

FAVORITE FANCIES IN FASHIONABLE FURS

Models That Will Prevail in Minneapolis and Paris Next Winter—O. E. Albrecht of E. Albrecht & Son Talks Interestingly of the New Things in Furs.

"Whole skin effects, head and tail trimmings in neckwear, and the jaunty 'pony' coats are possibly the most noticeable new things in furs," said O. E. Albrecht to a Journal representative today.

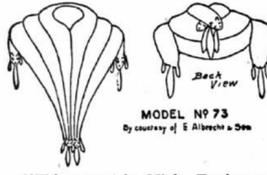

Mr. Albrecht picked up a very handsome mink neckpiece, saying: "Here is something that promises to be extremely popular. We call this Albrecht Model 77. It is of animal skins in their natural state, has fur on both sides, and has the head and tail trimmings that I told you were going to be a feature of the season."

"We make this in genuine Mink and Ermine at $75.00, and it is extremely effective in Blended and Russian Sables."

"Now here is another typical 1907 style, the favorite Russian shawl collar, satin lined, which has been improved by the season's fancy for head and tail embellishments. This is known as Albrecht Model 78."

"This comes in Mink, Ermine and other popular furs."

"Muffs! Oh, yes! There are some new things under the Empire and Pillow will still be much favored. The new 'Saddle' shape is liked by many."

"This 'Pony' coat is a striking little thing that we are making in a great variety of furs."

"We have it with fancy embroidered vest; plain soutache braid trimmed; or with the Paris fancy of gold and green. New York leaders of fashion have about decided that the elbow or three-quarter sleeve in fur is not to be worn. I don't think it will be in demand, anyway, in our colder Northwestern air, though we are making some novelties with this sleeve."

"Here is a Paris idea that I think pretty well of. It is called the 'Parment' sleeve, and you will notice is lined below the elbow with the same fur as the outside, and can be turned back to form a three-quarter sleeve with deep, flaring cuff."

"The standard sleeve is a leg-of-mutton shape, something like last year, but with a bit more freedom between elbow and wrist."

"On the whole, garment styles show few radical changes in neckwear, as I said, the whole skin or 'animal' effect, with head, tail and paw trimmings, is the feature."

"Cold weather would help us, you say? As much as you suppose. It's fashionable to wear furs, and very few women care to appear singular, as nearly all now have at least a few handsome fur-pieces in their wardrobe."

"You may be surprised to know that we are very busy, even on these hot days, remodeling sealskin and other garments."

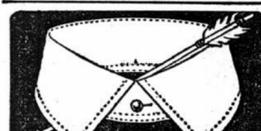

"And, by the way, it is remarkable that there are yet a number of people who put off having repairs and remodeling done until so late in the fall that the rush of new orders necessitates annoying delays, and even the possibility of our being obliged to refuse the work entirely."

"It would be so much to their advantage to have the work done now."

In answer to a question Mr. Albrecht stated that the new building of the St. Paul house, on Sixth and Minnesota streets, would probably be occupied about the middle or latter part of August.

Mrs. Bostwick Celebrates Ninety-Second Birthday

FOUR GENERATIONS. Mrs. Eliza Bostwick (92 Years of Age), Mrs. Frank G. O'Brien, Edward J. O'Brien and His Sons Kenneth and Lowell.

The ninety-second birthday anniversary which Mrs. Eliza Bostwick celebrated today, finds her frail in body, but in mind as active and as much imbued with the undaunted pioneer spirit as when she first came to the city of Minneapolis in 1850. She has watched Minneapolis grow from a mere reservation to the present size, and St. Anthony from 250 to a great section of the larger city; she has lived thru the Indian horrors; refused the early pioneer in succoring refugees, and now in a quiet and peaceful old age she lives over the old times. Mrs. Bostwick, then Eliza Kennedy, was born in Wexford, Ireland, but her early life was spent in London. When 25 she came to America and engaged in business in Toronto, Can. There she met and married N. Bostwick. Mr. Bostwick first lived in St. Anthony on Second avenue between Main and Second streets. The street was then known as Oak street. Later, they moved to Minneapolis and made their home on the site of the George B. Newell building. Since that time Mrs. Bostwick has been at her present home, 917 Fifth avenue S.

About a year and a half ago Mrs. Bostwick fell and broke her hip, which has never healed, so she is confined to her chair, and has a nurse in attendance. Her mind, however, has lost no power. She is as voracious a reader as she has always been, and one finds her as ready to converse on the latest fiction as on the old masters. Mrs. Bostwick is a member of the Monday club, a society of writers, and the Writers' league. Before age made it impossible Mrs. Bostwick was active in philanthropic work. One of her particular interests was the home for old ladies and children. Beside her daughter, Mrs. F. G. O'Brien, her grandson and two great-grandchildren, Mrs. Bostwick has a grandniece living in the city, Mrs. V. H. Graedel, another daughter, Mrs. H. A. Nott, lives in Toledo, Ohio. Mrs. Bostwick has two grandnieces now live in Germany, Bessie McDonnell, who married the scientist, Dr. Rudolph Crechtern von Hirsch, and her sister, Anna McDonald, who married Baron Ferdinand Schrottenberg.

Today, in spite of the inclement weather, many friends which Mrs. Bostwick made in early days, as well as those she has become attached to as she grew older, called at the O'Brien home. Each member of the Ladies of the Territorial Pioneers carried a flower to Mrs. Bostwick. In honor of the occasion Mrs. Bostwick has composed a quatrain: "May joy and peace be ever thine, And love enthroned thee in its shrine; May blessings rich attend thy stay; Till scenes of earth shall pass away."

Each guest received a card from Mrs. Bostwick on which the lines were engraved. Assisting Mrs. Bostwick and Mrs. O'Brien in receiving were Misses D. H. Wright, J. A. Harris, E. D. Button and Misses Alice Clifton of Oak Center have been spending a few days with Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Swain at Excelsior. Mrs. E. H. Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Edith Mary Pickburn of London, England, and William Y. Clute of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fretter, assisted by officers and Knights of Pythias, received last evening in the Knights of Pythias hall, in Masonic Temple, in celebration of their golden wedding. They were married fifty years ago in Ridgeville, Iowa, the birthplace of Mrs. Fretter. The aged couple, both of whom are over 70, occupied seats on the platform, which was effectively arranged with palms and fragrant blossoms. Dr. Phillips, president of the Pythian Veterans; Arthur L. Jones, J. H. Hyser and Fred Wheaton told of how they helped Mr. and Mrs. Fretter to celebrate their twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. Mrs. Drew Blymyer gave a soprano solo and Professor Hill contributed a reading. Mrs. A. W. Force presided over the frappe bowl, which was set in a nest of fragrant sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Fretter entered into the spirit of the evening with greater gaiety and freedom than many younger people. Mr. Fretter came to America from England when he was 4 years old. Ten years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Fretter came to Minneapolis, where they have lived ever since. Their children, Mrs. E. B. White sweet peas tied with white tulle marked the place of the bride. The guests numbered fourteen.

Railroads POSTS UP ON RATE LAW

NORTH-WESTERN PRESIDENT CALLS IN COMPANY ATTORNEYS TO GIVE INSTRUCTIONS ON FINE POINTS. Officials attending the conference report that the time is exceedingly short to prepare for a strict observance of the law and in order to approximate the result, some fast work must be done, as the law becomes effective Sept. 1. Both traffic officials and the legal advisers go over each section and give their interpretation, and from their opinions a circular will be prepared for distribution throughout the system. Among other questions to be determined is whether or not any of the present practices of the railroads is an infraction of the new law. As in the case of the Elkins law, an effort will be made to obtain court rulings upon the mooted questions.

Large advertisement for Fels-Naptha soap. Text: "The only part of Fels-Naptha soap that can be imitated is the name." "Every now and then, we hear of a woman who cheats herself out of all the special benefits of Fels-Naptha soap. By using it,—not in the Fels-Naptha way, but in the way her ancestors used ordinary laundry soap. She boils the clothes, she stirs them with a stick, she rubs them nearly threadbare—which is all wrong! Perhaps she adds a little washing-powder, or something,—which is very wrong. Her explanation, for all this unnecessary trouble and work, is—'It's the way I learned to wash.' In all probability, she learned to wash before Fels-Naptha was invented; for Fels-Naptha is one of the modern time and labor-saving inventions. Now, with Fels-Naptha soap, you don't boil the clothes; there's no red-hot fire and steaming suds in the Fels-Naptha way. You don't do any back-breaking washboard labor. You simply rub Fels-Naptha soap on the clothes, put them in the tub, just covered with water and let them stay there for thirty minutes. In this half hour, Fels-Naptha does everything that boiling and hard rubbing can do and does it better. The woman who once does a wash with Fels-Naptha soap, according to the directions on the wrapper, will never go back to the before-Fels-Naptha-was-invented way of washing. Insist on getting the soap in the red and green wrapper." Illustration of a woman washing clothes and a man (Chawley) holding a bar of soap. Text: "Chawley Wants Anty Drudge's Daughter's Hand. Chawley—'Mrs. Drudge, I came to seek your daughter's hand.' Anty Drudge—'You did, did you? Well, you'll find it in the kitchen—hugging a bar of Fels-Naptha and taking a stain out of its owner's party frock.'" "All grocers sell Fels-Naptha soap. Fels-Naptha is as far superior to the imitation as gold is to brass." Fels-Naptha logo and address: WEINGARTEN BROS., Makers, 377-379 Broadway, N. Y.
