

TOUR OF THE CITY REVEALS ACTIVITY

Great Amount of Building Being Done in All Sections of Salt Lake.

ERA OF REGENERATION IN RESIDENCE PORTION

Big Down-Town Structures Are Being Hurried to Completion; Permit Record.

In order to appreciate some of the amount of building that is being done in Salt Lake City on new homes, it is only necessary to make a tour of the city, over the north bench or along the east side, near Twelfth and Thirtieth East.

In these sections whole rows of new structures are being erected, and signs of activity are apparent on every side. The additions on the outskirts of the city offer the best indication that new-comers are putting up homes and preparing to merge their fortunes with those of Salt Lake City.

Westminster Heights.

Farther south on the east side comes Westminster Heights, east of Fourteenth East and south of Eleventh South, running up over the east bench and looking down into the city, east to the mountains and the glittering water of Great Salt Lake.

Recently Opened.

Crossing the city to the vicinity of Twelfth South and State streets one finds another district recently opened for the sale of building lots, and already there are indications of building activity.

New Building Permits.

It has been said that the total amount of permits for the last month exceed that of a year ago by more than a 1000 per cent. One wonders how this can be.

In the meantime work on a number of new apartment houses is progressing rapidly. On Brigham street, just east of the University club, the two handsome apartment houses, the Hamilton and that of Dr. Stauffer, are nearly ready for the interior finishing.

In the northern portion of the city Joseph W. Taylor has started a new apartment building, which will require $40,000 to complete.

and will be ready for occupancy by fall. One of the largest new buildings is that of the Salt Lake Security & Trust company on Second East, between Second and Third South.

In the business section of the city work on all the new structures is progressing rapidly. On Main street, the new Callaway, Hoek & Francis building and the McIntyre and McCormick buildings are assuming definite shape.

On the Newhouse skyscrapers the stone work is in place up to the eighth story, and the floors are completely excavating is being done for the new Salisbury office building just north of the Newhouse structures, and for the new home of the Commercial club at the corner of Exchange place and Cactus street.

AWFUL LOSS OF LIFE BY FIRES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Continued From Page One.

trip was made on a hand car and the balance on foot. Every stick of timber along the line is burned and not a living thing is left. The bodies of Peter Miller and Louis Fratina, a section hand, have been found in and several Italian have been found. Mr. and Mrs. Forester and twenty-five men had arrived at Campbell's Siding, having been forced to give up their fight to save the Sparwood camp. Five members of the party succumbed.

Death Toll Is Heavy.

A special received here at 11 o'clock tonight from Nelson, B. C., places the number of dead around Fernie alone at 70. The death toll may be even higher.

BATTLESHIP HAS HARD BATTLE WITH STORM

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 2.—The battleship New Hampshire returned here today from the centennial celebration at Quebec.

The battleship had a rough passage from Quebec, which was left Wednesday morning. Captain Winslow had to keep a close watch on the weather.

PARISIAN AERONAUT SOARS THROUGH THE AIR

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Henri Farman, who came from Paris to test a series of aeroplanes exhibitions under the management of an American syndicate, made a record today at the Brighton Beach race track.

CONSERVATIVES GAIN IN CUBAN ELECTION

HAVANA, Aug. 2.—The result of Saturday's municipal election in Havana is still hanging in the balance.

Saltair Is Deserted By Army of Gnats

Zoologists and "bugologists" are busy studying the absence of the gnats from the saltair during the past two or three days.

FORCED TO FLEE FROM RUSSIA BY AUTHORITIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—George Rosen, who arrived here from the orient yesterday, is being held by the immigration officials.

ELECTION IN PANAMA RETURNS DON JOSE OBALDIA

PANAMA, Aug. 2.—The electoral campaign met in the capitals of the seven provinces to elect a President, whose term will run from October of this year until 1912.

CASTORIA.

The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of

Wm. A. Rorer

CASTRO GETS MORE FREE ADVERTISING

Differences Between Venezuela and the Netherlands Is Not Serious.

ALL TALK OF ARMED CONFLICT IS ABSURD

Dismissal of the Dutch Minister, Venezuela Believes, Was Fully Justified.

CARACAS, Friday, July 31.—Sunday, via Port of Spain, Aug. 2.—The difference between President Castro and the Government of the Netherlands will probably turn out to be less serious than seemed at first.

The advance guard of the Barnum and Bailey circus, which is to be here Tuesday, arrived in the city Sunday night and bright and early this morning will begin the work of arranging things for the arrival of the circus.

Lord Roberts Is Ill

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—Lord Roberts, who had sufficiently recovered to leave here today for Ottawa, will, it is stated, be unable to do so.

AUTO PLUNGES OVER A STEEP EMBANKMENT

Two Persons Are Killed and Three Others More or Less Injured.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The three surviving victims of the automobile tragedy in the Santa Rosa mountains yesterday, in which Mrs. Frederick Marriott and Jesse Gilbert, who was acting as chauffeur, met death, arrived here today.

Magnate Harriman Says What Has Been Done Saves Bad Financial Situation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—"There is to be no abandonment of railroads, nor is there to be any combination of railroads over night."

ITALIAN INSISTS THAT HE IS BADLY WOUNDED

In response to a murder riot call that came in at 12:30 o'clock this morning, a whole patrol load of policemen rushed to Second West between First and Second South—and they brought back one Italian, Nick Therese, who didn't know where he lived, but who insisted that he had been shot.

Fire in Lumber Camp.

MISSOULA, Mont., Aug. 2.—Advices from Taft today are to the effect that the forest fire that threatened the town yesterday, and which has been burning since, is believed that the logs will be higher than the $15,000 estimate first made.

Two men enter life's work—

one succeeds the other—well, head exactly fail.

Two brands of dates may be launched the market—

McDonald's Merry Widows and other, for instance.

Merry Widows are enthusiastically received other just so-so.

Why? McDonald's Salt Lake Cocoa, made the McDonald way, is the refreshing—try it for breakfast.

State Guard in Camp.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 2.—All of the regular troops have arrived at Camp David S. Stanley at American lake, and tomorrow will be held in formation.

Bryan Joins the Union.

LINCOLN, Aug. 2.—Lincoln Typographical union, at its meeting today, voted to make William J. Bryan an honorary member.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL OF GEORGE N. SANDERS

Heroic Lagoon Engineer Laid to Final Rest in City Cemetery.

Underneath a profusion of lovely banks of flowers and surrounded by hundreds of friends, the body of George N. Sanders, the Lagoon engineer, whose ill-fated engine, "Jonah," crashed into a dump car at Beck's hot springs Friday night and crushed him to death, was laid to rest in the city cemetery Sunday afternoon.

The funeral was held from the sixteenth ward meeting house. The crowd overflowed the building, having among its numbers scores of old engineers and other railroad men who at one time or another were associated with the dead man in railroad work.

The speakers were Elder Brigham H. Roberts, Simon Hamberger, owner of the road on which Sanders was killed, William E. Watson and Counselor Wynn. Elder Roberts classed Sanders as a hero, and Mr. Hamberger declared that Sanders' family was not more affected by his death than he.

Among the tributes was a broken wheel from Mr. Hamberger, two gates ajar designs from the Lagoon resort and the employees of the road, and a harp from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which Sanders formerly was a member.

George D. Epper of the Salt Lake theater sang a selected song, "Some Day We'll Understand," and Miss Alice Webster sang "Face to Face." Sanders' body was lowered to its last resting place by engineers and other railroad men who spent years with him in the service.

NO COMBINATION OF RAILROADS NOW EXISTS

Edward H. Harriman said tonight while discussing the deal whereby a syndicate of bankers recently took up $5,000,000 in short term notes of the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad.

FIVE MEN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Continued from Page One.

morning that he would place Fabian under the X-ray today to determine the full extent of the injury.

Machines in Canyon.

Both the wrecked machines were left in the canyon Sunday night, but will be looked after today.

RAILROAD RATE FIXED FOR G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 2.—A rate of one fare plus a half fare for the round trip was granted by practically all the railroads to the next annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held here the week beginning August 21.

JOE GREGG, AN INDIAN, CHARGED WITH ROBBERY

Joe Gregg, an Indian, was arrested by Policemen Olson and Betz early Sunday morning on the charge made by Marguerite Henderson of 22 1/2 Commercial street, that he entered her apartments and, with a drawn knife with which he threatened to stab her to death, robbed her of $12. Gregg is charged with robbery.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL COUNT LOCHWITZ TELLS OF EXILE, AT FIRST METHODIST

The large congregation assembled at the First Methodist church Sunday evening was given a rare treat in the form of a lecture by Lieutenant-Colonel Count M. Lochwitz, son of a Russian nobleman, and today an exile from the Russian empire.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

OLD WORLD HAPPENINGS WHICH ARE DETAILED IN A FEW WORDS

The first annual trades union congress will be held at Nottingham, Eng., during the first week in September.

A young farmer near Paris shot and killed his parents. He was refused funds to buy brick, hence the tragedy.

The original British battleship, Dreadnought, has just been sold at Portsmouth for $115,000.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz is a rather small man in stature, but is perfectly straight, and shows every indication of having had military training. He has a dark complexion, with piercing brown eyes and jet black hair and mustache.

There is a story that he was an anarchist or a nihilist, but a friend of the common people of Russia, and for his activity in founding a free school for the peasants he was exiled to four years at hard labor on the bleak Sakhalian island, not far from St. Petersburg.

Count Lochwitz was exiled to Sakhalian island in 1904, and he was there for four years. He was then allowed to return to Russia, and he has since been engaged in various educational and literary activities.