KING HAAKON PREDICTS PROSPERITY FOR NORGE

Speech from the Throne at the Opening of the Storthing---Bjornson's New Book, "Mary"---Camille Clifford's Life as Tutti Ottesen in Christiania.

By M. Alger. Christiania, Norway, Oct. 25.—Autumn is full upon us. The last tourists have left the country and we shall be all by ourselves until the Holmenkoll ski races at least. From a financial point of view the tourist traffic of the year has been most satisfactory, and unless something unforeseen occurs it is sure to be still larger next year. The number of American visitors has been larger than ever and they are considered the best visitors—because they leave so much money behind.

The crops have been good in most parts of the country, and among the farmers satisfaction prevails, altho in some regions the fruit crop proved a failure, owing to frost late in the spring.

In the World of Letters. Another sign of the approaching winter is that almost every author, great and small, has about finished a new book. Two of them are already on the market. First came Arne Garborg's "Jesus Messias," which is a

The Journal in Norway.

There seem others beside myself who read The Journal in Norway. Lately I have seen in local papers several items taken from The Journal. The report of Amundsen's expedition, written from Nome, Alaska, was one of them, and the encounter Bjorn Bjornson had with the Chicago editor was another. Also during the Stensland bank affair the paper was quoted frequently.

Norway's Industrial Progress.

After the financial crash in 1897, depression was long felt in all lines of business and still more so in the industries. Of late, however, the prospects for a healthy revival of prosperity seem good. Several items on the export list of the country show a marked increase.

It is a well-known fact that Norway possesses a great number of waterfalls, which in our time mean so many horsepower for industrial purposes. During the last few months special activity has been displayed in harnessing some of the most powerful falls in the country, and at some future date there may be nothing but modern factories to look at, where formerly tourists from all countries gathered to enjoy some of the most beautiful sights of the Land of the Vikings.

GEORGE'S GAME.

Anastasia—Don't you play cards at all? Innocentia—No, but George says he's going to teach me after we're married. Anastasia—I suppose he'll teach you casino or euchre first. Innocentia—No; he says there's a perfectly fascinating game called "solitaire."

MURDER HE PLANNED PROVED TO BE HIS OWN

Police Inspector Victim of His Own Conspiracy Thru an Error.

Special Cable to The Journal.

Lucknow, Nov. 10.—A murder which reads like a page from a sensational romance has been committed on the Grand Trunk road near Cawnpore. The victim is a police inspector attached to an outlying station on the road, and was himself the principal instigator of the crime. His death was due to a mistake made by two fellow conspirators.

A traveler arrived at the place, and after having sought lodgings with the inspector, confided to him that he was anxious about the safety of a large amount of gold which he had with him. Some time afterwards he observed two men digging near the house, and overheard a remark which roused his suspicions, and led him to suppose that the excavation was intended for his grave.

He was unable to obtain help on the spot, and abandoning his bags, he deserted the house, and after traveling some distance along the road, hid himself in the branches of a tree.

It appeared that the inspector, who had drunk considerably during the day, lay down on the bed which had been provided for the traveler, and fell asleep.

The conspirators entered the station late at night, and, not finding the inspector, decided to execute the murder in his absence. They went to the inspectors' quarters, and having obtained his sword, entered the bedroom, where in the darkness they hacked the sleeping man to pieces.

When they discovered their mistake they hurriedly buried the murdered man in the prepared grave, and removed the traces of the crime. Next morning a European officer, accompanied by a few men, passed along the road on a visit to the station, and the traveler descended from his hiding-place, disclosed what had happened. The conspirators were placed under arrest.

HIS CHIEF INTEREST.

Philadelphia Ledger. "Yes, he was pretty well fixed at one time, but he got silver-crazy in 1896 and he lost all he had." "I suppose he's still interested in 'free silver at 16 to 1?'" "No, he's more interested now in 'free lunch 12 to 1.'"
