Auto Show, Midway, Athletic Contests, Vaudeville and Dancing Among the Attractions to Please the Thousands Who Will Attend.

Richmond will turn out tomorrow to celebrate the thirtieth Labor Day in the history of the country in the most lavish manner in which a Labor Day has ever been celebrated in Virginia.

Public offices and many stores and private concerns will not open up in the morning, and practically all offices throughout the city will close at noon.

The main celebration of Labor Day will be held at the Virginia State Fair Grounds, under the auspices of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Richmond, and with the backing of more than eighty unions in the city. The big affair will begin at 11 A. M. with horse racing. Automobile racing, free vaudeville acts, airplane stunts, dancing, running races, all kinds of contests and a score of other entertainments will feature the day.

Labor Day was first celebrated in 1894, when the Labor Congress of Berlin met for the first time. Since that meeting Labor Day has been celebrated more or less in every section of the United States and in many sections of Europe. In many States it is a legal holiday.

First Race at 11 o'clock.

George Luther Wilcox, chairman of the executive committee of the Central Trades and Labor Council, and also chairman of the Central Labor Day committee, together with executive committee members and officials of the organization are inspecting the necessity for prompt action. The races will be called when scheduled. Opening the program for the day will be a free-for-all fight for a purse of $500. It will be the first event and four entries already have been received. Hudson, City Health Officer, and a number of nurses from the City Hospital of Health, will be found on hand to look after the health of the children, see that no children who are infected with disease are entered, and to dispense health hints and baby culture pamphlets.

Labor Wages Battle This Year to Defeat the Traitors to Humanity

BY SAMUEL COMPTON, President of the American Federation of Labor. Labor Day, 1920, finds the toilers of America engaged in two great struggles.

The age-old struggle for economic advancement and liberation is incessant in its demands upon our time and our energy and our thought.

The periodically recurring struggle on the political field demands a concentration of effort now in order to safeguard liberty and to make the great birthplace of democracy its abiding place.

Despite the efforts of the enemies of labor, the movement presses forward, extending its influence and increasing its numbers. Five million organized toilers are engaged in the political campaign of 1920. More than 25,000 have volunteered for service on committees in the communities throughout the nation. We are witnessing a great conservation of effort for human progress.

The struggle which labor wages in this political campaign is a struggle to secure for every man proven entrance to humanity and who intend to have special privilege, greed and profit.

The struggle is to defeat those who have sought to weld chains of law upon labor in order that it might be hampered in the normal, natural and proper exercise of the functions of free men and women.

The struggle is to elect men who will not throw across the path of progress a barrier of ignorance, greed and bigotry.

In this struggle it is the duty of the workers of America and of all forward-looking, liberty-loving American citizens to unite every effort.

Those holders of public trust who have made for themselves records of betrayal of the people must not be allowed to evade the consequences of their acts.

The true convictions of America must be registered at the ballot boxes in November. Backward, turn backward, O America, from the sentiment of harmless greed to be the slogan of predatory powers.

The eyes of labor are toward the future, the hopes of labor are rooted in the faith that America will be true to her traditions.

Let there be none among us untrue to the ideals of our movement, unfaithful to our cause and our country's progress.

Our whole partisanship is to principles, our whole purpose human progress in freedom.

This is the hour for great effort, men and women of labor, the duty is laid upon us. Let no one of us fail!

Dr. Speer Recommends the Lyon Heater

Clarendon, Va., May 4, 1920. Lyon, Conklin & Co., Baltimore, Md.

Dear Sirs: Two winters ago I purchased one of your Lyon Onepipe Heaters from Messrs. Cavanaugh & Kendrick. I was not sure that it could do the work, but upon your guarantee that it would heat my home I had the heater installed. I am pleased to say that the results obtained exceeded my expectations. My 18-room home was formerly heated by stoves, which you can readily understand were both troublesome and unsatisfactory. I am more than delighted to say that throughout the past severe winter my home was perfectly comfortable. I can recommend your Lyon Heater to any one desiring a first-class heating plant. Yours truly, DR. J. P. SPEER.

Your City House Is Easy to Heat, Compared to the One Above

The successful heating of such a home is made doubly difficult by the lofty ceilings and the unusual width of the spacious halls, yet the Doctor says his expectations were exceeded and the nuisance of attending several stoves was eliminated.

Think how comfortable your comparatively small house, with its regular construction, can be made with one of the Lyon Heaters.

The Lyon Heater Is of the "Onepipe" or Circulating Heat Type

There are no radiators, piping or registers, except the One Big One on the first floor. Every bit of the heat enters the house through this one register and is driven all over the house by the hot air constantly pouring out.
