BUILDING PERMIT RECORDS BROKEN

GREATEST AUGUST IN CONSTRUCTION HISTORY OF CITY.

Totals Go to $1,146,280, Beating Any Previous August—Transfer Companies' Books Form Another Index to the Growth of Minneapolis—This Is Moving Season for Flat Dwellers.

August is a remarkably big month for building operations, not only for this time of the year, but for any time. The building permits aggregate an expenditure of $1,146,280, and this figure has never been touched in any corresponding month in the history of the city.

The permit for the Butler Brothers' building was a big boost for the month, as the cost will be $450,000. Among other permits of goodly size are those for the Sheffield elevator, to cost $55,000, and the new Janney, Semple, Hill & Co. building, to cost $76,000.

The Rental People. Minneapolis grows. Not only building permits, but transfer company's books and records of the rental agencies show this. The transfer companies are a week behind orders in moving people, and the rental agencies have to be kept busy.

Flat leases date from Sept. 1, and the annual moving is on. Although several hundred flat buildings have been built in the last two seasons and predictions were made that Minneapolis would soon be "over-flatted," the prophets have not made good their gloomy forebodings.

Scarcity also prevails in houses to rent. Although hundreds of new houses have been added to the Minneapolis total in 1906, a scarcity is still noted. The only reason for this that is advanced is the statement that Minneapolis is growing.

The moving vans are engaged in several distinct kinds of work. They are moving families from one flat to another. They are also moving household goods from flats to houses and from houses to flats.

Want Higher Priced Flats. If any scarcity of applications for flats is noted at all by the rental agents it is in the lower-priced apartments. This is said to be due to the great real estate and building activity among the wage earners in the season which is just closing, and the families are moving to homes of their own.

DROPS DEAD IN CAFE Charles D. Harsin Expires While Waiting for Evening Meal.

Charles D. Harsin, a landscape gardener, dropped dead while sitting at one of the tables in the Brunswick cafe, Hennepin avenue and Fourth street, last evening.

Harsin was alone, but several of the waiters saw him drop to the floor and ran to pick him up, but he was dead when they reached him.

Friends of the man say that he has been in poor health for some time, and was accustomed to the use of drugs and stimulants. A bottle of morphine was found in his clothes and it is thought that his death was weakened by the drug that heart failure was the result.

Coroner Kistler decided that death was due to heart failure and no autopsy will be held.

Harsin was known among his friends as a great lover of nature as well as a thoroughly capable landscape gardener. Among the works to his credit is the laying out of the Forman grounds near Lake Calhoun.

COUNCIL WILL GET HOSTILE CHARGE IS MET BY MAYOR

REVISED FIGURES EXPECTED TO SHOW DECREASE.

General Revenue Fund Given by Controller Will Need $1,337,990, and Permanent Improvement Fund Foots Up $480,000—Pruning Committee Expected to Make Deep Cuts in Items.

Complete estimates for the general revenue and permanent improvement funds for next year will be submitted to the city council Monday. The estimates by City Controller Dan C. Brown. The aggregate for the various city departments is $1,337,990.23. This is only $35,000 more than the appropriation for 1906, and the board of tax levy has pruned the estimates it will show a substantial saving.

The direct revenues of the fund are estimated at $480,000, compared with $473,000 of this year. The sources are as follows: liquor licenses, $408,000; other licenses, $30,000; municipal court, $27,000; city clerk fees, $2,500; rents, etc., $3,000; interest on fully bonded, $3,000. There remain $857,990.23 to be raised by taxation, provided the board of tax levy does not trim the estimates.

Permanent Improvements. The permanent improvement fund estimates aggregate $474,100, and are made up of the following items: City engineer's department, including city's property, $100,000; street cleaning, warehouse and yard for sewer department, and other improvements, $390,200; fire department, $41,000; health department, $37,200; national guard armory, $37,200.

Little business of importance will come before the council this evening as only a few of the committees have met during the last week and those which have met have obtained no reports have done little more than to approve bills. The special committee which has under consideration the matter of a franchise for the N. D. T. company, got together yesterday and decided to postpone action for two weeks.

MOTHS INVADE THE CITY GAY BUTTERFLIES BY THOUSANDS SWARM THRU PARKS AND HOVER OVER GARDENS.

Hordes of butterflies of an unassigned variety have swooped down on the city this week and much complaint has been aroused as to the probable damage they may do to trees and shrubs if they are not checked.

A characteristic of the moths is that they display great activity during the day flying in swarms. They may be seen in the parks, private yards and even over the trolley tracks.

Superintendent of Parks Theodore Wirth said today that he was at a loss to find a name for the butterfly pest which he had not discovered that they were doing any harm to the park board's foliage. However, he did not know what the moths might do later in the season if they were left alone.

Mr. Wirth will look into the matter and will find out just what the mission of the iridescent creature is.

PLOW COMPANY ENLARGES ROCK ISLAND CONCERN OPENS BRANCH IN MINNEAPOLIS WITH F. W. A. VESPER IN CHARGE.

The Northern Rock Island Plow company is a new institution formed to give the Rock Island Plow company of Rock Island a Minneapolis branch. It has taken the Bement-Darling seven-story building at 614-620 Third street S. F. W. A. Vesper of the branch will have charge of the branch and will move to Minneapolis.

The Rock Island company has operated a selling agency in Minneapolis for several years. Its business and the coming development of territory which is logically tributary to Minneapolis resulted in the formation of the new organization. The officers are president, Phil Mitchell, of Rock Island; vice-president and manager, F. W. A. Vesper; secretary, W. I. Bogardus of Rock Island; treasurer, S. R. Cray of Minneapolis. Mr. Cray has been resident agent of the parent company in Minneapolis for six years.

Mr. Vesper, the new manager, has had a varied career, including advertising experience. He began in the nineties in the department of the John Deere Plow company of Kansas City. After five years he entered the service of the Kingman-Moon Implement company of the same city. After two years he was sent to Minneapolis to transfer the Kingman plow business to a new agency. He was then called to Peoria as advertising manager for the company. After a year he associated himself with the Implement Trade Journal and became president of the Ad-Man's club of Kansas City.

HERE FOR INSPECTION OF POSTOFFICE SITE

Minneapolis will be under inspection next week. J. Knox Taylor of Washington, a representative of the treasury department, will be in the city to inspect postoffice sites. Mr. Taylor is expected Monday.

Minneapolis business interests will be ready to see that he has plenty of information. Local likes and dislikes, customs and manner will be explained. The strong points of the Pence site, endorsed by the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, will be pressed by that organization in connection with the proposed civic improvement plan for the beautifying of the Bruce square district as the gateway to the city.

Other sites will no doubt be offered and backed by arguments of various sorts. Some interests are working for uptown sites, but the government is firm in its demand for sites on or near trackage. Mr. Taylor will have the benefit of all the expert advice to be found in the city.

CLEARINGS INCREASE August Shows Gain of $8,578,074 Over Last Year.

Figures given out at the clearing house today show the heaviest August business on record for Minneapolis. The bank clearings for the month were $7,641,091.58. August is usually a light month in Minneapolis, and averages much lower than the months that follow. Last August the clearings were $59,061,017.02. The gain this year is $8,578,074.58.

D. F. JONES SCORES A VICTORY AT CAMPAIGN MEETING.

Faces Accusation of Duplicitly and Shows Large Audience His Position as Regards the "Lid" and the Enforcement of Laws—Scores Congratulate the Speaker.

For the first time in the present campaign both sides of the republican mayoral contest have taken the same platform. Mayor Jones spoke for himself and came off with colors flying, silencing a hostile, packed audience, and carrying half of it away when he left the hall by the back door.

Williams, the opposition candidate, was upheld by A. D. Smith. In the face of a charge of duplicitly and of double standard of morality concerning the saloon question, he was not only not placed, Mayor Jones rose to make his reply and before he finished speaking had made a friend of every man in the hall. It was all a trap that failed to work.

This incident occurred last night at the meeting of the First Ward Roosevelt Republican club in Forester hall, Thirtieth avenue NE and Fourth street.

A view of the hall showed many faces familiar behind Northeast Minneapolis bars and a few from across the river in the third ward.

The Charge by Smith. Mr. Smith, speaking for Dr. Williams, was the first of the principal speakers. He called for an exhaustive review of the successive mayors of Minneapolis, and lauded the memory of Philip B. Winston and of George A. Pillsbury. "Personally, Mr. Jones is a gentleman and a man of good character," Smith went on. "For his superior private virtues I am in favor of retaining him in private life. For still another reason I favor the same thing; he has a scholarly and a high character. His word is good, but as mayor and as a candidate for mayor I know he has broken his promise made before election last year. I know this and can prove it. He has broken his promise to close the saloons on Sunday if elected. He let them run several months and then closed them."

Mr. Jones rose to the closing of the Sunday saloon, if it was a good thing and the right thing, it should have been done at first. If the home rule party had any sense, it should have not been delayed on day.

"As an example of a great moral man, a man of the home, is Mayor Jones greater than Phillip Winston, than William Henry Eustis or than that scholarly gentleman, James Gray. Is he abetter man than Dr. U. G. Williams, that great-hearted, noble physician whose cause I advocated? There is no more noble body of men in the city than the board of aldermen. After day do deeds of mercy without questioning their rewards. I am told that he has $20,000 on his books for services rendered the poor and those unable to pay for their services. He has two terms he has served as coroner and you know that he was a good official. For these reasons and because I love the man, I urge his appointment."

Mayor Met the Charge. The situation was intense when Mayor Jones rose to speak, following soon after Mr. Smith. The crowd in the hall was given to the mayor and was standing about the rear. There was a slight attempt at a hostile demonstration on the part of certain well-known hired roustes, but the genuine hearty applause from the greater part of the house silenced it and it dared not show itself openly.

The mayor took the bull by the horns almost at once and struck out fairly from the outset. He was given the closest attention and at the close was given a storm of applause. That he was the attraction was shown by the way the audience melted away as he left the hall after speaking. Full half of it followed the speaker down the street and many extended their personal congratulations.

In his introductory remarks the mayor said: "Before I speak for myself I wish to thank my friend Mr. Smith for the frank and candid manner in which he stated his contentions this evening. I trust that all this campaign may be a great benefit to the city. I am a Minneapolis man by birth, training and education, and am glad of it. While I am here among the friends of another, I want to speak a good word for him. He is a first class alderman, a man who is an honor to the city. He is practical and manly and a mighty fine man in every way. I mean Alderman Michael Gerber of the first ward, who has given me his labor, his brain and his pocketbook for the good of his ward in furnishing the free baths. Democrat or not, and irrespective of any comment it may cause, I am proud, and the first ward should be proud, of Alderman Gerber."

The mayor briefly reviewed his own public service as alderman from the fifth ward, president of the council and as acting mayor after the Ames regime. He spoke of the petition presented asking him to run for mayor at that time, which he refused to do. "Two years ago, however," said the mayor, "I ran for mayor and was elected by a narrow margin. I have not the duties of the office with some misgivings, and have done my best. Nobody has ever accused me of breaking a pledge that harmed the city of Minneapolis. No Pledge Made.

"Furthermore, I made no pledge to anybody that I would not close the saloons on Sunday. I was waited on by delegations of brewers and allied interests by churches, temperance workers and others. I told them all that I did not see that it was necessary or practical to close the saloons, that it did not seem at the time expedient or best.

"During the first eight months I was in office I visited personally, in company with others, every saloon of the 400 in Minneapolis, and became acquainted with the conditions. The conditions existing, especially on Saturday and Sunday. I have no charge to make against the honestly, squarely conducted saloon. I saw the conditions, they are not as bad as some have said. I do not spend his Sundays there and I will rescind that Sunday-closing order.

"In this country we are growing in our regard for the majesty of the law. There is an awakening led by our interest in the greatness of the law and under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, who has set the standard that the law must be obeyed by rich and poor and the day of the people ushered in.

"In answer to the charge that the city is hurt by the Sunday order, what are the cities that are prosperous today? They are Boston, New York, Washington, Pittsburg, St. Louis, Kansas City and others in our class that are under the Sunday closing rule. In Missouri, Governor Folk, a democrat, was elected on that same issue, and it alone, and has anything before him that he wishes. He was elected on that issue alone in the face of a big Roosevelt majority from the same state, which is overwhelmingly democratic under most conditions. It was a triumph of the law and the majesty of the law and the demand for its enforcement.

"This is not a question of Haynes, Williams, or Jones. It is a question of whether the people of Minneapolis want the law enforced. My opponent has spoken of the $20,000 that is on the books of the opposition candidate, $20,000 that is carrying for his broken man. For any law that will speak of the $20,000 that, by the expert testimony of the saloon interests themselves—and I am willing to take it on the word of any of her class, from the Sunday saloon to the necessities of life and for the homes and children of the men who were spending it to drink.

"Don't vote for me for mayor unless you believe that I will enforce the laws—that it is right to do it—unless you want it, unless you want to see Minneapolis the best city of any of her class. I stand on this platform and not one inch will I recede from it. It will be a question of law against disorder. If I am elected, the saloons shall stay closed on Sunday, gambling and vice must cease, and the law will be enforced."

Mayor Jones was given frequent applause, especially for his reference to the president and for his endorsement of Alderman Gerber, the popular alderman of the ward. His square and forceful stand won friends of those who were present merely to hear him, and having heard him, left the hall convinced of his sincerity and honor.

The Other Speakers. Other speakers were Winfield W. Barwell, George L. Matlack, C. C. Smith, A. L. Jones, W. E. Stoppes, F. H. Boardman, W. S. Jenkins, Lewis C. Gjersten, Colfax Grant, S. T. Johnson, Sherman S. Smith, George E. Smith, Fred M. Powers, and Dr. Frank H. Nye, Joseph T. Mannix, Horace Johnson, J. C. Shadewald, A. W. Skog, and others. J. B. Murphy, candidate for the legislature for the second district, presided and spoke. Late in the evening Dr. Williams entered the hall and was called on for a speech. He thanked the president, but he refused to excuse, as somebody had already spoken for him and he did not wish to monopolize time, but would be glad to come some other time.
