

REPATRIATION OF SOLDIERS' BODIES NOW IS COMPLETE

America Plans to Beautify "Fields of Honor" in Europe.

MANY SLEEP IN LANDS THEY HELPED TO SAVE

French Aid in Tender Care of Graves of Men Who Died for Them.

[By Associated Press.] PARIS, March 11.—The work of repatriating to the United States the bodies of American soldiers, who died in France was completed today with a final shipment of 1,500 bodies from Brest for New York. This brings the total number of American bodies repatriated to 45,023.

The simple announcement of the completion of the task marks the close of one of the most trying and difficult problems ever placed before the American army. The American Graves Registration Service, the special branch of the army organized for the purpose, began work in February, 1919.

Agents of that service will now go to England and assemble ninety-seven American bodies destined for shipment to America. These were American soldiers who died in widely scattered parts of Ireland, Scotland, Wales and England. Five hundred other bodies of Americans whose relatives have decided to leave them in England, will be concentrated in a beautiful little permanent cemetery at Brookwood, Surrey, England. The British government has given the site. This work will be completed by July.

An extensive scheme of beautification has been developed by a special committee for the four cemeteries in France, which are to be the permanent resting places of nearly 30,000 Americans who fell in the world war. Original plans called for the expenditure of nearly $3,000,000, but in the interest of government economy, this sum has been reduced to about $1,000,000.

Work will begin immediately after this appropriation is made by Congress. Colonel H. F. Rebers, who has been in charge of the graves registration work, probably will direct the work.

The four fields of honor are Suresnes cemetery, near Paris; Bony, near St. Quentin; Belleau Wood, near Chateau-Thierry, and the Aronne, or Rohagne cemetery, near Romagne-sous-Montfaucon.

For the latter, a scheme has been worked out, which will make it very much like Arlington Cemetery. Each cemetery is to have a rest house and fine for visitors, and every grave will be marked with a uniform headstone.

One of the most touching features of the four cemeteries has been the way in which French people have made them their own. Sunday never goes by without scores of French people visiting them and placing flowers on the graves. This manifestation of friendship and appreciation caused many relatives to leave the bodies in France.

The beautifying of the fields of honor will take two years, but a great deal of preliminary work has already been done and the cemeteries in their present state are impressive. When the Graves Registration Service began its work, the bodies were in more than 500 cemeteries scattered in every part of France. Alsace-Lorraine and Germany. Several thousand men were employed under the direction of American army officers. Concentration of bodies in the four fields of honor has been completed. The Graves Registration Service will maintain a permanent office in Paris for the convenience of American visitors.

Shaw a Stickler for Strict Letter of Plays

NEW YORK, March 11.—Lawrence Langner, a director of the Theater Guild, tells an amusing Shaw anecdote to illustrate Shaw's precise insistence on the strict letter of his plays. Langner took to London some pictures of the Guild's production of "Heartbreak House" and Shaw at once spotted Effie Shannon.

"But she has blond hair!" he exclaimed, "and the character is supposed to have dark hair." "She was the best actress we could get for the part," Mr. Langner replied.

"But you must have changed a line!" Shaw thundered. "There is a distinct reference to her dark hair. What did you do with that?"

"Poor Langner hesitated, while visions of a lawsuit against the Guild crossed his mind. Then he had an inspiration.

"The actor mumbled it," he said.

Mr. Shaw smiled and was satisfied.

WIDOW AND NEGRO ACCUSED OF MURDER

Florida Man's Mysterious End Being Probed by Deland Police.

[By Associated Press.] DELAND, FLA., March 11.—Copies of letters and telegrams from William A. Shields to a sister in Wichita, Kansas, pending the arrival of which the authorities had postponed further investigation of the shooting of Shields near here the night of February 6, were received today.

Mrs. Shields, the widow, and Pete Smith, a negro, are in jail charged with the murder.

Officials stated that one letter, written by Shields on February 19, 1921, mentioned the name of a white man to be suspected in the event anything happened to him. The name was not made public, the authorities withholding it in an effort to locate the man.

Mrs. Shields and Smith again were questioned last night. She again charged the negro with the killing. Smith denied the charge and added that he had something to tell, but would divulge it only to his own attorneys and at the proper time.

WINSTON CHURCHILL FINDS NEW "PSYCHOLOGY," AS HE CALLS IT

Noted Novelist Joins Ranks of British and American Authors Who Have Dropped Discussion of Material Things to Experiment With Immortality.

[By Sidney B. Whipple.] NEW YORK, March 11.—Winston Churchill, American novelist, has joined the ranks of British and American authors who, after reaching the heights of literary aspiration, have dropped discussion of material things to experiment with immortality.

Churchill has been silent for three years. He broke this silence recently to explain to the Authors' League in a lecture just what he has been doing since 1919, and just what he has discovered. He believes he has found a new philosophy—or, as he would put it, a new "psychology." It is based on the "dual mind" that is seated in each one of us. One a material, sensual, and at times conscious mind, the other a creative or spiritual mind. It is the spiritual mind, he feels, that should control and administer our lives.

The "Primitive" Mind. Churchill calls the first of these minds the "primitive." This is the controlling instinct that sees to it that we are fed, clothed, and housed, that our senses are gratified. It regulates the physical functions of the body, such as walking, eating, digesting. It is manifest in instincts of self-preservation, sex and heredity.

The other better mind, controlling the emotions usually classified as "soufial," is directly opposed in character to the primitive mind. From the clashes between these minds, according to Churchill, come the bliss of the human race. His philosophy for complete happiness, therefore, would be to maintain the spiritual mind as the mental executive, the guiding genius, and leaving to the primitive mind all the mechanical details of feeding, preserving and reproducing the physiological elements of man. In this way, without clashing, each mind would perform its own functions properly, but with the spiritual uppermost in every man.

Leads to Overindulgence. From the standpoint of physiology, Churchill places the primitive mind somewhere in our spines or backbones. It is responsible for such actions as jazz dancing, scratching one's head, biting one's finger nails. It leads to overindulgence and sensuality. It is "shimmy" control of our bodies. If this mind is given free rein, the other soulful mind would become atrophied.

Unfolding his new philosophy, the author endorsed completely the psychology of Christ and St. Paul. In fact, he bases his argument largely on the theory of St. Paul that "the mind of the flesh is death; the mind of the spirit is life and peace."

As far as he touched on immortality—

That Good Spring Medicine — Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has Made Its Good Name — By its splendid formula that originated in a successful physician's prescription, composed of roots, barks, tonics and alternatives, — and by its practical success in thousands of families.

Take it for impure blood as well as for ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys.

Take it for scrofula, rheumatism, catarrh, sleeplessness, tired feeling, nervous weakness, anemia and low or run-down condition so common just now.

Let the story of Mrs. Lantz speak for it and lead you to try it. "I want to tell my story about the good Hood's Sarsaparilla did me. I have known this medicine all my life. It is a wonderful spring tonic and builder. Once I had eczema on both feet. My hands so bad I could not put them into water for two years.

Nobody knows what I suffered. I tried about everything else before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla at the urgent request of my mother. It did relieve me absolutely and I never have had the disease since.

"Wait, that is not all. Two years ago I had neuritis, which disappeared on taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This is a true story. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you." Mrs. CARRIE E. LANTZ, 8 Gardner Street, Allston, Mass.

ty—which was done with some caution—Churchill establishes a promise that belief in after-life is "conviction"—the feeling of truth that one gets when observing a great work of art, the feeling that it is true "in spite of inability to prove it."

Whole Secret of Living. Nevertheless, he goes on, although this is not yet science, the time is coming when its existence will be proved.

"I am not trying to found a new religion—heaven forbid," he said. "Nor am I anxious to force others to accept the truths I have discovered. I didn't want to learn how to be good. I wanted to learn how to get inward creative energy. That is the whole secret of living."

"I have arrived at a theory of the nature of the mind that seems to meet the need, or at least give a clue to it. Modern psychology and biology have paved the way to understanding, and will enable us soon to get what we so deeply need today—the scientific sanction for conduct or for social relationships."
