WILL MARCH UPON MARYLAND CAPITAL

Suffragists to Concentrate Their Forces Next Week at Baltimore.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Inspired by the "hike" of their New York colleagues, who, headed by "General" Rosalie Jones, are advancing on Albany to impress upon the legislators the necessity of a suffrage amendment, members of the congressional union here today began plans for a similar move upon Annapolis, the Maryland capital.

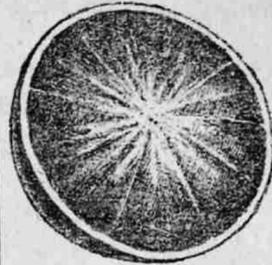

The "invaders," it was announced, will go to Baltimore next week, where the suffragists are to concentrate and with their numbers strengthened by the Maryland forces will march on to the state capital.

It was also announced that when congress reassembles the members of the congressional union will undertake an active campaign in support of the proposed federal suffrage amendment.

Mrs. Merrill McCormick, chairman of the congressional committee of the National Woman's Suffrage association, asserted tonight that beginning next week preparations for the 1914 campaign would be undertaken. It is proposed that through the existing state organizations the women throughout the country will be marshaled for work in all of the congressional districts. All candidates for congress, as well as present members, who do not stand for the "suffrage" amendment to the constitution, will be opposed by the association in the primaries and elections.

ASSAY OFFICE MAKES ITS ANNUAL REPORT

Decrease Is Noted in the Receipts for the Past Twelve Months.

The total amount of gold and silver bullion bought by the local federal assay office during the year 1913 totaled only $335,088.41, or $647,648.59 less than the total for 1912, according to the annual report of the office which will today be sent to the department at Washington.

In the report, prepared by J. L. May, chief clerk of the office, the cause of the falling off is ascribed to the shutting down of the Mercury mills and the burning of the National mills. There were 15,606 ounces of gold with a value of $322,611 during the past year and 3,927 ounces of silver with a total value of $12,477.41, handled by the office. In discussing his report and the dropping off of the amount of bullion handled, Mr. May said:

Not only has the inoperation of the Mercury and National mills had an effect upon the local office, but the attitude of the government toward the assaying offices and the rumors that all were to be closed had an effect. During the four years previous to 1913 the receipts averaged $1,000,000 yearly. There has been no appropriation made for shipment of bullion much of this year's products were sent directly to the mints.

The mining industry is a mighty important one in Utah and the entire interest of the government in the assay office is the only thing that helps the miners. The miners are the pioneers of the country and the government should help them as much as it can. They do the farmers. When a miner brings his ore to our office he is paid $20.37 an ounce while if there was no office he would have to accept only about $19 an ounce from bankers or bullion buyers or would have to send it to the mine and pay express charges.

This office can be maintained by the government at a net cost of $1000 a year. When one considers how much the government spends annually on the weather offices and the various research departments of the bureau of agriculture it seems surprising that the miners should be begrudged this small assistance. If the assay offices were closed the mints would have to buy bullion just the same and would have to increase their forces to handle this added business. For one, I think it better to keep the money right here in the state than to put it out somewhere else.
