

TWO MORE PUBLIC PARKS ARE PLANNED

One on Great Salt Lake; Other on Parley's Creek, Near Sugar House.

LOCATIONS FAVORABLE

Commissioner Keyser Working Hard to Establish Beauty Spots.

Plans for two public parks, one to skirt the shores of Great Salt Lake, north of the outlet of the surplus canal, and the other to grace the banks of Parley's creek near Sugar House, have been prepared by the city park department, and will be submitted to the city commission at once.

Plans on Lake Shore.

The idea of a lake shore park is being worked out as rapidly as Superintendent Nicholas Byhower can prepare the plans. He outlined the project to Commissioner Keyser in a letter yesterday, and this letter will be submitted to the commissioners for their approval.

Parley's Creek Park.

The Parley's creek park will be established early this spring, provided the city commissioners will sanction the purchase of the land. Commissioner Keyser is particularly desirous of creating this beauty spot because of the rapid growth of the city toward the southeast.

HEEDS CALL OF HIS CONSCIENCE

"Captain, I want to give myself up to you, for I am tired of leading a life of crime," said George Walden, 21 years of age, as he walked into the office of Captain Robert Roberts at police headquarters last night.

CHAMBERS LIKED BY SPORTSMEN OF UTAH

"Dumb" Beggar Joshes Zion Speaks As a Farewell Joke

Charles Lester, Vagrant, Causes Consternation When He Replies to Jailer's Question.

"Yes, I will be mighty glad to take a fluster out of this town, and the quicker the better," said Charles Lester, 32 years of age, to Jailer Dave Crowther at the city jail yesterday afternoon.

Things said to or asked of him should be written on it. All tricks designed to startle him out of his attitude of control had utterly failed to make the man betray himself. Any unexpected shout from someone who had slipped up behind him never was known to cause so much as the twitch of a muscle.

CONSIDERING RISE OF OIL FOR FUEL

Board of Education May Discontinue Burning Coal for Heating Purposes.

Oil in place of coal will be used in the heating of public school buildings in the future if negotiations now under way by the board of education terminate successfully.

Cheaper Than Coal.

According to a letter from the board of education of Tacoma, Wash., received yesterday, oil is far cheaper than coal or forest wood, calls for less salary expense in the boiler rooms and gives forth much less volume of smoke to mark the sky and taint the atmosphere.

Folland Favors Change.

Eli A. Folland, superintendent of school buildings, favors the oil in preference to the coal and is anxious to see it adopted by the board of education. The only drawback to the use of oil is said to be its effect on the boiler.

THOMAS G. GILL, JR., LAID AT FINAL REST

Funeral services for Thomas G. Gill, Jr., were held in the Methodist church yesterday afternoon, with Elder Matthew T. Anper of the ward officiating in charge. The service was presided over by the pastor of the Salt Lake stake and Elder William R. Jones, music was supplied by Mrs. L. M. Thomas, Edward, who sang "Angels Ever Bright" and "And a quartette composed of Thomas Ashworth, Robert Eldred, Albert Gray and Victor Christoffersen. CITY TAKES STEPS TO AMEND TAX LAW

Want Revision So City Will Get Remuneration on Property Sold for Taxes.

Steps to amend the present special assessment law so as to abolish that provision under which property sold by the county for general taxes is thereby freed from the city's claim for special taxes, are to be taken immediately by the city law department, at the request of the city commission.

Cost Will Be Small.

It is held by those who are supporting the movement that the establishment of such a sanitarium would require only a nominal appropriation, whereas the need for the institution is urgent. The cost of the property, they say, means "fresh air" treatment largely, and the proposed institution would call for the construction of tent houses, open cottages and a small hospital building at a nominal expense, requiring a small amount annually for maintenance.

WILL NOT LEAVE AT PRESENT TIME

That he has not tendered his resignation as pastor of the First Congregational church was the declaration of the Rev. Elmer I. Goshen when questioned last night regarding a report in an afternoon paper. Asked if he contemplated such a step, Dr. Goshen replied: "Not at the present time."

FAIR SANITARIUM FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Legislature Probably Will Be Asked to Establish the Institution.

COST WILL BE SLIGHT

Physicians Take the Ground That Such Action Is a Necessity.

In all probability the present legislature will be asked to pass a bill providing for the establishment in some rural district of a state sanitarium for tuberculosis sufferers. Although the State Medical association, or the state board of health, has not taken official action in the matter, it is well known that prominent physicians individually favor the movement and are supporting it.

Conditions Discussed.

Dr. Paul spoke of conditions that would give rise to the disease and showed by the records of the health department that tuberculosis had caused more deaths here last year than the larger percentage of other so-called dangerous diseases.

Provides Secretary.
