

DO NOT LET A VETERAN STAND IN A STREET CAR THIS WEEK

TUESDAY WILL BE DAY OF REUNIONS

Veterans of Various Regiments Will Meet to Renew Old Ties—List of Meetings as Arranged.

Tuesday will be the great day of the week for reunions. Beginning early in the morning and continuing thru the day, little groups of veterans who served together in various regiments or brigades and who stood shoulder to shoulder in battle, in fact all who have common army ties, will gather to renew old acquaintances.

WON HONOR AT IUKA
Commander of Heroic Ohio Battery Which Held Rebs at Bay.
Among the veteran visitors to Minneapolis who wear the congressional medal of honor, no man is better known in Grand Army circles than Colonel Cyrus Searns, commander of the Eleventh Ohio battery at the battle of Iuka, the bloodiest single field-battery contest on record in the hearts of the civil war artillerymen. The Eleventh Ohio occupies the place held by the famous First Minnesota in the hearts of the infantrymen.

wounded or missing at the close of hostilities. Sixteen were killed outright, thirty-five were wounded, and of the three missing at the close of the engagement two were seriously wounded and captured by the enemy. Among the wounded was Colonel Searns, who, according to the United States war department, "suffered seriously, wounded, fought his battery until the cannoneers or horses were nearly all killed or wounded."

His part in the battle of Iuka, Colonel Searns was awarded a medal of honor, and he will attend the Tuesday meeting of the medal-of-honor men, one of the most unique reunions planned for the encampment.

The military record of Colonel Searns did not end with his participation in the battle at Iuka, for, on recovering from his wounds, he again entered the service and was in command of the Forty-ninth Colored infantry regiment at the battle of Mukden's Bend, where the percentage of loss among the colored soldiers was nearly as great as that of the Eleventh Ohio at Iuka. For his part in this battle Colonel Searns was officially commended for "conspicuous gallantry."

Rawlins Post Entertains.
John A. Rawlins post of this city has arranged to have a series of receptions this week to visiting posts which have been hospitable to it in other years in other encampment cities. This evening at 8 o'clock it will give a reception to Memorial post, No. 141, Cleveland, Ohio. Tomorrow morning, between 10 and 11 o'clock, it will receive Crocker post, No. 12, Des Moines, and between 11 and 12 o'clock will be host to Allegheny post, No. 88, Allegheny City, Pa. At 8 o'clock in the evening its guests will be the visiting members of Bluff post, No. 1, and Ransom post, No. 131, St. Louis. These receptions are to take place in the post hall, Masonic Temple.

Tuesday forenoon there will be a Winthrop party, with the women of Columbia post, Chicago, as guests, and a committee from the women of Rawlins post as hostesses. Following the ride the women of Rawlins post will accompany the women of Columbia post at the home of Mrs. Alexander Hughes, president, 2101 West Franklin.

Meet After Sixteen Years.
One of the most enthusiastic of the many reunions that took place at the Milwaukee station today was that of J. A. Wilson of Jackson, Minn., and his brother-in-law, Mr. A. Strong of Chattanooga, Tenn. The relatives had not met in sixteen years and yet there was no hesitancy when Mr. Wilson, after having waited at the station for two long hours, espied Strong in the distance.

Mr. Wilson has been quartermaster of the John A. Myers post in Jackson for the past fourteen years. He served thru the war in the Twenty-first Wisconsin. Mr. Strong served in the First Minnesota heavy artillery, but moved to Tennessee twenty years ago.

One of First Volunteers.
Judge E. W. Keyes of Madison, Wis., one of the survivors of Clay's battalion, arrived today. He has been postmaster at Madison for thirty years, was once chairman of the state central committee, and was once a leading candidate for United States senator. He has been a prominent figure in the politics of Wisconsin since war-time days.

Clay's battalion was the first volunteer organization of the civil war. It was organized for the protection of Washington at a time when the city was practically defenseless and before President Lincoln had called for the first 75,000 men. Clay of Kentucky issued a call for volunteers, and about 300 northern men who were in Washington at the time responded, among them Judge Keyes. They were furnished arms and ammunition by the government and served until the first volunteer regiments raised under President Lincoln's call reached Washington. The battalion was recognized in the service by the president and secretary of war, and formally discharged. The members of this battalion were the first to volunteer for the service of the union, and the Grand Army recognizes the members of the Clay battalion as veterans entitled to membership. While in the service they guarded the White House the treasury building and the long bridge.

FOUR THOUSAND ON REGISTRATION ROLL

Bureau Receiving Names of Incoming Veterans Is Dealing with Surging Crowd.

"ASK ME" BUTTON MEANS NO CHARGE
Police Superintendent Doyle was informed last night that several persons had obtained possession of the "Ask Me" buttons given out by the Commercial club and were using them as a means of fleeing the visitors.
Several persons are known to have given their buttons away while some of them have been lost. They have names of designing persons who have stationed themselves at the street corners offering to furnish all information and act as guides for a consideration.
Superintendent Doyle wants it known that efficient guides have been provided and are to be paid a specified fee, but that all others are fakes. The official guides carry their own badge and can be easily recognized. It is also known that the buttons now have a market value and men with police records have been known to offer a good price in order to obtain them. It must be understood, the police say, that the buttons are not a recommendation nor insignia of a grade, but simply a means of identifying a person is acquainted with the city.

Up to midnight last evening, 1,500 veterans had enrolled themselves at the registration bureau of the encampment, which is being operated at 510 Second avenue S. Up to noon today the number enrolled had increased to nearly 4,000. All day the enrollment rooms have been crowded with veterans who are there with a double purpose, primarily to see if any of their old war comrades who have not been seen for years are attending the encampment, and secondly, to sign their own names to the ever-growing lists.
The enrollment sheets are arranged systematically. Large signs show at a glance where the enrollment sheets of the different states are located. The lists show the names of the veterans, the regiments and companies in which they served and their present locations. At noon today the crowd at enrollment headquarters was so great that the sidewalk was blocked out into the street. There are a number of clerks in charge who are kept busy answering questions and directing inquirers to desired places.

"Minneapolis should be proud of her decorations," said Colonel Fenton of Detroit, Mich., who has been attending national encampments for years, but never has a city displayed a more hospitable spirit in its decorations.

Hotel men, restaurant men and others who deal in the necessities of visitors are not the only men who plan to make something out of the encampment. Yesterday the restaurant help, principally the waitresses, served notices on their employers that they were out for a piece of the week's prosperity. Waitresses that had been contented with $9 a week came out flat-footed for $10 and some even went stronger. The help seemed to have the call, and streets of restaurant-keepers found themselves face to face with no choice but to give in or close up. Nobly closed up and most of the restaurant owners came to the terms demanded.

Dodgers announcing that the big G. A. R. parade will take place on Saturday at Duluth by the North-Western road, according to delegates who arrived from the head of the lakes last night. They fear that unless the parade is held at Duluth, many city people will arrive just one day late for the spectacle.

An unscheduled entertainment was given out-of-town visitors who happened to be on or near Seventh street about 9 p.m. yesterday. A fire alarm was the cause, and the members of the fire department, with their apparatus did the entertaining. The fire didn't materialize, but the run was not in vain, as the thousands of people who lined up to see the fire department, and the signs of approval as they watched the truck, hosecar, engine and chief's buggy whirled down the street and drawn slowly back by the well-groomed and proud steeds.

The Duss band came in on a special car and took the city hall. There was not enough room in the yards for the car, so the bandmaster and the members of his band were carried on to St. Paul.

OPEN MEETING FOR KNIGHTS
Visitors Will Enjoy K. of P. Hospitality Friday Evening.
The Knights of Pythias, Lodge No. 1 will hold an open meeting for visiting knights and their friends Friday evening in their castle hall on the second floor of the Masonic Temple. All knights in attendance at the Grand Army encampment are requested to attend and to bring their friends. Speeches, refreshments, cigars and good fellowship will combine to make the evening a pleasant one.

post came in on the Northern Pacific coast train today. They brought their wheat with them.
Harvey post, No. 82, under the command of Post Commander Bows, came in on the same train. The post mustered ten men.

Philadelphia's contingent of Sons of Veterans arrived today without a leader. They were under the command of John Binder until they reached Chicago, but there the man from the quaker city became involved in the strenuous of the western metropolis and failed to rejoin his comrades. A telegram from him awaited the party at Minneapolis, bringing the news that he had at last located the railroad station and would come on a later train.

Winchester post of Brooklyn, one of the largest in the country, has the most compact representation of any post at this encampment. It consists of Sergeant Major A. M. Wilden, Major Wilden is not a delegate to the encampment, but is here to meet old friends and see the fun. He said he thought that he would be the only member of Winchester post to attend this encampment.

The post colors of the Eagle post of Eau Claire were brought into camp by an escort of six which arrived on the North-Western train at 11:10 a.m. The main body of the Eagle post arrived last night. Ten members of Comfort post of Chippewa Falls, Wis., came in on the same train. This train was so badly crowded with excursionists that members of the veterans were obliged to stand thru the entire trip.

Forty Ohio members of the National Association of Civil War Musicians came in over the Wisconsin Central at 11 a.m. In the party were Thomas B. Jobe, former national president; Frank Howell, national standard-bearer, and Field Major A. F. Honkison. Other officers of this organization are Charles Wallace of Denver, president; J. M. Bogart of Plainfield, N. J., vicepresident;

L. M. Pemberton of York, Neb., drum major.

C. P. Wainman, general manager of the Northwestern Telephone Exchange company, met Major Halstead of Washington, D. C., at the West hotel headquarters today. Major Halstead was a captain in the Second New York heavy artillery in which Mr. Wainman served as a private. The two men had not met for forty-two years, and the occasion was as interesting as it was accidental. Twenty years ago Mr. Wainman was a member of Memorial post, Cleveland. Today he met the members of his old post when they arrived on the Burlington special at 12:10 p.m.

The most picturesque soldier who arrived today was big, gruff John Myers of Rusk, Wis. He proudly wore a regulation Iron brigade hat. "This isn't the hat I wore in action," said Private Myers. "It is just like it. The rebels took away my campaign hat when they captured me south of Petersburg. I was one of the men who put down the rebellion. I stayed to the last." Mr. Myers came alone. He was a member of Company E, Sixth Wisconsin, and belongs to John Christian post, No. 94, Mondovi. With his high cockade headgear he will be a noticeable figure in the parade Wednesday.

Colonel William A. Jones, brother of R. F. Jones, and Charles B. Sias, also a relative of Mr. Jones, arrived in the city yesterday and are stopping at the Jones residence, 1806 Hennepin avenue. Colonel Jones was a member of the One Hundred and Forty-second New York volunteers and served thru the entire war, receiving several promotions for bravery upon the battlefield. He is a member of the Loyal Legion and also of the U. S. Grant post of Brooklyn, N. Y.

GRAND OPENING CONCERT TONIGHT

Music to Stir the Patriotic Spirit and Awaken Old Memories.

Everything is ready for the grand opening patriotic concert at the Auditorium this evening. Everybody will be there, for it is the first formal gathering of the encampment. Tickets are on sale at the Metropolitan Music store and the rush for admissions promises a record-breaking crowd for the Auditorium. The commander-in-chief and his official party will occupy the boxes, and every body will want to be present to see the men who are prominent in the Grand Army.
The executive committee in charge is more than pleased at the prospects and feel confident that the program could run the entire week to full houses if the house could be secured. The program that has been arranged is one that appeals to everybody, visitors and Minneapolisans. All of the artists appearing are with three exceptions Minneapolis people. Captain Jack Crawford, the "Poet Scout," who is a national character in Grand Army circles, will appear. He arrived this morning and says he is out to beat even his own remarkable record as an entertainer. Major M. L. Pemberton of York, Neb., the greatest drum soloist of the country, arrived yesterday. Major Pemberton is drum major of the National Association of Civil War Musicians and is also well known nationally. If one number he plays six instruments, four of them drums, at the same time. His imitation of battles, the rattle of musketry and the boom of artillery is something amazing.
There are more musical numbers than anything else on the program, and they are well chosen. They will appeal to everybody. When the box office opens at the Metropolitan Music store today another rush is expected. Seats will be on sale at the Auditorium box office this evening. All proceeds of the concert go into the entertainment fund with the other subscriptions. Every person who attends the concert will have the satisfaction of more than his money's worth in entertainment and fuller satisfaction of having contributed to the Grand Army fund.
The program will begin at 8:15 and the concert will last about an hour while the audience is arriving. Shibley and Squyer's orchestra will play in the foyer.
The tickets have been placed at 75c, 50c and 25c for the three floors and $1 for box seats. The program follows:

There were also many of the old plantation songs, and the best-known patriotic songs.
The concert lasted about an hour. J. H. Lyons, the organist and choir-master of the Holy Trinity church, was at the keyboard. He will play the chimes every day this week until Saturday and the tower will be open to the public. There will be two concerts daily, one from 5 to 6 p.m. and one from 7 to 8 p.m.
Besides these regular concerts, Mr. Lyons will play the chimes during the Grand Army parade Wednesday.

I.—CIVIL WAR SCENE. WERE YOU THERE?

If You Remember This Scene, Drop Into The Journal Office and Give the City Editor Your Reminiscences.

WINTER QUARTERS AND THE BASE OF GENERAL BUTLER'S LOOKOUT TOWER AT IUKA, 1864. This tower was at Point of Rocks, Va., on the Appomattox, where Fort Zabrickie stood. The signal towers of the civil war looked so nothing as much as oil derricks of today. The log huts in the foreground are typical of the huts in which the Army of the Potomac was accustomed to pass the winter months.
