Among the Clubs.
The Federation of Women's clubs of Kansas City, Mo., is determined to make Kansas City clean and tidy. The city has been divided into districts, with a woman at the head of each district. These district superintendents have appointed women to look after each two blocks. Not only will these women report all violations of the street-cleaning ordinances that come under their observation and report the obstruction of streets, failure to remove garbage and similar delinquencies on the part of the people in the two-block subdivisions, but they will call meetings of the women in each of these subdivisions. At these meetings will be discussed for the beautification of the blocks, the trimming of trees, growing of flowers, etc., and these little clubs will exercise a general supervision over the subdivisions.
The women's clubs have undoubtedly been a prominent factor in making the new state of Oklahoma what it is at the present time and will continue to be an important factor in its greatness. Mrs. A. C. Scott of Stillwater, Okla., is the president of the line of successors. Mrs. Selwyn Douglas of Oklahoma City and Mrs. J. C. Roberts of Enid, Okla., having preceded her. She has done excellent work in continuing the efforts of her predecessors and inaugurating new work. Since she became president the legislature has passed a bill providing for the care and education of child criminals apart from older prisoners, an annual appropriation of $5,000 securing the necessary teachers and buildings. The women will circulate subscription blanks industriously this summer.
