

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 22, 1905.

SOCIETY. Miss Anna McCornick was hostess Friday evening at one of the merriest events of the year in bright Salt Lake society. That it was very small did not detract from its charm, and when the wraps were sought after many hours of dancing, the verdict of each guest was that it was the pleasant party of the year. The two large drawing-rooms were used for dancing and an orchestra of six pieces stationed in the alcove. The cotillon was danced with Henry McCornick leading, and he proved such an adept that it has been decided to call upon him regularly hereafter to take charge of this merry social entertainments. He introduced some very pretty figures, all of which were new. The favors were from New York and proved attractive souvenirs of the event. The decorations of American Beauty roses and large white chrysanthemums were striking and the supper served at midnight consisted of an elaborate menu. All in all, it was one of the events of the season. Looking on and enjoying the fun were Mr. and Mrs. McCornick, Mrs. A. H. S. Bird, Mrs. McCaskell, Miss Keogh, Mrs. Newhouse. Those taking part in the dance were Miss McCornick, Miss Judge, Miss Salisbury, Miss Kinney, Miss Mose Kirkpatrick, Miss Ruth Kirkpatrick, Miss Geddes, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Callahan, Miss Williams, Miss Stingley, Miss Margaret Miller, Miss McMillan, Miss Adelaide Nason, Messrs. Geo. N. Lawrence, Goodwin, Nason, Peery, Livermore, Curg Williams, Harry Roberts, Miles Vartan.

Wholesale Dry Goods Men Elect Officers

Next Annual Conference of Association to Be Held in New York, as It Was This Year.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—At the second closing session of the Wholesale Dry Goods association's annual meeting there has been protracted discussion on the custom of the direct sales to retailers by manufacturers and commission merchants. Twenty prominent New York commission merchants and representatives of mills took part in the discussion, which lasted several hours. Manufacturing representatives, as well as commission merchants, promised to co-operate with the association in an effort to save the jobbers. Before the jobbing question came up the association considered the report of a committee appointed to go into the subject of the extension of the parcel post system of doing business. Much opposition was expressed toward any extension of the parcel post and it was decided that the managers of the association should lay the views of the wholesalers before their local representatives. Discussion of the middleman was then taken up. Papers were read by representatives of those interests declaring that many large manufacturers, including those represented through the large commission-houses, who are absolutely dependent upon the jobbers for the great share of their business as it is conducted at present, have so little regard for those that are their best customers that they are selling many retailers, the natural customers of those same jobbers, at practically the same prices. Widespread formation of syndicates in the smaller cities, whereby the local merchants pool their orders and deal directly with the manufacturers, also was condemned. When the talk was over no rules were proposed, but the meeting indulged in suggestions made in various papers and the members of the association expressed the belief that the practice of the manufacturers would be less prevalent hereafter. It was decided to hold the next conference in New York. Officers were elected as follows: President, J. K. Burnham, Kansas City; first vice-president, J. W. Scott, Chicago; second vice-president, Edward S. Lewis, St. Louis; secretary, treasurer, Douglas Dallan, New York; executive committee, W. N. Moore, Kansas City; Robert Geddes, Indianapolis; Stuart Shillito, Cincinnati; W. W. Wheeler, St. Joseph; F. J. Goll, Milwaukee; F. K. Stoops, Detroit; George H. Partridge, Minneapolis; J. M. Kaster, Baltimore, and Charles W. Blodgett, Boston.
