

FORMER ALDERMAN CAN PAY $50,000

Edward J. Harley, Member of "Tweed Ring," in Jail After Spree.

ONCE GOTHAM MILLIONAIRE GETS TEN DAYS IN JAIL

Remarkable Story of Rise and Fall in Politics; Cost of Drinking.

Edward J. Harley, years ago a New York alderman and a member of the famous "Boss" Tweed ring of Gotham, a man who has made a barrel of money, as he puts it, must serve ten days in the city jail for drunkenness because he has not the money to pay his fine.

Harley, who has offended before, was arrested by policemen at 7 o'clock Thursday night. He had gratified his craving for strong drink so copiously that his brain refused to perform its usual functions, leaving him insensible. On him was found thirty cents.

On the mourners' bench in Judge Diehl's court appeared the pained, infirm and aged man Friday afternoon, charged with drunkenness. Harley, his trembling and his eyes blurred with tears, pleaded for mercy to his thin gray hairs, but the court said that clemency had often been exercised toward him before and asked, yet mindful of the plea, imposed the small fine of $10. Harley was unable to pay the fine and as his folks refused to pay it he must languish in jail ten days.

Elected an Alderman

The rise and fall of many is typified in Harley's case. Born, reared and educated in the metropolis of America and possessed of a bright intellect, he easily accumulated wealth and rose to prominence politically. His was a meteoric career.

In 1886 he was elected alderman from the fourth ward of New York City on the Democratic ticket. Those were the bad days, when "Boss" Tweed and his minions across continents, ruled the politics of Gotham with iron hand. Associated with him was John Kelly, another big chief whom Harley knew and remembered.

Harley stood close to these political bosses, also the mayor, Oakley Hall, so close, in fact, that many a policeman on the New York force owed his appointment to Harley's favor, and other city employees traded their jobs to Harley's recommendation to the powers behind the throne.

This was the heyday of Harley's career. He opened a restaurant in Gotham and in Brooklyn, and simply rolled in wealth. His saloons in Gotham were on First, Second, Third and Sixth avenues, and at the Adriatic hotel at One hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Eighth avenue.

Was a "High Roller"

Harley dressed well, dined expensively, drank choice liquors, owned fine dogs and horses, some of the former of which cost as much as $500 apiece, and played the race and "shot" the stocks. He was a "high roller." All of this he related in his cell in the city jail Friday afternoon, following his sentence, the while his form, pained no less by advancing years than by fast and riotous living, shook and trembled.

"I wish I now had some of the money that I threw away then," he piteously exclaimed. "But I haven't, and my folks won't give it. If I could get out of here I could earn enough money to pay it in a few hours; but I can't get out, so I must lay here ten days."

With the overblow of "Boss" Tweed for muleting the city out of millions of dollars impending, Harley's power as a politician waned, and he was not re-elected after serving a two-year term as alderman from the fourth ward. This marked the beginning of his downfall, and in 1898 he left New York and went to Stratford, Canada, to visit his wife's folks. In the next few years he divided his time between Gotham and Canada.

Goos Boozie Route

Inactivity gave him time to brood over his waning chances, and when opportunity followed. Then came heavy drinking, which made inroads in the once rugged frame; yet despite Harley's thin, gray hairs, seemed contented and shining form, there are useful reminders in the broad, expansive forehead of the intellect that once brought him up close to the big political bosses of graft-ridden New York City. He carries his 72 years well, despite his excesses.

Soon after Harley's decline his old boss's stranglehold upon Gotham was a loose, and Tweed was arrested for boozing. He was required to put up a heavy bond, something in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. Tweed soon disappeared from New York, but subsequently was located in Spain, where a cartoon and returned to Gotham and was thrown in the Ludlow street jail, where he died in disgrace in 1876.

Although Harley was not concerned in the grafting, yet he was so closely connected with the gang, and knew its workings so intimately, that in his talk there is an air of the days when boozing was rampant in Gotham under Tweed and other political bosses and the city was muleted out of millions of dollars, especially in the erection of public buildings. The city paid for the construction of one building $11,000,000, of which only $2,000,000 actually went toward the building of the structure, while the other $9,000,000 was graft money. In this way "Boss" Tweed and his gang reached their hands into the coffers of New York City and stole millions of dollars, making themselves notoriously famous across two continents.

Harley's home is at 153 Fifth East street. One of his sons is a gasfitter and the other a bookkeeper. The rest of his family, including two daughters, lives there.

ASSOCIATE OF NELSON TALKS TO GRAND JURY

J. E. Langford a Witness Friday; Inquisitors Adjourn Until Monday.

WIDOW IS PROSTRATED OVER HUSBAND'S DEATH

Gillespie Was Well Known in This City; Recently Returned From Montana.

Peter R. Gillespie of 427 East Sixth South street, a broken-down clubhouse man, "cashed in" for the last time Friday morning. Becoming despondent over ill health he committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. Death came in thirty minutes.

Gillespie returned to this city from Montana an ill man three months ago. He suffered from heart failure and the physicians could give him no relief. About half the time he was confined to his bed, eating and sleeping little, and two or three times he threatened to end his illness by self-destruction, but his wife did not believe he meant what he said and paid little attention to his threats.

Excursion to Ogden

Sunday, May 3rd, via Oregon Short Line Trains at 7:10 and 9:30 a. m., 12:35, 1:40 and 4:00 p. m.; returning, leave Ogden 2:05, 5:10, 5:55 and 8:10 p. m. Round trip $1.00.

PLUMBING INSPECTOR WAS BUSY MAN IN APRIL

Plumbing Inspector Farrell reports that business in his office is exceedingly active. During the month of April he issued 151 plumbing permits and 126 permits for sewer connections. In addition, 56 plumbing inspections are awaiting action. In September, 1907, 85 plumbing permits were issued and 61 sewer connections made. This was the record up to that time, but each month this year has beaten that record and the April record beats it by nearly 100 per cent. as a whole.

All of this work is being done by Inspector Farrell personally, while in 1907 there were two men to do the work. Mr. Farrell is making a record that both he and the administration are proud of.

SHEETS INSURANCE SUIT ONCE MORE IN COURT

Widow of Supposed Murdered Man Suing to Recover Insurance on Life.

After being delayed about three days by cases which consumed more time than was originally anticipated, that of Ellen Sheets against the Preferred Accident Insurance company of New York was begun Friday in the Federal court, before Judge Marshall. The case is in for its second hearing, the original case having been decided in favor of Mrs. Sheets.

Nephi Sheets, husband of Mrs. Sheets, was found dead on the night of December 28, 1906, near the city and county building. He was shot in the head. Life insurance amounting to about $2500 was carried with the Preferred Accident Insurance company. The family attempted to collect the insurance on the ground that Mr. Sheets had been murdered. The insurance company held that it was a case of suicide.

In the original case Mrs. Sheets was granted $2714 and costs. The company managed to secure a rehearing of the evidence. The plaintiff introduced documentary evidence Friday morning and closed its side of the case. The defense placed H. L. Pitts, with maps; J. W. Shipley, with photos; and Dr. R. J. Hyatt of the United States weather bureau, on the stand. The case was continued until Monday.

Hats for Everybody

At McCarty's sale of high-grade hats. Any hat in the house $2.00.

MCCARTY, THE HATTER, 336 So. Main St., near P. O.

NEWLY ARRIVED VISITOR ROBBED BY PICKPOCKETS

Clever pickpockets barely gave Hans Christensen of Salina, time to breathe upon his arrival in this city Friday evening before they relieved him of a purse containing between $50 and $75. Christensen, alleged to be a depot car at Second South and Main streets about 6 o'clock, the pickpockets did the rash act of extracting the money off his face, extracted Christensen's pocketbook with his fat roll, from his right lip trousers pocket. He failed to discover the theft until he reached at the hotel, Third South and Main streets, where he intended to stay while here. He then reported the theft to the police. Among the stolen money were two twenty-dollar gold pieces and a ten-dollar bill. He gained no description of the thieves.

A private safe may be rented in the fire and burglar-proof vaults of the Salt Lake Security and Trust company, 32-34 Main street, $5.00 per year.

St. Mark's Hospital Nurses

The thirteenth annual commencement exercises of St. Mark's hospital training school for nurses will be held Friday evening of Tuesday, May 5, at St. Mark's cathedral. The following young ladies will take part: Miss Constance D. Vincent, Miss Florence Williams, Miss Alice Maude Young, Miss Beatrice Irene Flood, Miss M. Elizabeth Hoyle and Miss M. Grace Moran.

After the exercises they will be given a reception at the Ladies' Literary clubrooms.

Loose Leaf Devices. Tribune-Reporter Ptg. Co., 66 W. 2nd St.

Blank Book Making. Tribune-Reporter Ptg. Co., 66 W. 2nd St.

Legal Blanks. Tribune-Reporter Ptg. Co., 66 W. 2nd St.

Good Printing. Tribune-Reporter Ptg. Co., 66 W. 2nd St.

PETER R. GILLESPIE COMMITS SUICIDE

Ill-Health Proves Too Much for Him, and He Drinks Carbolic Acid.

WIFE'S CLOTHING IN TRUNK ON LAWN

William Watson's Method of Delivering Apparel of Spouse Causes Complaint.

Those who dropped into Judge Morse's division of the Third District court Friday afternoon were impressed with the belief that somebody was reading an invoice of a ladies' furnishings house. Such, however, was not the fact. The matter at issue was whether or not William J. Watson was in contempt of court for his alleged failure to deliver certain wearing apparel to his wife as ordered by Judge Armstrong last Friday.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

WIFE'S CLOTHING IN TRUNK ON LAWN

William Watson's Method of Delivering Apparel of Spouse Causes Complaint.

MISSES BEING FOUND GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

Friday Divorce Matinee Lacking the Usual Sensations; Other Cases.

Those who dropped into Judge Morse's division of the Third District court Friday afternoon were impressed with the belief that somebody was reading an invoice of a ladies' furnishings house. Such, however, was not the fact. The matter at issue was whether or not William J. Watson was in contempt of court for his alleged failure to deliver certain wearing apparel to his wife as ordered by Judge Armstrong last Friday.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

Watson is suing his wife, Mary Corser Watson, for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and there is much to be said for her. She is a well-to-do lady, and her husband, who is a well-to-do man, has been in the habit of delivering her wearing apparel to her in a trunk on the lawn of her home, at 208 Third avenue, April 6, after stripping her of certain jewelry, and refused to allow her to remove any of her clothing, except what she had on at the time. Last Friday Mrs. Watson went into Judge Armstrong's court and secured an order upon her husband to deliver to her the wearing apparel which she had on at the time, and he was cited to appear before Judge Morse Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

BIDS OF $283,592 FOR PUBLIC WORK

They Include Paving, Sewer and Sidewalk Extensions and Grading.

CITY'S PORTION ESTIMATED AT NOT MORE THAN $14,000

Other Matters Considered at Meeting of Board of Public Works.

The board of public works met Friday evening and opened bids for approximately $283,592 worth of public improvements. The work embraces paving, sewer and sidewalk extensions and grading. The city's portion of the entire work is estimated at $14,000.

After the bids had been opened and read they were referred to the city engineer for tabulation, and the board will meet at 11 o'clock Saturday morning to make the awards. The bids received were as follows: Paving extension 38, Fifth East street from South Temple to Third South street—Barber Asphalt company, abutments' portion, $3.40 per square yard of asphalt laid and 41 cents per square yard for grading per square yard of asphalt pavement laid; city's portion, $3.77 and 72 cents, respectively. P. J. Moran, abutments' portion, $3.25 and 39 cents; city's portion, $3.70 and 74 cents.

Paving extension 35, Fifth South from Main to Second East street—Barber Asphalt company, abutments' portion, $3.47 and 45 cents; city's portion, $4.61 and 35 cents. P. J. Moran, abutments' portion, $3.32 and 42 cents; city's portion, $4.53 and 37 cents.

Paving extension 41, F street from South Temple to First avenue—Barber Asphalt company, abutments' portion, $2.90 and 40 cents; city's portion, $1.54 and 26 cents. P. J. Moran, abutments' portion, $2.67 and 48 cents; city's portion, $4.38 and 52 cents.

Sewer extension 156, from Third to Sixth avenue and A street to the reservation—Sewer complete, per linear foot, $5.50. J. D. Hansen, sewer, $2.05; James Kennedy, $1.72.

Grading Third South street from Eleventh to Twelfth East street—P. J. Moran, abutments' portion, per cubic yard, 54 cents; city's portion, 64 cents.

Moran Lowest Bidder. It will be seen from the bids submitted that P. J. Moran is the lowest bidder on all the paving extensions; Davis & Heuser are the lowest on sewer extension No. 156; James Kennedy is lowest on sewer extension No. 155; and Hansen is lowest on sewer extension No. 121, and P. J. Moran is the only bidder on grading.

The matter of passing the final estimate on the Fifth South street water main was postponed, owing to the fact that the question of forfeit has never been settled. The work was to have been completed July 15, but was not completed until January 1. The forfeit is $10,000 a day, but Mr. Moran has a big offset that is not disputed, and as he