

MINNETONKA

THE younger people have been having a gay week at the lake, dancing parties, house parties, automobile and boating parties have all been the means of passing the time, and the Lafayette club, around which the gayeties have centered, has kept open house for the younger social set.

Among the visitors at the lake are the Misses Mary and Margaret Humes of Alton, Ill., the charming sisters of Mrs. Fendall G. Winston. They have been guests of Mrs. A. B. Jackson at her cottage at the beach and on Friday to Saturday they were entertained at the summer home of Mrs. Charles S. Pillsbury by Mrs. P. B. Winston, who is at the cottage during Mr. and Mrs. Pillsbury's absence.

Mrs. W. J. Hiebel of Breezy Point is entertaining the young women at a house party, and Mr. and Mrs. Fendall G. Winston are also her guests. The young ladies will remain in Minneapolis a few weeks longer and Mrs. Winston is planning to introduce her sisters to her Minneapolis friends at a number of pleasant social affairs. The Misses Humes are graduates of a fashionable school at Warrenton, Va. Miss Margaret Humes was introduced to Alton society last season and her sister, Miss Mary, will be a debutante this year.

Mrs. James F. Bell will give a luncheon Monday at her home at Ferndale for Mrs. George W. Peavey, Mrs. A. T. Rand and their guests, Misses Kate and Anne Harris of Cincinnati, and Mrs. M. E. Jackson of Dayton, Ohio. The party is being entertained at the summer residence of Mrs. A. T. Rand, and Mrs. Rand and Mrs. F. B. Wells are giving informal family affairs for the out-of-town women.

W. K. Morrison entertained at an informal dinner last evening at the club. Covers were laid for fourteen, and the guests remained for the hop.

The wild waves of Lake Minnetonka are telling a pathetic tale of a charming young visitor from a neighboring state, who was taken on a canoe trip, and of her young college athlete escort, who nearly met a watery grave. Mr. Collegeman is a representative of the finest physical training at Yale, and the rescue of the two is due to nothing but sheer nerve and wonderful muscle on his part. Little Miss Visitor did not know much about canoeing, except that it was a lot of fun to have a fine young man do the paddling, while she did all the pretty talk and entertaining. In fact, she was so charming that the young man had not the heart to impress her with the first commandment of canoeing, "Sit still as a mouse, and if you must move let it be nothing but your lips." The never knew how it all happened, but when just off the shore near Excelsior bay there was a sudden splash and canoe, paddler and girl were all in the wrong place. The girl had just enough strength left to call a faint "Help!" then the cruel waves shut her out of view, leaving nothing but a tall waving plume of black to indicate where she struggled under water.

The college man was ready to cope with the situation. Making a frantic dive for the girl he pulled her above water, and then instructing her to keep her hands on the boat and not try to choke him or cling to him, he exercised his lungs. Their struggles were terrible, and there was not the slightest sign that anybody saw them or would come to the rescue. The girl grew fainter and fainter, and the man's heart sank in despair at the hopelessness of the situation. Finally a rowboat came, and the two watersoaked young people were pulled into it. In sheer exhaustion the little lady dropped overboard twice before the party landed at Minnetonka Beach.

After that the responsibility fell all onto "mother," who, with the help of friends, brought "the first aid to the rescued."
