MOWED IN SWATHS.

Brave Japanese Battalion Practically Annihilated at Hei Ying Tai.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—In a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph the correspondent of the paper in the field with Gen. Kuraki says: "The Russians made a very poor stand on the heights beyond the Taitse river. At Aiping extensive trenches had been dug on the cliffs overlooking the river opposite and above the town, but the first few shells from the Japanese batteries sent the enemy flying. I was amazed to see officers leading the way in this headlong flight across the hill and down into the valley behind. The officers were easily distinguishable in the forefront of the crowd of fugitives."

The correspondent graphically describes the fierce fighting for possession of a hill at Hei Ying Tai, about fifteen miles northeast of Liao yang, the key of the Russian position and upon the character of which depended the success of Gen. Kuraki's flank movement, and the terrible punishment the Japanese sustained in capturing it. After the capture there was a double night attack, the Japanese trying to capture a battery that had annoyed them during the day and the Russians seeking to recapture Hei Ying Tai. "Neither desperate venture succeeded. The Russians were repeatedly near gaining the summit, but were swept away each time by Japanese bayonets and bullets. On the other side the Japanese attacked on the Russian battery was defeated by electrical devices the Russians had arranged, giving them the exact position of the assaulting party. "The brave Japanese were mowed down in swaths in front of the Russian guns, one battalion being practically annihilated. Visiting the hillside afterward it was almost impossible to avoid stepping into the pools of blood. The field was littered with broken equipment, and the grimaces of all there were hundreds of broken or twisted bloody bayonets."

A WISE MAN.

"Good morning, sir," said a middle-aged gentleman, a few days ago, as he entered The Western Tailoring establishment. "Show me some of those 50 suits that you advertised in your paper." "Yes, sir, that's what you want. One trial will convince you that we can save you about 1/3 what you have been paying to other tailors." "I paid $5 for this suit, and look at the front of this coat. What is the cause of these breaks on the fore part? I only had this suit pressed yesterday and it looks almost as bad as it did before." "Your tailor, sir, did not shrink the halfcloth or canvas, nor did he stay the edges properly." "And you say you will keep all garments in repair free of charge for one year?" "Yes, sir."

"All right, take my measure, and when the suit is finished send it to Room 1, Atlas block." "Our garments are well stayed and shaped. We sponge our cloth and never care to be out of the shop. You will never see a break in any coat we make." THE WESTERN TAILORS, 120 1/2 So. Main St. Open until 9 p. m.

MAY SETTLE OUT OF COURT.

Efforts Being Made to Adjust Differences in Phipps Family.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 12.—A conference between the attorneys representing both parties to the divorce suit of Lawrence C. Phipps, the Haysburg mill millionaire, was held today. Mrs. Phipps was present, but so far as the public has been able to learn, Mr. Phipps, although in the city, did not attend the meeting. However, his attorney made a proposition to settle out of court the trouble between husband and wife, but just what basis of the proposed settlement is, can not be stated.

An effort to get a statement from Mrs. Phipps was unsuccessful and Mr. Phipps' attorney declined to speak for his client. It is stated on authority, however, that Mrs. Phipps asked until tomorrow to consider the proposition, which request was granted. Mrs. Phipps is expected to make answer in her husband's suit some time tomorrow. If she desires to answer at all, should she fall the suit will go to trial.

A reported feature of the husband's settlement proposal is withdrawal of his suit for divorce and substitution of an action for separation. MEN ARE POWERLESS

To Fight Against Disease Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause. To treat Dandruff, and Falling Hair, with fruit or oils on which parasites feed, is like scoping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from coming in.

You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble. You must kill the Dandruff Germ. Newbro's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing. When the germ is removed, the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty.

"Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 50c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.
