SANGERBUND GIVES FINAL GRAND CONCERT

The closing concert of the sangerbund in the St. Paul Auditorium last evening was a brilliant climax to one of the most successful seasons.

Theodore Kelbe, the director of the Bundes, was given an ovation for the mastery with which he led his great chorus, without the slightest heaviness or dragging of tempo.

The audience was large and singers and directors were given the most cordial reception.

July 2,000 singers were seated on the stage and when the orchestra opened the program with "Star Spangled Banner," and the singers and the great audience arose, the scene was inspiring.

Mrs. Fleming, Robert Blass and Daniel Beddoe were the soloists, and sang as well as could be expected in such an immense space.

At the afternoon concert the chorus of children's voices delighted everyone and the fresh, youthful voices carried well.

A strong feature of the afternoon was the big chorus composed of the Norwegian singers from the Fram and Nordmaendens societies of St. Paul and the Dovre and Nordmaendens societies of Minneapolis.

The soloists were Mrs. Rider-Kelsey, Daniel Beddoe and Claude Cunningham. This morning there will be a business meeting in the hall at St. Paul, at which the new officers will be elected.

BUILDING FIGURES GREAT

Journal Cadet on Hero Roll

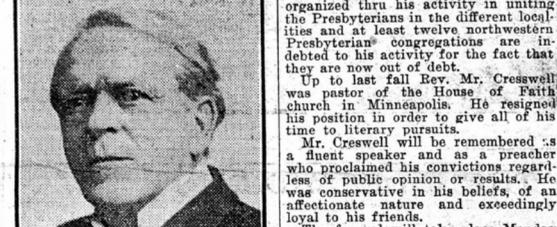

FRANCIS BARRETT, Journal Cadet, and his sister Esther, whose life he saved.

It was a wonderful thing for a boy 13 years old to do. It required bravery and presence of mind. "I tell you," says Captain Barrett, "I believe that it was the military drill that had something to do with it. I have watched Francis since he began to drill and the exercise seemed to quicken him both physically and mentally.

VETERAN PASTOR DEAD

REV. R. J. CRESWELL, Who Died July 26 at Delhi, Minn.

Rev. R. J. Creswell, who died Thursday, was well known in Minneapolis, where he had resided for the last twenty-three years.

A wife and five children survive Rev. Mr. Creswell, his children being, Rev. Thaddeus S. Creswell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Pomona, Calif.; Dora T. Creswell, a teacher in the Minneapolis schools; Dr. Willis W. Creswell, Delhi, Minn.; Mrs. Mack Smith of Kinbrae, Minn.; and Harry Creswell, a lawyer at Prescott, Wis.

Rev. Mr. Creswell's 62 years were strenuous. He was graduated from Westminster college, Pennsylvania, and the United Presbyterian church seminary at Newberg, N. Y.

Rev. Mr. Creswell's early life was given over to educational work, and at the close of the war he worked among the freedmen at Knoxville, Tenn., returning east to accept a position as principal of Andes academy, New York.

He was the author of several books, among them "Breakneck," "Who Slew All These?" and "Among the Sioux." This last work has been published only a short time but the first edition is nearly exhausted.

A NEW FACTOR MAKES FOR CULTURE IN CITY

TWO LEADING CONSERVATORIES HAVE CONSOLIDATED.

Miss Evers of Stanley Hall Announces that the Northwestern Conservatory of Music Has Consolidated with that of Her Institution Under the Name of the Former.

Another important stride in the advance of Minneapolis as the musical center of the north-west, marked by the announcement made this week by Miss Evers, principal of Stanley hall, of the consolidation of the Northwestern and Stanley Hall conservatories—to be known in future as the Northwestern Conservatory of Music, Art and Expression.

What this will mean to the city in increased musical advantages is easy to forecast, since the past of both conservatories is available to reckon from—twenty-one years in the case of the Northwestern, sixteen years in that of Stanley Hall.

Any musical enterprise undertaken privately has come to be of genuine interest to all the better class of citizens, who recognize in every such step another sign of progressive conditions, since the permanent growth and development of a region is always attended by such evidence of culture.

The consolidation of the Northwestern and Stanley Hall conservatories will be at once recognized by all as the most important musical enterprise undertaken in the city for many years. Sluggish in the past, the city has been strong factors in the development of musical taste throughout the northwest, and in the sound professional training needed in a comparatively young section of the country if genuine culture in art lines is to be attained.

Now that these conservatories are combining their forces with such broadening and strengthening of the work in all departments as the appended list of teachers and artists makes certain, there is no doubt that Minneapolis is to have at last a conservatory fully equipped to teach music, art and expression in a scholarly and practical manner.

It is today universally conceded that American needs in the arts in general have not been met by American institutions. Parents are glad to recognize the fact that it is no longer necessary to send their children abroad for study, and to incur the risk incurred by their residence in foreign cities.

The residence plan, which has been in operation since 1903, was formulated to meet certain just demands and recognized needs of the conservatory students. It provides for such students: That they pay tuition only for their specialty. That they live under no unnecessary restrictions as to daily routine.

That they have the inspiration of close contact with artist teachers of their own specialty. That they live a home life with women of mature years, who are interested in the highest development of each girl. That they escape the obvious disadvantages and dangers encountered by young women "who go away" to the city.

That they are given the best possible opportunities to gain that culture of mind and heart without which their talent will be of little real value to them or to the world.

Conservatory Cottages. The cottage plan has been formulated to meet the needs of mature young women, who, while devoting their entire effort to their specialty, desire: First—to live a refined home life under proper supervision, in an atmosphere stimulating their talents and conducive to their highest development as women.

Second—to enjoy all social and literary advantages of Stanley Hall, and all the opportunities offered by the Minneapolis Conservatory while living under home regulations drawn up by themselves.

With Miss Evers as president, the full conservatory staff under the direction of Mr. Pontius is as follows: Music. Voice—William H. Pontius, Clarence A. Marshall, Florence E. Parks, Gertrude Cope.

Piano—Maurice Eisner, Helen E. Briggs, Gertrude Dobyns, Jennie Scott-Collins. Assistant to be appointed. Vocal and Ensemble Playing—Scott E. Powell. Harmony, Counterpoint and History of Music—William H. Pontius, Helen E. Briggs, Scott E. Powell.

Organ—Hamlin Hunt. Trumpet—Lorenz Dellinger. Orchestral and Band Instruments—Instructors from the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra—Flute, Max Gert; clarinet, August Trabel; cornet and trumpet, Byron Morgan; double bass, P. E. von Wittman; French horn and all brass instruments—Edward J. Erck; oboe, Heenan Waters; bassoon, Achille Hyosen.

Art. L. Grace Woodward. Expression. Voice Culture, Interpretation and Dramatic Art—Blanche Nannette Williams, Grace E. Gertrude. Psychology—Olive Adele Ever. English Literature and Rhetoric—Estelle Holbrook.

German—Kate Brouseau. German—Dora O. Bennett. Physical Education—M. Lucille Adams. Dancing and Social Form—Eva S. Plancy.

VALUABLE CORNERS WILL BE IMPROVED

WASHINGTON AVENUE TRackage CHANGES HANDS.

S. T. McKnight Adds to Holdings of Close in Property—Extensive Full Storage Plant and Big Leather Company Warehouse Will Be Among Future New Buildings.

Activity in the real estate market was notable last week and several sales of business property were recorded. The City Realty company, Albert P. Reidher, manager, negotiated the transfer of the northeast corner of Ninth and Washington to J. S. Smith & Co. representing the United States Leather company.

The S. T. McKnight company has just secured another valuable downtown property at a low consideration. It has bought the northwest double corner of Sixth avenue S and Fourth street, the old Tremont hotel property from Mary J. Hooker, for $9,000.

The Holmes & Hollowell company, coal dealers, will make an important improvement on the seven blocks of Great Northern trackage which the company recently bought between Sixth and Eighth avenues SE. The entire investment will be about $35,000.

The Western Debenture & Realty company is one of the new institutions for the local future. It will soon open offices in the Andrus building to engage in a real estate business.

"WISSNER PIANO" This is what the wonderful little pianist, Jessie Shay, that made an American tour with the great violinist, Jan Kubelik, says about the "Wissner".

My Dear Mr. Wissner: I have already put in about five hours' practice on the new piano and am delighted with it. It has a lovely, full, rich tone, even scale, and is in every respect "forever".
