MAY ESCAPE TRIAL IF VICTIM RECOVERS

Officers May Drop the Case Against White Girl Who Shot Japanese Husband.

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Nov. 16.—With the assurance from the hospital attendants that the man in all probability will recover, there seems to be little prospect at this time that Mrs. Phoebe Yoshikawa, otherwise known as Grace Murray, will be prosecuted for the shooting of her Japanese husband, Harry Yoshikawa, on week ago. A woman is time it held at the city jail, but the officers believe that a reconciliation has already been reached by the pair and his pretty white wife. Accompanied by an officer, she has made two trips to the hospital to see the man.

The shooting occurred in a Japanese barber shop on lower Twenty-fifth street at 11 o'clock Saturday night, November 9. Waiting into the shop without divulging the motive of her visit, Mrs. Yoshikawa drew a revolver from her coat pocket and fired one shot at her husband who was walking toward her from the rear of the place. The bullet penetrated the Jap's abdomen, piercing the intestines. For a time it was thought that he had been fatally injured.

The police have been convinced that the white woman was legally married to the Jap, but they cannot discover a motive for the attempted murder, unless it was the belief on the part of the wife that she was about to be deserted by her husband. Immediately after the shooting Mrs. Yoshikawa kissed her husband and wanted to accompany him to the hospital. If the husband does not desire to push the case, the officers have no wish to prosecute the wife, it is said. Mrs. Yoshikawa has employed legal counsel.

MAY USE HYPNOSIS TO RESTORE MEMORY

Case of Walraven, Who Can not Recall Past Life, Baffles Utah Psychologists.

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Nov. 16.—With little improvement apparent in the man's condition following another week of scientific treatment along the line of word association, the psychologists who have interested themselves in the case of O. D. Walraven, the man without a memory, have nearly arrived at a decision to experiment with hypnosis. Walraven, who is anxious to learn something concerning himself prior to an injury sustained on October 11 last, is willing to become a hypnotic subject.

Walraven has apparently recovered from his physical injury, which consisted of a concussion of the brain and bruises, but the injury to his head deprived him of the normal ability to recall any incident of his life which happened prior to the date of his injury. He is not even positive that his name is Walraven. The man is still at the Dees hospital, but may be removed in the near future to the University of Utah, where he can be given employment and at the same time become a subject of study for the psychologists at the institution. The man is not particularly interested in what his friends do with him so long as he is allowed to work and occupy his mind with something other than the fact that he has a mental deficiency.

The idea that Walraven's sub-conscious mind might be aroused by hypnotic treatment was proposed as a result of the treatments given by Professor Barker of Salt Lake for the cure of the drug habit. Professor Henry Peterson, principal of the Ogden High school, who was the first psychologist to take interest in Walraven's strange case, believes that the man's absent memory might be recalled under hypnotic treatment.

OPTICIAN RECOVERS BRIGHT'S DISEASE

H. W. Smith is a wholesale optician of Mason City, Ia. Hearing that he had recovered from Bright's disease he writes and takes the following items from his letter in reply:

"Specialists pronounced my case Bright's disease and incurable and advised me to go south to prolong my life. Went to Mineral Wells, Tex. Became terribly bloated. Physicians there made tests and found casts and almost solid albumen. Several at the Wells who had been cured by Fulton's Renal Compound persuaded me to take it. Dropped forty-five pounds in fourteen days. In three months I was back to business."

"I continued the treatment over two years and during the last four years have not found it necessary to use any medicine. I have received many letters, all of which I have answered. Through my correspondence I have learned of a number of recoveries."

"If you have Bright's disease do not owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at Schramm-Johnson, Drugs, 'The Never-Substitutors,' Five (5) Wood Stores."

Distributing Stokers

By O. W. OTT.

As mentioned before, this type of stoker is in effect an automatic fireman, in that it consists of a device to distribute coal automatically to a stationary set of grate bars and in a manner similar to the little and often method of hand-firing. There are two principal types; one used for stationary boilers and another that is now being experimented with on locomotives.

The stoker for stationary boilers is a self-contained machine, bolted to the top of a casting which replaces the customary fire door. The stoker mechanism occupies a narrow space across the upper part of the fire door opening, and directly above is a coal hopper. The fuel is not large enough to give an adequate air supply, artificial draft can often be used advantageously. A pressure fan discharging into the draft is the proper common method of obtaining such an artificial air supply, and such a fan should be driven by a steam engine or a variable speed motor so as to make it possible to vary the amount of air delivered according to the rate at which the stoker operates.

Directions for Use.

This type of stoker being entirely independent of the grate construction, the problem of maintaining the fire in a clean condition still remains with the fireman. For this reason it is advisable to use raking type stokers to assist him in his work by making the cleaning of the fire as easy as possible. As has been pointed out in several other articles, the accumulation of ashes and clinkers on the grate adds to the difficulty of forcing the proper amount of air through the fire, no matter whether the air is supplied by the chimney draft or by an auxiliary fan. Where a boiler carries a uniform load throughout the day (as is customary in small heating plants), with the attention to the type of stoker gives excellent results if the air supply furnished by the chimney is sufficient.

General rules for operating the distributing type stoker may be given as follows:

Always keep the fire clean and never allow ashes and clinkers to accumulate on the grate to such an extent as to interfere with the air supply.

Always be sure that the air supply is sufficient for the rate at which you are feeding coal.

When the feed of the stoker is suddenly reduced or entirely shut off, be careful not to close down the chimney damper too far until all the volatile matter in the coal just added to the fire has been properly burned.

JAMES CONROY INJURED.

Father of Ogden Physician Victim of Probably Fatal Accident.

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Nov. 16.—Containing no detailed information concerning the accident, a telegram was received by Dr. E. M. Conroy today announcing that his father, James Conroy, aged 84 years and a pioneer resident of Iowa, had been struck by a train and probably fatally injured. Mr. Conroy resides at Conroy, a small station named after him, and located near Mason, on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad.

According to the telegram, which contained the information that the attending physician held out no hope for Mr. Conroy's recovery, the accident occurred shortly before 12 o'clock noon today. Dr. Conroy has telegraphed for further information, and will not leave for the east until he has received a response.

FRIENDSHIP IS THEME.

Thoughtful Sermon is Delivered by the Rev. Mr. Carver.

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Nov. 16.—That the present mode of living has robbed life of much of the old-time and much-to-be-destined friendship which was more than merely paying visits, making calls and leaving cards, is the argument of the Rev. James Edward Carver, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who made "Friendship" a subject for his communion day sermon this morning. In part he said:

The old houses had one spare room that was kept as a guest chamber for the friends who might grace the family with their visit. Our modern homes are so filled with up-to-date conveniences and ornaments that we have little room or time for visits from friends. We give entertainment

DELAYS CALLING POLICE.

Woman is Robbed of $125, but is Slow to Call Officers.

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Nov. 16.—The police were asked today to clear up a mysterious robbery when Mrs. Thomas Lindsay, who conducts a boarding house at 2526 Adams avenue, reported the loss of $125 in cash. The money was taken from her home some time yesterday afternoon, the loss being discovered last evening, but Mrs. Lindsay did not report the matter to the officers until today. There is absolutely no clue as to the identity of the supposed thieves.

The money was paid to Mrs. Lindsay about noon yesterday and she placed it in a sewing machine drawer. When she missed her purse from the drawer a few hours later she did not suspect the real loss, believing that she had possibly mislaid the article. Upon returning to her home late last evening she made a thorough search and discovered that the $125 was missing.

DIETS OF BURNS.

Mrs. Joseph R. Paine Passes Away After Terrible Suffering.

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Nov. 16.—Unable to survive the shock and the intense pain resulting from the horrible burns received at 4:30 o'clock Saturday evening, Mrs. Joseph R. Paine, aged 54 years, a well-known resident of this city, died at her home, 120 Twenty-sixth street, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning.

Her 12-year-old daughter, Florence, the only other member of the family at home when the accident occurred, suffered from burns which she received while endeavoring to assist her mother. The child's hands, arms and face are blistered, but her condition is not regarded as serious.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon, with services in the Second ward funeral home. Friends will be permitted to view the body.

BUSY WITH "BOOSTER."

Annual Issue of Paper by the Elks Will Be "Hummer."

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Nov. 16.—With a special committee consisting of an editor-in-chief and two assistants working overtime in order that the paper may go to press on schedule time, the members of Ogden lodge No. 719, R. P. O. Elks, are preparing for the issuance of their annual newspaper, the Elks' Booster. While this newspaper is published but once in a year, it makes up for its long time when it does appear, and the editor would mean murder to mention his name.

The Booster is issued in the interests of the annual show, "The Elks' Show," to be presented at the Orpheum on November 24, 25 and 26. Rehearsals and other preparations for the show are progressing satisfactorily under the direction of T. Earl Fardor, a local instructor. The show this year is a musical comedy which is still popular in the east.

DELINQUENT LIST IS LARGE.

OGDEN, Nov. 16.—Although the cash received Friday and Saturday, November 14 and 15, was nearly $100,000, the total amount of taxes collected up to the official time for the closing of the books will not equal the amount received at the same time last year, according to Franky Treasurer Joseph Storey. Yesterday was the day officially set for closing the books, but all money received by mail tomorrow will be accepted.

The approximate amount of the taxes this year was $100,000. Because of the slight delay in the collections the delinquent list will be somewhat larger. From year. Clerks will be put to work at once upon the preparation of this list, which will be published later, but not later than the first Monday in December.

KALLAIS TRIAL OPENS TODAY.

PROVO, Nov. 16.—Tomorrow the trial of Jim Kallais, charged with murder in the first degree, will begin in the Fourth district court. Defendant, who is a Greek railroad laborer, cut Jose Sanchez in the neck with a knife August 14, at Colton, and death followed in a short time. The cutting episode was a part of a quarrel between Greek and Mexican railroad laborers. Kallais does not deny the cutting, but alleges it was done in self-defense.
