No fair man will say that Cleveland wrote all of Parker's speech, as it contains a number of short sentences.

It will be generally observed that Judge McCarty handed down a very able and interesting opinion in the Clowe case.

However, about all that the Utah Democrats need in its candidate for Governor is ability to take defeat cheerfully.

It appears that Judge Parker does not have to remain silent as to public questions, to conceal his views regarding them.

Maj. Sam King is going over to the Salt attending to legal business, such as enjoying Democrats not to support Roylance.

Restaurant-keepers show a forgiving spirit in not retaliating by asking that saloonmen be prohibited from serving free lunch.

Being such an optimistic man, Judge King doubtless assured Parker that in Utah Roosevelt's majority would be held down to 10,000.

After considering what Judge Parker said in the notification proceeding, Judge Bryan will undoubtedly hand out a dissenting opinion.

It will be just like the fair sex to fail to appreciate the favor to be granted by the Council in allowing ladies to enter saloons at night.

Chairman Targart admits that Illinois will go Republican, and older Democratic leaders think he has made a poor beginning by telling the truth.

Mr. Moyle does not see why any of his fellow-Democrats should have trouble in finding an ideal candidate for Governor, when he may be seen on the streets any day.

The Russians appear to be so very happy at the birth of a son and heir to the Czar, that perhaps now would be a good time for the powers to intervene in behalf of peace.

The faction in charge of the Democratic party claims that Democracy has been insane the past eight years. That's what we all thought. But how about its recovery from the grievous malady? Who guarantees it? Manifestly, the party's own word cannot be taken for its soundness of mind; for it would have claimed sanity all the while.

It is announced that the Populists will make a vigorous campaign in New York this year, depending largely on the labor element in the metropolis for their strength. The notification addresses and responses are to be made at Cooper Union on August 15th, and first-class Populist speakers will notify Messrs. Watson and Tibbles of their good fortune in securing the Populist nominations for President and Vice-President, respectively.

The news of the impression Salt Lake is making at Portland in its fight for the headquarters of the Mining Congress, falls upon grateful ears here. The impression that this city is in the fight to win gives it high prestige, and is likely to turn the scale in her favor, when the facts and her advantages are all fairly presented. It is conceded in the Portland dispatch that Salt Lake is in lively earnest after this headquarters, and that is unquestionably the fact. She intends to get it, too.

Russia is painfully prompt in her protest against Japan's action in entering the Chinese port of Che Foo and cutting off the fugitive torpedo boat-destroyer Ryushitein. Of course, if the Japanese in fact went into the port and took the Russian vessel from her refuge, without provocation other than their exasperation at her escape, they are in the wrong, and will be obliged to return her, with due apologies. But if the Russians began a fight on the Japanese in the harbor, it may put an entirely different face on the matter. In the meantime, the fact that the Russian ships must flee like frightened birds from the pursuing Japanese, and seek shelter wherever they can find it, is surely so exasperatingly humiliating to Russia that her rulers must be "mad clear through."

THE RIGHT FEELING IN IDAHO.

A hot preliminary contest among the Republicans of Idaho, has just ended in the defeat of Governor John T. Morrison, who sought a renomination and reelection. His friends were devoted to him, and made a strenuous and brilliant fight in his behalf, but at the State convention held in Moscow on Wednesday, he was defeated by Frank R. Gooding, who is a man well qualified, and will make an admirable Governor for our neighboring State.

We took to see this ticket receive the united, harmonious, and energetic support of the Republican party in Idaho, and that will ensure its election by a handsome majority. We note with pleasure that the Boise Statesman, an enthusiastic supporter of the renomination of Governor Morrison, leads off in the good work; it gives in its allegiance to Mr. Gooding, while regretting the defeat of its favorite, and calls on all Republicans of the State to unite in the support of the ticket, and, for a big majority for the State and National tickets on the 8th day of November next.

This is the proper spirit; it is the right course for all Republicans to follow. With that spirit prevailing, and with the head of the National ticket so vastly popular in all the mountain country, there is no doubt that the 583 plurality by which the Republicans elected Mr. Morrison in 1902 can and will be doubled this year for Mr. Gooding.

IT WAS THE REPUBLICAN WAY.

The Springfield Republican, which is supporting Judge Parker for President, quotes the following, written by Mr. Roosevelt in 1896:

Refusal to be free silver means, of course, that the party is resolutely against it, and the majority may rest content with this state of affairs and spare the minority humiliation by refraining from denouncing in so many words the free coinage of silver. I should prefer that they did denounce it; but the denunciation is really a matter of small consequence when the attitude of the party is so clear.

And the Republican claims that this advice is "more strongly applicable in defense of the present silence of the Democratic platform on the same subject than could have been the case with the Republicans in 1896." Not at all, for the Democratic party expressly recognized the supreme importance of this financial question by its long wrangle about it, and it only consented to drop it when the views of the factions were found to be irreconcilable; its declaration that the financial question is not an issue was therefore a transparent fraud. Nothing of this kind was urged by Mr. Roosevelt, whose distinct declaration was that refusal to be free silver was to be "resolutely against it," and he wanted to spare the feelings of the Silver Republicans merely, not to compromise on the question, much less to declare that there was no such question before the people.

It is noteworthy, further, that the Republican party, in its determination to be outspokenly candid with the people, refused to permit even that much of a glossing over of the real issues, but announced a clear, definite adherence to the gold standard. And that is the Republican way always; it is a way that magnificently separates it from the Democratic way in like case.

Bishop Potter has taken his turn at the dedication of a "reform saloon" in abuse and railing, because he aided in New York's subway. And now it is Bishop Brent's turn; he is chairman of the Philippine committee that recommended the making of the opium traffic a Government monopoly in the islands. It is really shocking to some minds to contemplate things of this sort. But that Bishop Potter acted up to a very high standard of human sympathy and enlightenment, and that Bishop Brent shows himself to be a practical man of broad gauge and statesmanlike qualities, are both demonstrated. They are both ornaments not only to their church, but to humanity.

Events apparently prove the wisdom of the order for the U. S. Mediterranean fleet to proceed to Turkey, for the Turkish officials visit Minister Leishman with protestations that all they want is for him to put in form the concessions which he requires, and they will be granted. The German foreign office, to which the Sultan announced his purpose to appeal, promptly said that its advice would be for the Sultan to yield to the American demands. So there seems to be no doubt that the demonstration of the fleet brought the desired results, and this even before it was made.

Judge Parker seems to have continued trouble about his attitude on the gold standard. He is now accused of interpolating a gold plank in his speech of acceptance, but he denies it, and says his written speech sent out in advance is what he spoke. And yet the very words of that interpolation are given, and Judge Parker doesn't object to them, so there is evidently something in the story that he said things that were not printed. He expresses surprise that his position on the gold standard was not understood before he sent his telegram to the St. Louis convention; but how it could have been understood when his special friend and manager, the Hon. David B. Hill, assured Bryan personally that he did not know whether Parker was a gold man or not, is one of those mysteries that show the curious workings of Judge Parker's mind. Certainly, Parker's support of Bryan in 1896 and again in 1900 would not conduce to the idea that he was a gold man, and he had said or done nothing in the meanwhile to clear up the question. Parker evidently wants to belong to both factions of the Democratic party at the same time, to "run with the hare and hunt with the hounds."

THE VOICE OF THE "HAUNTS."

The tomb-dwellers continue to be heard from, and in a way by no means to their own advantage, or to the benefit of the man who receives their ghostly adulation. Ex-President Cleveland leads the chorus of the "haunts," and now Hoke Smith comes in with his wabbling tremolo. Mr. Hoke Smith is sure that the prosperity realized under the McKinley administration was "made possible by the administration of Mr. Cleveland," forgetting evidently that Mr. Cleveland's administration wrecked the country by its ill-advised measures, and that these were repealed and reversed under the McKinley administration, so that the change of conditions in the country from Cleveland to McKinley was not at all one of sequence or succession, but was brought about by a complete change of policy. But what could be expected from a political ghost, that probably has had no information about current affairs since Cleveland went out of office on March 4, 1897?

But it appears that this particular political "haunt" not only doesn't know that anything was done by the Republicans to change the gloom of Democracy into the joy of Republicanism, but he has even forgotten some of his own rebellious acts while he was Secretary of the Interior under the last Cleveland administration. He cries out that "Conservative Democrats everywhere sought for a candidate who would represent respect for the Constitution and laws of our country." No doubt, Mr. Hoke Smith in his own mind classifies himself as one of those "conservative Democrats" who are trumpeting so loudly from the official graveyard for respect for the Constitution and laws. But while he may have forgotten the fact, the people of Utah will not, that he while Secretary of the Interior and charged with the enforcement of the laws, flagrantly and stubbornly refused to carry out the law which directed him to proceed with the opening of the Uncompagne Indian reservation. Instead of doing what the law commanded, he took the sixteen thousand dollars appropriated for the work and sent some old gentlemen of his selection out there to live, ostensibly as Commissioners, who did nothing, and when the money was gone they were withdrawn and everything was left as before; the law was completely and successfully defied by Secretary Hoke Smith. Under the circumstances, it really requires a good deal of gall on Mr. Hoke Smith's part for him to come out and prate now about "respect for the Constitution and laws."

The sortie of the Russian fleet from Port Arthur does not appear to have been as disastrous as that of Cervera from Santiago; but it certainly wasn't much of a success. Such of the vessels as were not chased back into the harbor were forced, some of them in a disabled condition, to take refuge in neutral ports. It is probable that these refugees will not be of any further service to Russia during the war, while the outlook for the ships that were chased back into Port Arthur is dark indeed. The effort to escape was doubtless dictated by the probable capitulation of the fortress before long to the Japanese, in which case the vessels must be surrendered with the forts. The Japs appear to be doing very well indeed.

Panama has "money to burn." She has loaned four million dollars at four per cent on New York realty, and wants to loan two million more on the like security. This makes it an endowed republic, the first ever known among men. The Panama Government is now offering a $200 prize for the best design for a flag. How would a golden circumpolar with showers of American eagles falling from it, on a silver field, with a carmine map of the Isthmus on a blue field in place of the stripes, do?

FLIES AND TYPHOID.

From the Chicago Tribune. Science has given the housewife a strong reason in addition to the many good ones she already had for waging relentless and unremitting war upon the house fly. Science has shown that this insect is one of the most ubiquitous and malignant disseminators of the deadly typhoid bacillus. Evidence on this point seems conclusive. Those which swarmed in all the camps had deposited enormous quantities of bacilli in the soldiers' hard tack and "sow belly," and that this was the true explanation of their sickness. Those who investigated the typhoid epidemics in the British camps during the Boer war arrived at a similar conclusion.

RUSSELL SAGE'S BIG FORTUNE.

From the Philadelphia Press. The wealth of Russell Sage is estimated by some Wall street authorities to reach $178,000,000, and as he was 88 years old last Thursday, it would make his savings average $2,000,000 a year for his life. If he were not opposed to holding his money he might be regarded as entitled to one, but he clings as far as possible to his office. As he has no children the wonder is what he will do with his money when he dies. If Mrs. Sage survives him, and it is left for her to say what shall be done with the money, it will go to some wise end.

RHYMES OF THE DAY.

Some men go in to "take a smile," And taking her sweetest smile, "I'll try to steal my heart," said she, "Against Love's subtle wiles." So both in steel began to deal. And, as you may opine, Love soon declared a dividend And started a combine. —Smart Set.

TEACH ME TO LOVE. "Teach me to love," thus sang the dove Before their wedding day. "Dear, show me how to keep my vow To hold your heart away." A new direction took the bird. But when they wed, her song 'twas said, Her ditty now is "Teach me how To keep a lady cool." —Philadelphia Bulletin.
