Cigarettes and Strong Drink
Will Be Barred at Social Functions.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Cigarette-smoking by women has come under the ban of censure by the Capital Society leaders in Washington. Mrs. William H. Haywood, who put herself on record several years ago when she served only grape juice at the debutante ball of her daughter Doris, is one of the leaders in the crusade to stop smoking and drinking among Washington society women.

Mrs. L. Z. Leiter, who many think will take the place of the late Mrs. John B. McLean as the capital society leader, has also enlisted in the campaign.

All of those who have joined in the movement are pledged to prohibit smoking or drinking by women at any of the functions held in their homes.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—Having spent $1,000,000 in a few months and saying that is what money was made for, Mrs. Clara Baldwin Stocker, one of the daughters and heiresses of "Lucky" Baldwin, arrived from the east today in a $40,000 private car and equipped with $250,000 worth of diamonds.

The wealthy race horse breeder died a few years ago. A few months ago Mrs. Stocker came into possession of her share of the estate. She proceeded to get rid of it and has come to California to facilitate expenditures.

ADRIANOPLE IS STILL THE BONE OF CONTENTION

Dispatches From Constantinople Indicate Turks Will Resume War Rather Than Give Up the Fort.

PEACE ENVOYS TO MEET AGAIN TODAY

Embassadors Confer and Agree Upon Principle of Autonomy for Albania and Seaport for Servia.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria left Saloniki hurriedly today for Vienna on receipt of a dispatch from his government. His sons, Prince Boris and Prince Cyril, will follow him tomorrow.

NAPLES, Dec. 20.—The correspondent at Vienna of the Corriere Del Mattino says Turkey and Austria have concluded a formal agreement under which Turkey undertakes to ensure the failure of the peace negotiations and on the resumption of hostilities, Austria will march two armies across Servia and Macedonia on Saloniki.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The slow and devious process of diplomacy is advancing toward a solution of the near-eastern puzzle at a snail's pace.

The only definite achievement of the day was an agreement by the embassies of the six great European powers that their governments would accept in principle of autonomy for Albania and a guarantee to Servia of a commercial port on the Adriatic sea. Having passed this milestone in their deliberations, the ambassadorial conference adjourned over Christmas.

The Balkan peace delegates enjoyed the hospitality of the lord mayor of London at a Mansion house luncheon, a function that traditionally is given in honor of members of foreign missions, representatives of friendly navies and former presidents of republics who visit London.

On Friendly Terms.

The peace delegates mingled in the most friendly fashion, partook of the famous Mansion house turtle soup and listened to an optimistic speech by Premier Asquith.

The delegates, transacted no formal business today, but the embassies and the hotels where the delegates are quartered are buzzing with informal conferences. The sublime portie has empowered its envoys to include the Greek delegates in the negotiations for peace and a messenger with the documents containing this decision is expected to reach London tomorrow.

May Fail at Once.

The Turkish delegates have been instructed, according to another report, to raise the question of the status of Adrianople immediately and if Bulgaria persists in demanding its surrender to break off the peace negotiations; but diplomats generally are skeptical of this story.

While the agreement of the embassies of the powers on autonomy for Albania is an important step, the working out of details of the scheme will be one of the most difficult problems a European conference ever has grappled with.

The Economist notifies financiers and investors to expect in the coming year loans totalling $400,000,000 to repair the losses caused by the war and the mobilizations in Russia, Austria and Italy.

BRYAN TO TALK OVER CABINET WITH WILSON

Nebraskan Will Visit President-Elect Today, in Accordance With Programme.

OTHER DEMOCRATS WILL SOON FOLLOW

Man Who Is to Steer the Ship of State for Next Four Years Seeks Light in All Directions.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 20.—Whether William J. Bryan or any of the other prominent Democrats being mentioned by politicians for places in the cabinet of President-elect Wilson, will be appointed, probably will not be definitely known until a few days before inauguration. Governor Wilson said tonight that likely he would not make a single announcement of importance until about March 1.

Within the next twenty-four hours he will talk with Mr. Bryan and before New Year's he expects to see Speaker Clark, Representative Underwood and Senators O'Gorman, Hoke Smith, Gore and other prominent Democratic leaders, but he indicated that he meant to keep strict silence about appointments until ready to make a general statement on the subject.

"Scattering announcements would be foolish," he said, "even if I had them to make. I'll wait until pretty late. The time will depend somewhat on the number of written communications. All these letters recommending individuals for offices are being grouped and will be taken up separately."

Searching the Field.

Mr. Wilson indicated that he would not feel at liberty to make final decision until the merits of all possible candidates had been set forth to him.

"What I am sincerely trying to do," he added, "is to see the field of choice and try to get as many opinions as possible that are worth while."

The president-elect made it clear that though gossip may be heard far and wide, he would maintain a policy of silence and nothing would be definitely established until he made the announcements over his own signature.

Mr. Wilson was asked if he believed he would encounter any difficulty in getting the men desired for cabinet portfolios to accept. It had been suggested that in case of the attorney generalship, as noted lawyers often had been reluctant to leave their practice, and for this reason many

QUEEN WHO DEFIES ANCIENT TRADITIONS

QUEEN OLGA OF GREECE.

QUEEN BREAKS RULE OBEYED 1500 YEARS

Olga of Greece First Woman in That Period to Visit Mt. Athos Monastery.

VIENNA, Dec. 21.—The Neues Tagblatt's Athens correspondent says Queen Olga of Greece intends to visit the 21 monasteries on Mount Athos eighty miles southeast of Saloniki, thus breaking the rule prohibiting women from visiting the sacred mountain which had been strictly observed for 1500 years.

"The monks on the mountain," continues the correspondent, "on many occasions have refused to permit royal ladies to visit them, always excusing themselves behind the legend that the Virgin Mary with her infant Christ visited the mountain and that no women had been allowed to do so since. But now that the Greeks have conquered the territory and the king and queen proposed a visit to the mountain, the monks summoned their council and decided that they had no course but to rescind the rule."

Mount Athos, or the Holy mountain, was the center of Greek theology and learning in the middle ages and many masterpieces of ancient Greek literature still remain in the libraries there. The Turkish government gives the monks almost complete autonomy. Aside from the 21 monasteries on the mountain there are numerous grottoes, cells and chapels. The monk population numbers several thousand. Many of them are hermits and live in caves.

McCUNE TIMBER SUIT SOON TO BE HEARD HERE

Special Prosecutor for Government Arrives to Take Up Litigation Against Railroad Builder.

TWO AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS INVOLVED

Basis of Action Is Alleged Illegal Cutting of Timber in Montana From 1883 to 1895.

BANK HALL, special assistant to United States Attorney General George W. Wickersham, is here from Washington, D. C., to conduct the prosecution in the case of the government against A. W. McCune, the millionaire railroad magnate, for $2,456,954.50, alleged to be due the government for timber cut in Montana from 1883 to 1895.

Mr. Hall has been assigned by the government to investigate the cases of timber-cutting in Montana and to conduct the suits against those who are charged with stripping the state of much of its valuable timber. He has just come to Salt Lake from Butte and will leave in a few days for San Francisco to represent the government in suits growing out of the investigation.

Haggin Also Defendant.

The principal suits growing out of the investigation of the timber cutting are against A. W. McCune of Salt Lake and James B. Haggin of New York. The suit against Mr. Haggin is for $2,512,954.50, or $50,000 more than the suit against Mr. McCune. The suit against Mr. McCune was filed on November 4 in the United States district court for Utah and service was had a few days later. The suit against Mr. Haggin was filed in New York the latter part of November.

Mr. McCune, from 1883 to 1895, was the contractor who furnished the old Anaconda company with an immense quantity of cord wood for use as fuel in the Anaconda smelters. The amount derived from this contract furnished the foundation for the McCune fortune. The principal stockholders of the old Anaconda company were the late Senator George Hearst, father of William Randolph Hearst, the late Marcus Daly, the late Lloyd Tevis and James B. Haggin. Of the principal stockholders of the old company James B. Haggin is the only surviving member. Mr. Haggin is a prominent New York capitalist. He is interested with Mr. McCune in the Cerro de Pasco copper mines of Peru and the trans-Ancudan railroad in Peru.

Cut Much Timber.

The government charges that Mr. Haggin and Mr. McCune stripped the mountains in the vicinity of Anaconda of valuable pine timber for about thirteen years. Mr. McCune is charged with having cut about 1,200,000 cords of wood for the Anaconda company, under the direction of Mr. Haggin. The timber cut covered four townships in Montana on the mountains within a few miles of Stuart and Anaconda.

To transport the cordwood from the forests where it was cut to the smelters where it was used for fuel, a large flume several miles in length was built. The course of a river was changed to supply water for the flume and the wood floated down the flume to the smelters. The construction of the flume and the changing of the course of the river was regarded as one of the most remarkable engineering feats ever accomplished in the west.

Prosecution Ready.

The suit of the government against Mr. McCune and Mr. Haggin is the result of an investigation that has been conducted by the department of justice for several months. It is charged that the timber cut into cord wood was on the public domain and was appropriated without authority by Mr. McCune and the Anaconda company. Mr. Hall said last night that the investigation was complete and the evidence was ready for the presentation.

Mr. McCune has until January 6 in which to file his answer to the complaint. Mr. Hall expects that the case, because of its importance, will be taken up as quickly as possible and brought to trial within the next few weeks. Mr. Hall and United States District Attorney Hiram E. Booth will conduct the case for the government. The suit against Mr. Haggin in New York will not be tried until later.

TIMATUM IS LITTLE SHORT OF WAR THREAT

President Madero Personally Addressed to Mexican Government and is Couched in the Most Vigorous Language.

ASTIC ACTION IS INEVITABLE

its Course Generally Approved by Statesmen in Washington, Where Views of Impending Double Created Considerable of a Stir in Circles.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—President Taft's ultimatum to Mexico was telegraphed today to Montgomery Schuyler, American charge d'affaires at the Mexican capital in the absence of Emilio Henry Lane Wilson.

American note was not addressed to the Mexican government, but to Francisco I. Madero, personally, and in language as vigorous as any that can make it, short of an declaration of war.

Madero stated at the state department today that it was feared that Madero did not quite understand the urgency of the September ultimatum which demanded punishment for the leaders of Americans and injury for the loss of American life property. In drafting the message every care was taken that its meaning be unmistakable. The text of Attorney General Wickersham was brought in to assist the president and Secretary Knox in composing the draft.

Ultimatum Already Sent.

It is an impression that the ultimatum is to be conveyed to Madero by Ambassador Wilson, and that the state department intimated that the draft has not been fully considered, the international news service has positive information that the ultimatum has already reached Madero.

The final warning to Madero no longer named in which he is to accept the demands of the United States. The setting of a limit was the purpose in order that the States may not be precluded from taking any action at the time he reads the ultimatum. It is believed that the ultimatum sets his obligations to the United States.

It is strongly suggested to Madero that he reply to the American ultimatum before the state department receives the time President Taft returns from Panama. This will be on Monday.

by Speech.

In addition to the reports furnished by the president and the state department, Senators William Alden Smith and Albert B. Fall and several citizens' committees, President Taft was moved to summary action of yesterday by the ultimatum made by Madero in which he said that the only way to solve the Mexican disorders was to accept the situation with equanimity.

Those who are familiar with the situation in the southern republic have no doubt that drastic action by this government is inevitable.

It is not apprehended that any immediate resort to force in this country, the president will touch with the state, war and departments and with the Mexican government on his Panama trip. The Mexican government has been hesitating so long that the firing of a button will be sufficient to maintain the forces of the United States.

Reply from Madero is not either satisfactory or unsatisfactory. The United States probably carry out the first

DIAMOND MERCHANT TORTURED TO DEATH

Four Suspects Under Arrest for Crime Committed in Heart of Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—Twelve hours after J. H. Logue, a diamond merchant, had been murdered today in a building within 100 feet of State and Madison streets, Chicago's "busiest street corner in the world," four suspects were taken into custody tonight.

One of them is Claude Stratton, said by the police to be an escaped convict from the state prison at Columbus, O. The names of the other three—one man and two women—have not been revealed by the police.

The quartette was detained on a telephone "tip" from an unidentified man, who said that Stratton had threatened the diamond merchant after a controversy over the sale of a watch chain several days ago.

The finding of a piece of a woman's undershirt, at first thought to be a ribbon, bound around Logue's mouth and neck as a gag, caused the police to believe that a woman was implicated in the crime. Police tonight investigated a report that a woman had been a constant visitor on business to Logue's office for the last ten years, being admitted by a secret signal, as the diamond dealer constantly feared burglars and always kept his door locked.

That Logue's murderer or murderers tortured him for almost an hour before finally killing him was a theory advanced by the police tonight. The seventeen knife wounds, the seated eyeballs and cheeks as a result of the application of acid, the odor of chloroform on the gag that stifled his cries and a bullet wound in one shoulder all gave strength to the theory that one who sought revenge or was possessed of a lust for inflicting slow death committed the crime.

P. A. Carnal, former prosecuting attorney of Hill county, Montana, gave the police information which resulted in the suspects being detained. Carnal told the police he had seen Stratton in the company of another man in the McVicker building, where the crime was committed, during the afternoon. He was not positive that Edward Hampton, who was detained with Stratton, was the latter's companion. Hampton is from Pelican Lake, Wis. Stratton said he had arrived in Chicago yesterday. The police say he could not give a clear account of his movements today. Hampton
