VIEWS ON THE WATER QUESTION

Mr. Richards Answers Objections.

He Thinks There Is No Doubt That Farmers Will Be Supplied.

City Is Financially Unable to Buy Water Rights in Toto-Utah Lake Inexhaustible

Attorney F. S. Richards, who has been associated with the special Council committee in devising a plan to increase the city's water supply, is a strong advocate of the plan recommended by the majority of the committee.

The importance of the subject cannot, my opinion, be overestimated," Mr Richards said yesterday to a Tribunrepresentative, by way of introduction to a general statement intended to cover the Important objections to the plan which have been urged by taxpayers. "I believe the scarcity of the water supply has prevepted the growth and development of the city to a much greater extent than people realize. This opinion is based largely upon facts that have combased largely upon facts that have come to my personal knowledge, where capitalists have deferred making very valuable improvements on property within the city, and others have declined to make investments, solely because of the shortage of water. But this is only one of many reasons why the water supply should be increased, not least among which is that affecting the health and comfort of the community. Under present conditions we are obliged to continually inhale air that is filled with noxious dust, because there is not sufficient water to properly sprinkle the streets. kle the streets.

City Council's Plan.

"The proposed plan of the City Council for increasing the water supply, he continued, "contemplates the acquisition by the city of the waters of Mill creek, Big Cottonwood and Little Cottonwood, all pure mountain streams, as soon as a sultable conduit can be constructed to convey the waters from these streams into the present Parky's canyon conduit, and as fast as the needs of the city require it.

How Waters Are Acquired. How Waters Are Acquired,
"It is proposed to acquire these mountain waters by exchange and lease, inasmuch as the present owners of water from these sources are now averse to selling their water rights or making any absolute exchange that would alienate their rittles to them. But I believe the time will come when, through the development of Utah lake and the establishment of permanent irrigation works for the distribution of the water, the farmers will see that their water supply is just as secure and satisfactory from the lake as from the mountains, and then a mutually satisfactory arrangement can be made, by which the city will become the absolute owner of the water rights.

Amount of Water Available.

Amount of Water Available.

"Two-thirds of the waters of Big Cottonwood creek and Mill creek are used on lands lying under the Salt Lake City canal, and much of the water that is used above the canal is not required for irrigation, purposes during the fail and winter months, when the city's supply is the least. The city now has options for the exchange of one-balf the waters of Big Cottonwood creek, the flow of which during the low-water season is 27,200,000 gal-Cottonwood creek, the flow of which durlog the low-water season is 27,200,000 gallons per 24 hours. This will add 13,500,000 gallons per day to the city's present supply, and will more than double the quantity of water that the city derives during the month of September, from all present sources combined. Negotiations are now pending by which it is expected that practically all the waters of Big Cottonwood and Mill creek can be acquired by exchange or lease, and it is reasonably certain that, when the city's necessities require it, the water of Little Cottonwood can be acquired in a similar manner.
When this shall have been accomplished there will have been added more than 40,90,000 gallons per day to the city's present supply.

Terms of Exchange.

The terms of exchange are practically "The terms of exchange are practically the same as those for an exchange of Parley's creek, except that, in this Instance, the city is to pay a bonus of $10 per acre to the farmers and give an additional quantity of 25 per cent more water than it receives. While these requirements may appear objectionable, they are unavoidable and, under the circumstances, seem to be justifiable. The money required for this purpose will not aggregate a large sum and the difference between the value of the waters exchanged seems to warrant the difference in the quantities of water given and received.

Objectionable Feature Unavoidable. "It is true that the farmers reserve the right to take back the Cottonwood water if the city falls to furnish them canal water, according to the contract; but the city has the right to regain the Cottonwood water by supplying canal water at any time before the expiration of six months after the default is made. While this is an objectionable provision it seems absolutely impossible to effect an exchange upon any other terms, for the reason that the farmers demand an absolute guaranty that they shall have the exchange water which they are promised. But I regard the objection to this feature of the contract as being more a matter of form than substance, because it will be in the power of the city, by taking necessary precautions, to render it practically impossible for a forfeiture to occur." 'It is true that the farmers reserve the Trouble Not Likely to Occur.

"Is it not probable that the same trou-ble may arise here that occurred in the Parley's creek case?" was asked Mr. Richards.

Parley's creek case?" was asked Mr. Richards.

"I think not," he said. "There never was any difficulty about the Parley's creek exchange until Utah lake became so low that the water would not run out by gravity, and then it was not due to any failure in the source of supply, but in the means for making the water available. As soon as the present pumping plant was installed the situation was immediately relieved, and, notwithstanding the prevalent drought of that senson, an abundant supply from the lake enabled the city to retake the Parley's creek water. From that time the supply became and has remained permanent, and can be increased to such an extent as to furnish ample water for exchange purposes. This can be accomplished either through the Government plan for developing Utah lake or by the city itself, if that work should be delayed; besides, the city has an option to purchase Spring creek, and that water could be used for exchange purposes if it should be deemed advisable to make the purchase."

Utah Lake's Great Supply.

ple supply of water in the lake, and much of the time vast quantities of it have run to waste. Although water from all the streams flowing into the lake has been di-verted onto the surrounding lands for irverted onto the surrounding lands for irrigation purposes, so that, at times there has been comparatively little surface water flowing into the lake, still, with its subterranean sources of supply, after a series of years of unprecedented drought, we now find sufficient water in the lake to meet demands for several years to come, equal to all of those which have been made upon it in the past.

What History Shows.

"History also shows that a period of scarcity of water is always followed by a period of plentiful supply. These conditions have occurred at the lake in cycles of about ten years. The water is now a foot higher in the lake than it was a year ago, and, judging from the past, we may confidently expect the water supply to increase each year for several years, and, by that time, ample provision can be made for the storage and conservation of a plentiful supply of water in the lake."

"What do you think of the objection made that the city will not acquire by purchase a single gallon of water?"

Objection Is Technical.

Objection Is Technical.

Objection Is Technical.

'I regard this objection as being technical and of little weight, because it is absolutely impossible, under existing conditions, for the city to acquire this water by purchase. If the farmers were willing to sell (and they are not), the city has not the money to buy, and, under the present constitutional restrictions, it would be impossible for it to borrow the money that would be required to purchase any considerable quantity of mountain water. If the city were to bond itself to the utmost limit provided by law, the quantity of water that could be purchased, after expending the money that would be necessary to bring the water into the city would be comparatively insignificant, and would not furnish any material increase in the present supply.

Increase Supply Fourfold.

Increase Supply Fourfold.

Increase Supply Fourfold.

"I will say that it seems reasonably certain that through the plan proposed the water supply of the city can be increased about fourfold by the expenditure of $550,000, and the rights of the city can be so safeguarded as to prevent any forfeiture or interruption in the use of the water. If this plan is not adopted and we must wait till the purchase of the mountain streams can be effected. I do not see how there can be any material increase in either the city's water supply or its population. In such an event there would be little increase in the assessed valuation of property to justify any larger bonded indebtedness than at present and any increase in the city's water supply must therefore be indefinitely postponed."

Burglar May Soon Be Forced in the Bankruptcy Court.

After Wandering Freely Through Three Sets of Lodgings, He Is Poor as Ever.

With rooming-houses as his specialty a burglar has been boldly plying his trade during the past week in the same locality, and, though the police have good description of him, so far he has evaded their vigilance, without seeming to take any special precaution to do so. He does his work at any time, day or night, does not wear a mask, and

Visited Dr. Irvine. This man entered the house of Dr. J. F. Irvine, in the Shaw terrace, 206 West Second South, at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning. He went directly to the second floor, two chambers of which were occupied by women roomers, who had their doors locked. Whether he attempted to enter these rooms is not known, but he was heard to enter the others. No alarm was occasioned, as the roomers thought he was one of the family, and the family thought he was one of the His search being fruitless, the burglar went to the floor below. The first room he stepped into there was the sleeping apartment of Dr. and Mes. Irvine.

He did not add that something would do just as well, but decided to retire at once, without waiting to ascertain whether the gentleman he wanted lived in that house or not.

As the man went down the street Irvine went to the window and aw him plainly in the morning light. He was a foreigner, with a small black moustache, peculiar eyes, and wore a short gray coat, such as is worn by workingmen. On his head was a cap police were telephoned and responded at once, but could not find the man.

Met the Landlady. A short time before the attempted burglary at the Shaw terrace, No. 206 man answering this same description attempted to enter 216 Shaw terrace the boarding and rooming-house kept by Mrs Allie Coverdale. He dashed boldly up the steps and, without knocking or ringing the bell, opened the door on Mrs. Coverdale, who had at that moment come into the hall to see whether she had locked the door. immediately ran down the steps, she following him as far as the porch. When he saw this, he turned and asked if some one lived there, using a peculiar name, and speaking in broken English. Her suspicions were at once aroused.

Visited the Antler.

The police say that this same man : short time ago went through the Antler rooming-house, which is across the street east from the Shaw terrace. He chose the evening for his entrance, and went through the entire house. As in the case of the Shaw terrace, he se-cured nothing of value, and left a very good description of himself, as he was seen at close range. His methods are very simple, and he has a good excuse. but his booty has been so small that, even without the interference of the police, he should see the folly of burglarizing rooming-houses.

Howard Tailot. Matinee at 2:15 this afternoon. Final performance tonight.

One of the prettiest, most tuneful and most picturesque of all the musical comedies, "A Chinese Honeymoon," is always sure of a hearty reception when presented by an acceptable company, with the accessories of elaborate scenery and attractive dress. The music is bright and pleasing, the songs fit in the story and the humor is of the spontaneous order. Those who saw it last season were not disappointed in seeing it again last night, and those who had not seen it before found it excellent.

John L. Kearney in the part of Mr. Pineasple leaves nothing to regret in the absence of John E. Henshaw, the original Pineapple, nor does Miss Georgia Bryton fall far behind Miss Toby Claud, who created the part of FI FI. In fact, the camedy of these two gained by a touch of originality all their own. Miss Bryton's rendition of "I Want to be a Loidy" was received with great favor.

Alies Regina McAvoy, the Mrs. Pineapple of the cast made the bit of the evening with the song. "Colong Li." a lingering and witching melody, that she sang with charming effect, which was heightened by the choral accompaniment, costumes and scenic environment.

George B. Broderiek as the Emperor, Joseph E. Miller as the Lord Chanceller and Albert Frorem as the Admiral, deserve mention, the latter especially winning approval in the song, "Rolf Poly."

The theater was not crowded, but the audience was large and appreciative.

'A Little Outcast' will be seen at the Grand theater this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, and the closing performance of the engagement will occur tonight.

Pandemonium reigned for an hour or more last everling on East Sec and South street, directly in front of the Grand theater. Pedestrians all along the way were attracted by a tremendous noise and sought to investigate the cause, only to find that it was merely the newsboys giving expression to their pleasure at being invited to be the guests of Mr. Carpenter and Jones & Hammer to Hee "A Little Outcast." As early as 7 o'clock the boys began to arrive at the theater, and long before the time set for the curtain to go up 200 of them were lined up in front of the doors. Once unside, the newsless were all attention, like play being of absorbing interest to them and calling forth their unstituted approval in the way of cheers and applicance. "A Little Outcast" closes its engagement here to-plant after a successful run both the night, after a successful run, both the afternoon and evening houses for today being nearly sold out.

Second South street looked like the Rialto for a short time yesterday afternoon. Theatrical people were on all sides. Groups of chorus girls stopped in front of show windows and bigger lights in the theatrical firmiment passed in twos and threes or drove past in ranabouts of autos seeing what sights the city had to offer. Three companies are now in the city, "San Toy," "Chinese Honeymoon" and "A Little Outcast." One or two edvance men are paving the way for their productions and the two vaudeville houses are supporting full bills. The "San Toy" people are laying over until Monday morning. Several of them are at the Wilson. A number of the "Chinese Honeymoon" company are at the Knutsford and sone of the "A Little Outcast" at the Konyon. Others from all three are scattered through the hotels.

SHORT but meteoric was the career of G. D. Manning of Blackfoot, Ida., who came to this city some days ago with $400 and a desire to have a good time. Upon arriving in Sait Lake Manning assimilated a quantity of Commercial street "red eye" and became possessed of the idea that he was destined to wreck all the chance parlors along that thoroughfare. After dropping $125 in a crap game he decided that he had been the victim of a bad hunch and stopped gambling. Instead he went to drinking harder than ever. After spending the rest of his money for whisky and rumning a bar bill of considerable dimensions. Manning wrote a check on the National Bank of the Republic for $10. The check came back stamped "No Funds," and Manning was arrested. Manning will probably be charged with obtaining money under false pretenses from E. G. Macilroy's Federal Club salcon.

Rev. Mr. Fish Tenders Resignation.

Will Return to His Old Home in Boston. Mass.

Departure Will Be a Source of Keen Regret to Those Who Have Known Him.

Rev. William H. Fish, Jr., for the past two years the minister of the First Unitarian society in this city, har tendered his resignation to the board of directors of the church, the resignation to take effect on December 31. The board has accepted Mr. Fish's resignation, after vainly endeavoring to prevail upon him to reconsider his fecision and accept a call for another year. For personal reasons Mr. Fish felt that he must decline to accept the call, and, with Mrs. Fish, will leave for his old home in Boston immediately at the close of the present year.

Mr. Fish's Good Work.

Not quite two years ago Mr. Fish came to Salt Lake, in response to a call from the First Unitarian society. Since his coming all the old debts of the church have been wiped out, an out-standing note paid, the new Unity half has been crected and a large share of the funds necessary for the building raised by Rev. Mr. Fish during a sum-mer spent in Boston a year ago. The society is now in a better condition. financially and otherwise, than for several years past, and its success is due in large measure to the personal efforts of Mr. Fish Won a High Place

Of broad culture and scholarly attainments, Rev. Mr. Fish soon won for him-self a high place among the cultured people of the city, and his departure will
