

MRS. JACKSON'S REMAINS INTERRED AT LEXINGTON

Unusual Military Honors at Funeral of Widow of Dead Confederate Leader.

BEAUTIFUL FLORAL TRIBUTES

Body Placed Beside That of Her Husband in Vault Beneath Jackson Monument—Distinguished Gathering at Services.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

LEXINGTON, VA., March 26.—With unusual military honors, the body of Mrs. Mary Anna Jackson, widow of General Stonewall Jackson, the Confederate leader, was placed beside that of her husband to-day in the vault beneath the Jackson monument in Lexington Cemetery.

Among those gathered beside the monument were Confederate veterans, the Sons of Confederates, the Daughters of the Confederacy and members of the faculties of the Virginia Military Institute, in which General Jackson was an instructor at the beginning of the War Between the States, and where he met his wife, and of Washington and Lee University. Mrs. Edmund Randolph Preston, Mrs. Jackson's granddaughter, also was present with her husband.

Funeral services were held in the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Jackson's pastor, Dr. D. H. Rolston, of Charlotte, her husband's staff chaplain during the war, Dr. James P. Smith, of Richmond, and Dr. J. R. Howerton, of Washington and Lee University, adding the pastor, Dr. A. T. Graham.

The body of Mrs. Jackson reached Lexington this morning from Charlotte, N. C., where she died Wednesday morning, and was taken to the Presbyterian Church, where at 11 o'clock short religious services were held. Accompanying the body from North Carolina were Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Randolph Preston, the latter being Mrs. Jackson's granddaughter; Chief Justice Walter Clark, of Raleigh; Mr. Davidson and Colonel Harris. Six officers of the Fifth Coast Artillery of Charlotte acted as military escort. Ten cadet officers of the Virginia Military Institute were detailed to act as pallbearers. The honorary pallbearers were members of the faculty of the Virginia Military Institute and Washington and Lee University, and the board of deacons of the Presbyterian Church. The floral tributes had to be conveyed from the railway station to the church in a wagon, numerous and elaborate were they. Many of the pieces were from Confederate organizations.

COINCIDENCE IN TRANSFER OF BODY AT LYNCHBURG

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] LYNCHBURG, VA., March 26.—The body of Mrs. Mary Anna Jackson, widow of General T. J. Jackson, which was taken this morning to Lexington for burial, passed through Lynchburg accompanied by a number of friends and relatives. The funeral party used an extra Pullman and a baggage car, and it was brought to the West End station on train No. 32, which reached Lynchburg at 4:10 o'clock. The two special cars were transferred from the West End station to the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, and these were attached to the train leaving at 5:20 o'clock for Lexington.

By a coincidence, Mrs. Jackson's body was transferred from the Southern to the Chesapeake and Ohio tracks at almost the same spot at which the body of her husband was removed from the old Orange and Alexandria Road, the afternoon of May 13, 1863. The body was brought to Charlottesville, and there transferred to what is now the Southern Railway. Upon arrival here, it was taken from the train near the foot of Cabell Street. Mayor William D. Branch, by a proclamation, requested all business to be suspended in the city at 5 o'clock, that minute guns be fired, and that the bells of the churches of the city be tolled. The train reached the station at 6:30 o'clock, and it was met by an immense throng of people. The casket was placed in a hearse and a procession was formed, and the cortege went down Jefferson Street to Bridge Street (now Ninth Street), thence to Main, up Main to Seventh, thence to Church, down Church to Twelfth, back to Main, thence to Bridge Street, and down to the packet boat landing. In the procession were 1,500 convalescent and maimed soldiers from local Confederate hospitals, together with city officials and private citizens. General Charles Dimmock was the chief marshal, and his aides were John G. Meem, John S. Langhorne, Lorenzo Norvell, William M. Blackford and P. R. Dean. The committee of citizens named by Mayor Branch to accompany the body to Lexington was composed of John M. Flood, Edward D. Christian, John H. Speed, James R. Holt, Robert H. Glass and A. McDonald.

Governor Letcher, Dr. Hunter McGuire, Major Pendleton and Lieutenants Morrison and Smith accompanied the body. Mrs. Jackson, her children and a servant were also present.

The body and funeral party went from Lynchburg to Lexington on the old packet boat Marshall, the bulk of which now lies between the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway and the old canal, a short distance above the Orange Bridge.

MISSING GIRL LOCATED

Sallie Preyer, nineteen years old, for whom the police on Thursday were asked to institute search, was located last night by Detective Sergeant Wiltshire at the home of Mrs. Burnley, 2205 East Main Street, when a temporary refuge had been given to the foot-worn girl.

Five years ago, according to the girl's story, she was sent by the Children's Aid Society to the home of C. R. Post, at Middleton, Chesterfield County. She became tired of her surroundings and the conditions under which she served, and ran away. She trudged all the way to Richmond, and for the night found lodging and comfort at the headquarters of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Johnson, of the Army, found a place for the girl at the home of Mrs. Burnley, where she was found last night by Sergeant Wiltshire.

Sergeant Wiltshire arrested the girl on a technical charge of being a fugitive from the aid society, and she was locked up at the First Police Station. She told the detective that she had been badly treated, and that she could not longer remain with the Posts.

ANOTHER COTTON STEAMER CLEARS FROM WILMINGTON

Italian Steamer Leaves With 6,810 Bales for Genoa—Business Conditions Improve.

WILMINGTON, N. C., March 26.—Wilmington cleared another cotton steamer this week, this one being a strictly neutral ship, with a cargo consigned to a neutral port. Alexander Sprunt & Son cleared the Italian steamer, Citra de Messina, with 6,810 bales for Genoa. This shipment bringing the total cotton exports up to date for this entire year to about 12,000 bales, just about one-fourth what is usually sent out from Wilmington every year.

Just before the Italian ship left port about 300 gallons of gasoline were taken from aboard. It was said that it was taken off as gasoline is expensive, but this was denied, and the reason given as "being against the insurance."

Wilmington cotton took a bound forward this week, when on Wednesday the staple registered its highest price of the season, being quoted at 8 1/2 cents for this year—the receipts of cotton amount to 200,000 bales, against 351,000 for the same period last year. Only about 124,000 bales have been exported, and there are probably 45,000 bales on hand, the rest being used by mills.

During the height of the war depression Wilmington, in common with many other cities, inaugurated an organized movement started with a big mass-meeting of laborers and business men, to aid the unemployed of the city. Additional money was spent by the city in street improvement, and the citizens were urged to do whatever building they contemplated doing at once. An employment bureau, backed by the business men, was organized, and in this way the situation was greatly relieved. In fact, the problem has been solved so satisfactorily that the bureau was abolished this week. The manager of the bureau, a laboring man, reporting that the situation had improved so that the bureau was no longer needed.
