

"HUSTLERS" ON HOLIDAY
How Americans "See" London in Two Days.
We must do Westminster Abbey in twenty minutes, said one of a party of four Americans, who alighted from an omnibus at the corner of Parliament street on Saturday.

vance guard of the army of American holiday makers who from now onwards through the summer will be invading London with the purpose of seeing the capital of the world in three, or it may be two, brief days. Cinematograph celerity is the keynote of their proceedings, and after a voyage of 4000 miles they have in some cases only fifteen minutes to see Westminster Abbey.

would leave the English provincial visitor breathless. As a rule, the two days are scheduled out beforehand. The little party of three or four sweep out from one of the large hotels near Charing Cross after breakfast, and dash into their day's programme with the set purpose of those who are face to face with an arduous but inevitable duty. And the curious thing is that they thoroughly enjoy it. They want to see as many sights of London as they can, and in pursuit of that they sometimes start out before breakfast.—London Mail.

THE DEAN'S COMPLIMENT
'Twas Doubtful but Nevertheless Jenny Lind Valued It.
Dean Stanley actually suffered from listening to music, and yet Jenny Lind once told Max Mueller he paid her the highest compliment she had ever received. Stanley was very fond of Jenny Lind, but when she stayed at her father's palace at Norwich he always left the room when she sang. One evening Jenny Lind had been singing Handel's "I Know That My Redeemer" Stanley, as usual, had left the room, but he came back after the music was over, and came shyly up to Jenny Lind. "You know," he said, "I dislike music. I don't know what people mean by admiring it. I am very stupid, stone-deaf, as others are color-blind. But," he said, with some warmth, "tonight, when from a distance I heard you singing that song, I had an inkling of what people mean by music. Something came over me which I had never felt before, or, yes, I had felt it once before in my life." Jenny Lind was all attention. "Some years ago," he continued, "I was at Vienna, and one evening there was a tattoo before the palace performed by four hundred drummers. I felt shaken, and tonight while listening to your singing, the same feeling came over me. I felt deeply moved." "Dear me," she added, "I know he meant it, and a more honored compliment I never received in all my life."—Cleveland Leader.
