SOUTH JORDAN IS NOW IN LINE

Water Users Are Reconciled.

No More Opposition to the Reclamation Plans of the Government.

Drill Expert Hammond Is Called to the Northeast—Will Drill on Custer's Battlefield.

Stockholders of the South Jordan Canal company, in session at Bingham Junction yesterday, were addressed by State Engineer Doremus and Attorney F. S. Richards, who explained in detail the provisions of the articles of incorporation of the Beaulieu-Duchesne Water-Users' association, which have been placed in the hands of committees for securing the signatures of intending stockholders. The land owners present evinced great interest in the proposition and the sentiment appeared to be altogether favorable to speeding the completion of the organization.

No More Objections. This disposition is considered significant on account of the South Jordan company having been the one canal company of the valley in which serious opposition to the Utah lake project developed when it first came up for discussion. So far no objection has arisen in any quarter to the larger irrigation project undertaken by the Government reclamation service.

Expert From Montana. George A. Hammond, drill expert of the Government reclamation service, will leave Wednesday for another tour of inspection of the work in progress in his department in connection with the reclamation projects of Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. He has summoned by telegraph from Montana an expert who will take charge of the drill operation to be started this week at Utah lake. These operations are for the purpose of ascertaining the earth formations where works are to be constructed and to locate artesian flows of water and other peculiarities which may exist beneath the surface.

Wells on Battlefield. On his approaching northern trip Mr. Hammond will visit the site of the proposed irrigation works on the Big Horn river, which will irrigate lands of the Crow reservation, in the vicinity of the famous Custer battlefield—a circumstance which serves as a forcible reminder of the wonders that are to be performed by the reclamation act in wiping out all remaining landmarks of the old-time "frontier."
