

WORLD WIDE... INCREASED SPECULATIONS IN STOCKS EXPECTED... Earnings of Railroads Show a Big Gain All Down the Line.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Popular sentiment, inheriting a feeling of bullishness from the strength of several preceding weeks, stood three days of comparatively flat money, but capitulated on the fourth, when, instead of growing easier, money was nominally quoted higher than yesterday. The market's sequel is not acute speculation. It is not even bearishness.

Among recent minor developments have been some significant changes in railroad directorates, indicating a re-adjustment of the large financial interests by suggestive of general harmony in the industry. It was announced that E. H. Hagan no longer heads the finance committee of the Illinois Central, his place being filled by an interested and successful man, who accentuates the breach between Harriman and Fish and points to strong control of the Illinois Central at the next annual meeting.

Notwithstanding strenuous efforts Wall Street obtained only $1,000,000 gold from Europe. Of course, the gold can be obtained if New York cares to pay the price, and should the stringent money market continue, a considerable influx may be expected. The reaction in the London discount rate to 2 1/2 per cent, despite the fact that the position of this institution is materially weaker than in the past, is open to the inference that England will offer less opposition to our obtaining the yellow metal. Germany advances, however, the prospect of financing loans of their own aggregating $2,000,000, to say nothing of Russian requirements, variously stated from $20,000,000 to $60,000,000, dependent on the borrowings of the Southern American republics. It will be seen, therefore, that there is a world-wide demand for gold, which increases in circulation, a fact which comes in decidedly inopportune for the plans of railroads and industrial corporations to finance their extensive new construction and improvements.

THE NEW YORK RESOLUTION... (Deseret News Editorial, April 2, 1906.) In the United States Senate on Monday, Senator Platt presented a joint resolution, adopted by the New York Legislature, for an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting polygamy. That is not anything new under the sun, as attempts have been made in a similar direction several times. A strong feeling has been aroused on this subject, but it is not nearly so fierce as it was a year or two ago. A great many people who were then much excited over it, have learned that they were greatly deceived by exaggerated reports and whole-cloth fabrications, and that as a matter of fact there was very little, if anything, to warrant any great effort in the intended direction.

Yet we hear no outcry from the abolitionists of the land, nor of the pious ladies who have agitated the state of affairs partly exhibited in the figures we have quoted, nor of ardent converts to the Christian faith, nor of gentlemen to purify their own cities and neighborhoods, or of employers in any National legislation or movement, endeavoring to prohibit and punish those crimes, or to redeem the very souls of sensuality and lust who swarm in the popular "Christian" city.

It may be asked, if what you say about the decadence of plural marriage is true, why should you be concerned about a constitutional amendment? Its purpose is to prohibit and punish the practice of polygamy with the social-raptures of the age. These are the evils resorted to by those who like at the common social corruptions of the world, and use magnifying glasses to search out and gaze at the minutiae of their detest but is essentially directed to the foulest that they tolerate.

THE PEOPLE WHO ARE ENGAGED IN clamoring for such an amendment to the Constitution are crying out against imaginary evil, and ignoring their own actual condition. If they are absolutely sincere in the pretended moral crusade, they would embody in their resolutions a project which would strike at the root of all sexual crime and would prohibit and punish every violation of chastity and virtue, and thus make a clear sweep of the evils existing in the Nation, but instead of this they are content with the enactment of a high moral standard.

Many New Banks... A well-informed railroad official says that the earnings for the first three months of the year were $1,000,000 in excess of what was expected. He says that the earnings for the first three months of the year were $1,000,000 in excess of what was expected.
