

last trip of 1912. He found the mother of seven children, one of whom was seriously sick. The father was physically unable to earn a livelihood and the woman labored for the family. A member of the Order of Good Fellows had decorated toys and candies to two of the little ones. Through a clerical error the others had been overlooked. The disappointment in that home was more hideous than its poverty. But now all seven are supplied. Before he left the woman wrung his hand with gratitude.

Tales of Poverty.
A worthless father had been divorced and order by the court to support his four little children. The mother was sick and two little boys had whooping cough and another had measles, when Good Fellow arrived. The aged grandmother was caring for the family. The royal ruler gave her $10 to be spent on the children. She wept with joy.

At another home a luckless father pleaded with Good Fellow to find work for him. Three of the little ones had whooping cough. And this was not all, but tales of poverty are similar. The same misfortunes are suffered now and will be suffered in future as well as suffered since the beginning of civilization. "The poor we have with us always" and with them sorrow abides. It can be lessened by good fellows at Christmas time. The royal ruler knows the way.

Acknowledges Cash.
The number of children cared for by Good Fellows was 1195. They were found in 222 poor families. The number of good fellows who answered the call was 284. Good Fellow received 285 letters from the postoffice directed to Santa Clara. One-fourth of these were from the children of needy families. As the Good Fellow movement contemplates no publicity for good fellows, the royal ruler acknowledges cash contributions in the following form:

Would Adopt Child.
Good Fellow has decided to make public a few self-explanatory letters sent to him. The names of the writers, of course, are withheld. The letters follow:
Good Fellow—I see you have a good many children in need. Now I have a little girl, 10 years old, who I will give to you. I will see she will have a good home, if any of those families are looking for homes for them. I will take a little girl at the age of 3 or 4 years.
This will be the best Christmas present I can give you.
I am, as ever, a good fellow.

Thanks Expressed.
Dear Santa Claus—I am a awful sorry that I was not here to thank you for my Christmas presents, for I was so glad to get them; so was my mother and sister, and they all thank you very much.
Since I cannot return your kindness any other way, may God bless you and your health and family.
Dear Mr. Good Fellow—Thank you for the nice and good Christmas presents which will be to my child and to my mother and sister, and for which I shall always remember you and feel grateful.
Wishing that you have something to bring you and your family a Christmas, I am gratefully yours, etc.

FAVORS "FAVORING" "FIRST TERMERS"

Attorney General Barnes Recommends Plan of Prison Reform in Utah.

Recommendation is made by Attorney General A. R. Barnes in his biennial report, which was filed in the governor's office yesterday, for the establishment of an intermediate penal institution for "first termers," who are too old to go into the State Industrial school and are not hardened criminals enough to be associated with the convicts of the state prison.

The attorney general has made a thorough study of this phase of criminology and is an enthusiastic advocate of the idea. On a recent trip to Wisconsin he studied the workings of such an institution as it exists at the present time in that state. He says that it has been highly successful and has turned out a large number of useful citizens who might otherwise have become professional criminals through association with state convicts.

Mr. Barnes's idea is to have the institution established in a country district, where a large piece of land is available. The inmates would be taught farming and other useful trades. In Wisconsin the inmates pay for their board and lodging and bring in about $10 a year. This money is placed in a bank connected with the school and when the prisoners' terms are up they have a sum of money, a trade and are without the stigma of a state prison sentence and can go out and face the world with every chance of reform.

LIGHT PUNISHMENT FOR THE INFORMER
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 28.—"What will be done with McManis?" was the question put tonight to District Attorney John D. Frederick, who prosecuted the McNamara brothers. "I have replied Frederick, smiling, 'after having expressed the hope of immediate sentences for the dynamite conspirators, convicted today in Indianapolis, I am glad to hear that McManis will be here soon, but I cannot discuss him now. I will say, though, that his conviction will be a warning to the federal prosecutor at Indianapolis, it was understood that nothing serious would happen to him when he was arrested.'"
