor is the farmer, with his offer of high wages. The farmer is sometimes so hard put for harvest help that he will drive to a railway camp and take men from under the nose of the boss, by the offer of higher wages.

The special demand for labor just now is for the railroads, which are making heavy improvements in the northwest and building new lines.

DOCTOR SAVED LIFE

Hurried Mite of a Baby to Incubator Institute.

The infant incubator institute at Wenderland park last summer had several cases that bordered on the sensational. There was the baby that broke the world's record for feather-weights, tipping the scales at one pound five ounces. Then there was a pair of diminutive twins and a baby that was born on a sleeping car.

Thus far this season there have been no incubator incidents of an unusual character. One case, however, is in-teresting especially to the medical fra-ternity. It is that of a boy received a week ago that weighs two pounds and ten ounces now. It is a very small baby, and its life is due to a physi-cain's forethought and promptness. The baby was on the way to the in-cubator as fast as an automobile could take it within one hour after birth, and the little fellow has thrived splen-

This case furnishes a good illustra-tion of the course to be taken when the aid of the incubator is sought to overcome the slights of nature. Even a day's delay would have been fatal. There are now five babies at the institute, two of them having graduated to the nursery.

Special to The Journal.

Denver, Col., June 18.—The annual meeting of the Swedish Lutheran Augustana synod, now in session here, has a larger attendance of delegates than any since 1894. It was expected that merely a handful would go so far west, but the desire to see the great west and the low rates on all roads to Denver, together with the interest in the questions of the church, have brought an unprecedented number of delegates from the different parts of America. Nearly every regularly elected delegate from Minnesota, both lay and clerical, is on hand. The Augustana synod has about 300,000 members, more than 1,000 congregations and 550 pastors.

Nothing has been left undone by the gates. Their homes have been opened and arrangements have been made for seeing the beautiful city under the most pleasant circumstances.

The series of entertainments will end with an excursion by a special train over the famous Georgetown loop. Smaller parties will later go to Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak.

The Northwestern National's New Policies.

The Northwestern National Life Insurance Company presents its new policies as the foremost exponent of what is best in life insurance. These policies are modeled after the standard contracts recently adopted by the New York legislature. They embody all worthy recommendations resulting from the recent life insurance investigation.

The Company's policies include in a limited number of forms all that is desirable in life insurance. They are submitted to the insurance public in concise and unmistakable language, as fixing the standard for insurance simplicity, liberality, directness and freedom from restrictions and technicalities.

All policies provide for an annual accounting after the third year, and give the insured a choice of five different ways of applying his annual dividends, covering all the options advised in the Armstrong legislation, and one attractive option in addition. The Company's dividend plan will rank as the most complete and exhaustive plan of annual accounting and distribution of dividends offered on the insurance market.

All policies are automatically non-forfeitable after three full premiums have been paid. They contain as surrender value concessions, besides the non-forfeitable provision for a paid-up policy, options for extending the insurance.

Cash loans on the policies may be obtained as early as the end of the second year.

A grace of thirty days is allowed on the payment of every pre-

Cash loans on the policies may be obtained as early as the end of the second year.

A grace of thirty days is allowed on the payment of every premium after the first.

The policies provide a simple method of designating a beneficiary to be either revocable or irrevocable. In making a beneficiary irrevocable, under this Company's policies, no question can arise as to the rights of any creditor by reason of a change of beneficiary privilege being construed to make a policy part of an estate. Where a beneficiary named is designated as revocable, change of beneficiary can be effected at any time by application to the Company, provided the policy is not assigned.

The policies are absolutely free of conditions as to residence, occupation or travel.

No extra premium is required for military or naval service in time of war or peace.

No extra premium is required for military or naval service in time of war or peace.

After one year the policy is absolutely incontestable except for non-payment of premiums.

In paying claims under the policies the Company grants beneficiaries choice of the three methods of settlement recommended by the Armstrong Committee.

First. The beneficiary can allow the money to remain with the Company at interest at 3½ per cent, and have the original sum payable to the beneficiary's legal representative or assigns.

Second. The Company will pay the claim in equal annual installments at the beginning of each year for a period of ten, fifteen or twenty years, and for the amounts written in the policies under the option.

Third. The Company will pay a fixed installment at the end of each year, for a period of twenty years, and as many years longer as the beneficiary shall survive, for the amounts set forth in the contract.

in the contract.

The beneficiary may, in place of any of these options, have the full amount due under the policy paid immediately upon acceptance of satisfactory proofs of the death of the insured.

The immediate payment of claims is another feature of the Company's policies.

The immediate payment of claims is another feature of the Company's policies.

Besides giving in simple language the terms and conditions of the insurance, the Company plainly prints in its policies a table of the loan, paid-up insurance and extended insurance values available under each contract. Figures also appear which exhibit the various settlement options, whereby instead of one sum payable at the death of the insured, payment may be had by accepting one of the several installment privileges.

The new Northwestern National policies are designed to be the most liberal, most up-to-date, and simplest forms of contract on the market. By their unmistakable terms they satisfy the holder and make sure provision for support and comfort in later life, or for the care of loved ones in the event of death.
