

mountain country, and he holds the following commercial positions:

President of Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution.

President of the State Bank of Utah.

President of Zion's Savings Bank and Trust Company.

President of the Utah Sugar Company.

President of the Inland Consolidated Sugar Company.

President of the Consolidated Wagon and Machine Company.

President of the Utah Light and Railway Company.

President of the Salt Lake & Los Angeles Railroad Company.

President of the Saltair Beach Company.

President of the Inland Crystal Salt Company.

President of the Salt Lake Dramatic Association.

President of the Salt Lake Knitting Company.

President of the Beneficial Life Insurance Company.

President of the Sappets and Sevier Sugar Company.

By means of his financial power he is able to exert influence and to make combinations in the interest of himself and his church, and to protect himself and favorites from legal and personal consequences of crime.

What Congress sought to do by its escheat acts, taking away property from the church, has all been undone by the greed of this hierarch, who has multiplied the power of the church in violation of the sentiment of the country, and therefore in violation of the covenants.

In all the teaching of the present hierarch and those who follow his example, treason against the Government is inculcated. This is a distinct violation of a pledge which was made to the effect that the Mormon church and people desired to obey the laws and be in harmony with their fellow citizens.

In a sermon delivered at St. George in September, 1904, Joseph F. Smith advised his people not to sell land to their "enemies," meaning all people of the United States not Mormons. In his attempted explanation given to the Associated Press he used the same word "enemies," meaning his fellow citizens of the Republic.

It is the common inculcation in the Mormon church that the Government of the United States is unrighteous; that the people are given over to wickedness; that Congress is a licentious and vicious body, and that all holiness and all authority from Almighty God abides within the Mormon church. A word most commonly in use concerning our National Government and its people is "enemies" when Mormon preachers are speaking of all outside the Mormon church.

In every possible way the common member of the Mormon church is made to feel that he owes all his devotion to the leaders of the church and owes no patriotism and no loyalty to the flag and to our national life.

III.—AS TO THE REMEDY

So long as the Gentiles of Utah and the Government of the United States permit, the Mormon church will steadily continue its vicious encroachment. If there was no remonstrance polygamy would be openly, flagrantly and generally practiced as it is now secretly taught and indulged in by a certain select class in the church. The Gentiles who gave their assent to Statehood and who placed themselves in a subordinate position toward the Mormon minority owe it to themselves, their loyalty to the country, their own dignity and to human justice to join in resentment of the awful betrayal of promise by the Mormon church.

There is not a Gentile in Utah who does not know that the Gentiles were betrayed and are being betrayed in every day's proceedings of the Mormon church.

They should join in one solid body, first to take the political power which their numbers permit, and secondly to show by their resistance that they are not accessories to the crimes which the Mormon church commits.

The Gentiles, who for commercial or political reason, counsel quiescence in this crisis are doing a great evil to the coming generations of Utah.

It is folly to say that by a battle against Mormon domination we drive away good men and good capital from this State. Good men and good capital were being driven away by the conditions which the Mormon church imposed and good men and capital will be kept away by the conditions which the Mormon church will perpetuate if it be permitted to have its wish. In fact, it is the desire of the Mormon church now that Gentiles who have built up the State and have enriched it by their capital and investment shall be driven away in order that Mormons may become possessed, at their own price, of all the property of the State of Utah and that Mormon priests may rule it from the Bee Hive house as one of the principalities of the Kingdom of God in which they are the regents.

What is the right and duty of Congress in this matter? The following quotation from the remarks of Judge Jere Wilson is a suggestion:

Nebraska was admitted into the Union, and Nebraska was required to enter into a compact that slavery should never exist in that State without the consent of the States. No body has ever doubted the propriety of entering into such a compact, nor has anybody ever doubted the binding character of the compact. Congress has ever asked for guarantees that the compact would be kept by the State. There can be no doubt as to the right of Congress to enter into such a compact. Congress has been acting upon such a right for more than three-fourths of a century, has admitted States upon compact precisely similar in principle; it is too late to begin to dispute it now.

If it may be made, then the right to enforce it follows by necessary implication. It is idle to say that such a compact may be made and then when the considerations have been mutually received, Statehood on the one side and the pledge, not to do a particular thing on the other, either party can violate it without remedy to the other.

In your own hands. Suppose they violate this compact, suppose that after they put this into the Constitution, and thereby induce you to grant them the high privilege and political right of Statehood, they should turn right around and violate the pact which is attributed to them here, what would you do? You could shut the doors of the Senate and House of Representatives against them; you could deny them a voice in the councils of the Nation, because they have acted in bad faith, and violated their solemn agreement by which they succeeded in getting themselves into the condition of Statehood. You could deny them the right to use the mails, that indispensable thing in the matter of trade and commerce of this country. There are many ways in which, peaceably, but all powerfully, you could compel the performance of that compact. Congress could reach such a case and not put a title of the strain on the Constitution that it was subject to when the act was passed authorizing the attachment and arrest of a witness who had not been subpoenaed, and forfeiting the property of this church and commanding the courts what kind of a judgment to render. After these, Congress cannot deny its ability to devise means to meet the emergency, or its courage to grapple with troublesome questions.

Now, that was not only uttered to advise Congress of its rights, but was uttered as a pledge to the country of what the Mormon church was willing to submit to in case it violated its covenants.

Judge Wilson was the paid attorney of the Mormon church. He was a distinguished man of the finest kind of legal attainment, a strict constructionist of the Constitution, and a humanitarian whose sympathy had been aroused by the Mormon plea of suffering.

Congress checked somewhat the unseemly course of the Mormon hierarchy by ejecting Brigham H. Roberts from the House. It can do more by ejecting from the Senate Reed Smoot, a pet apostle of the Mormon church, who more distinctly represents the church's violation of covenant.

In all the crimes of the church, in all the pledge breaking, Reed Smoot has his distinct part. He is one of the strongest elements in the defiance of law and decency by the Mormon church. After Congress shall have ejected him, according to its right, it can and should take other proceedings to bring the church to its senses.

The Mormon church teaches that all earthly governments, including the Government of the United States, are unrighteous and will be broken in pieces. It teaches that the Kingdom of God (meaning the Mormon church) is the only righteous government, and that the priests of God (meaning the priests of the Mormon church) are the only righteous rulers of mankind.

It holds absolute power in Utah; it has spread its power into surrounding States and Territories. It is the right and duty of Congress to check and subdue at once this treasonable organization.

GIRL ARRESTS BURGLAR

Flings Herself Upon Him in a Crowded Street.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—As the result of his arrest in the street by a plucky girl of 15, a burglar named Jean Frederic has been charged in the Police court here and remanded in custody. This week a woman named Ribout, living in the Goutte d'Or district, went out, having the house in charge of her fifteen-year-old daughter, Marcelle. While the child was awaiting her mother's return the French burglar had opened a man of great height entered, catching sight of the girl, he stepped toward her and said:

"I know that your mother is away. If you make a sound I will kill you."

The child watched him in terror as he went systematically through the house, pocketing everything of value. Finally he took his departure, the girl being left badly frightened. When her mother returned the child Marcelle was bitterly upbraided. Mrs. Ribout then lodged complaints with the police of the district.

Burglar's Dire Threat.

"I know that your mother is away. If you make a sound I will kill you."

The child watched him in terror as he went systematically through the house, pocketing everything of value. Finally he took his departure, the girl being left badly frightened. When her mother returned the child Marcelle was bitterly upbraided. Mrs. Ribout then lodged complaints with the police of the district.

Flung Herself Upon Him.

Sent out on an errand, the little girl suddenly found herself face to face with the burglar in the Rue Vaugouard. Without a moment's hesitation she flung herself upon him, clinging around his neck, cried for help at the top of her voice. Fortunately the street was crowded and the burglar could not harm the child he was overpowered by the passers-by and taken to the nearest police station.

Burglar Finally Confesses.

Marcelle was made a great deal of her by the police, and Frederic, being pressed by the police, confessed to the burglary at Mme. Ribout's house.

DISTRESS IN CORFU DUE TO LAZINESS

Natives in Dire Want in Land of Great Natural Resources.

ATHENS, Sept. 9.—Advises from Corfu state that in contrast to the prosperity which more or less prevails throughout Greece, there is much distress in Corfu. This picturesque island, since it was handed over, together with the Ionian islands, to Greece by Great Britain in 1864, has made little progress in comparison with the other provinces of the kingdom. After its annexation to Greece the islanders, having been deprived of their former employments and the circulation of money to which they were accustomed during the British occupation, have done little or nothing to discover new resources. Agriculture is still rudimentary, and no rural industry has been developed in spite of the exceptional fertility of the soil.

Olive Trees Grow Wild.

About three-quarters of the rural districts are covered with olive trees which have never been cultivated. Wine, which is the other principal product of the island, is of bad quality and remains unsold. Unfortunately, the Greek Government has not been able to rouse the peasants from their idleness and ignorance by establishing an adequate number of agricultural schools, or by giving them material assistance to enable them to make a start. Moreover, by laws passed in 1890 and 1891, the landowners and other holders of the peasants have been deprived of any means of recovering their debts, which has prevented any credit from being given and rendered their situation much worse.

Trade With Italy and Greece.

In the town of Corfu and its suburbs, numbering 25,000 inhabitants, a large portion of the trade is with Italy and Greece. Some foreigners recently commenced to build a gambling-house, but the works have been stopped in consequence of the disapproving attitude of the Greek Government. Negotiations are now going on between the Austrian agent and some foreign capitalists who are disposed to buy the palace, built at Otrinturi village by the late Emperor Elizabeth and transform it into a sanatorium.

Excellent Schools Maintained.

The Italian language, a sort of Venetian dialect which had been introduced in Corfu during the Venetian occupation, is still much spoken in the town. This is due to the influence of the excellent schools maintained both by the religious orders and by the Italian Government.

GREEN PERIL OF THE FRENCH

Writers Warn Gallic People Against Absinth's Fearful Hold.

Writers are again warning the French public against what is termed the "green peril"—in other words, absinth, the consumption of which is fearfully on the increase in France. In Belgium an interdiction has been placed on the terrible drink and its manufacture and sale are now forbidden in that country. According to one of the anti-absinth writers, Maurice Talmeyr, 12,500 hectoliters, or 2,025,000 gallons, in round numbers, of the stuff are annually absorbed by French people, men and women—for women have also learned to like the fee vert, now the green peril. Fifty years ago only 73 hectoliters of absinth were consumed in France. The increase of absinth is attributed to the deleterious drink. Sixty years back there were only 10,000 registered lunatics, and now there are 20,000. The increase in crime is also traced to the love of absinth among the masses.

Dr. Garnier in his "Folle a Paris" and his "Criminal Instinct" gives numerous cases in proof of this, but he says that if absinthism and alcoholism are not the sole motors of moral perversion, they may, in his opinion, be considered the predominant causes of the same. The doctor further says that in a family addicted to alcoholic stimulants, absinth is put into the soup, and also "collected, unguay and crime form a somber trilogy closely united and intertwined."

M. Talmeyr, who quotes Dr. Garnier, is more emphatic than the medical man in his denunciation of absinth, which he says, makes maniacs, epileptic victims, idiotic murderers and monsters. He accordingly calls upon the Government to do something, but he is doubtful if the example of Belgium with regard to absinth will be imitated in France.
