SHORTAGE OF MEAT ANIMALS IS SHOWN

Striking Decrease in Number of Cattle, Sheep and Swine in Three Years.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Shortage of meat animals in the United States was strikingly demonstrated by comparative figures made public today by the department of agriculture, showing that there are nine less beef cattle, seven less sheep and three less hogs now for each 100 persons in the country than there were in 1910. This means that it would take 15,259,000 more meat cattle, sheep and swine to give the present population the same supply that the census of 1910 showed to exist.

VANDERBILT YACHT STILL HARD AGROUND

FALMOUTH, England, Feb. 1.—Captain Lorence, the first officer, and seventeen of the crew of the German bark Hera, from Pissagua, Chile, for Falmouth, lost their lives today when the vessel struck a rock as she had almost concluded her voyage. The remaining five men were saved through the gallantry of the first officer, who, realizing his own end was near, landed his whistle to a comrade with orders to blow it.

DEMOCRATS ARE LESS RAMPANT THAN IN PAST

Leaders Making Ready to Use Pruning Hook on the Myriad of Bills Introduced in Congress.

COMING ELECTION THE REASON GIVEN

Senators as Well as Representatives Must Get Out and Hustle for Votes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Extension of arbitration treaties and a general clearing up of the nation's foreign relations; anti-trust legislation; rural credit enhancement through the establishment of land mortgage banks for farmers; legislation authorizing a government-owned railroad in Alaska, and revision of the immigration laws, appear today as the main guide-posts for administration leaders in the course of the present session of congress.

Although many other subjects are being pressed by Democrats for consideration, party leaders realize that a new administration cannot reform the whole statutory structure of the government in a day. To complete their programme they appreciate that continuation of party supremacy is necessary and that re-election of a Democratic senate and house next fall is more important than a long session of congress choked with hastily considered legislation.

Election of Senators.

Increasing the necessity for early party activity is the seventeenth constitutional amendment which, for the first time in the history of the government, commands the people to elect their own United States senators. Hence the senate cannot, as of old, sit content in Washington while members of the house strain to get into their home districts. Senators must go out into the highways and byways, and, shoulder to shoulder with members of the house, make joint appeal to the people for votes.

So with the congressional campaign rapidly approaching, the men who guide the destinies of legislation already have sharpened their pruning hooks and the pet measures of many loyal Democrats must fall. Besides regular departmental legislation and the supply bills, some of the subjects being urged for action are equal suffrage, through a constitutional amendment, prohibition of the liquor traffic, a law to guarantee bank deposits, government regulation of stock exchanges and many others. June 1 having been set as the probable date of adjournment, the party leaders intend, as soon as possible, to map out a programme of work for the remainder of the session and White house conferences on this subject probably will be held this week.

Renewal of Treaties.

Renewal of the arbitration treaties with eight foreign nations recommended or ratified by the foreign relations committee last week will occupy the attention of the senate during the week, after the passage of the agricultural extension bill. The treaties that have expired are with Great Britain, Japan, Italy, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Portugal and Switzerland. President Wilson has urged immediate extension as the ground for a general readjustment of foreign affairs. Ratification of the treaties is confidently anticipated by party leaders.

Work on Trust Bills.

Consideration of trust bills and their perfection will continue during the week before committees of both houses. Hearings will begin on Senator Owen's bill to prohibit the use of mails and telegraph and telephone lines for fraudulent or harmful stock exchange transactions. House leaders are bending every effort to clear the legislative slate in time for the proposed adjournment.

LARGE AMERICAN SMELTER TO OPEN

Rebels Take Control of Beef Supply and Sell It at Six Cents Per Pound; Villa Is Supreme.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1.—Jose Luis Reuena, chief of the Felix Diaz political organization, and Pedro Villar, who were arrested yesterday on the charge of complicity in a plot against the government, were released today. It is understood they have agreed to leave the country.

Smelter to Open.

The rebel government already is in possession of much bullion, which will be coined to enrich the treasury. It also was announced that a large American smelting interest, which controls industries in Colorado and other parts of the United States, has entered into an arrangement for the immediate opening of a smelter in Chihuahua, which has been closed for many weeks. The smelter will provide an outlet for thousands of tons of ore brought out of the Chihuahua mines since the revolution began. Under the terms the rebels are to receive a percentage of the mining and smelter profits.

Villa Supreme.

Confirming assertions of General Villa that although his power is supreme in Chihuahua state, he nevertheless is second to General Carranza, all the official documents refer to Carranza as the chief. This is set forth in the Periodical Official, in which Carranza's decrees are published. Homes of the Creel, Terrazas and other rich families continue to fall into the hands of the rebels, who use them as government stables and cuartels.

NAVAL COMMISSION TO CONDUCT INQUIRY

As the Rev. Macleod read the brief service at the grave he gazed into the glow of the declining sun, and in the foreground faced the great obelisk which marks the spot where Lincoln lies. "Thus," said Senator Sherman, "is the old associate of the two in life continued in death."

Governor Dunne's Tribute.

Governor Dunne paid a tribute to the integrity of Senator Cullom's political career, which extended over a half century. He said he hoped the senator's life would be an incentive to the public men of this and other days, and asserted the senator left friends and relatives a heritage greater than earthly riches—the heritage of an honest name and a record of duty well done.

Integrity Unquestioned.

Men in public life are subjected to fierce criticism by their political enemies, and he did not escape it; but no critic that I have read or heard ever questioned Senator Cullom's integrity.

GOVERNOR DUNNE AMONG THE ORATORS

Body Lowered Into Grave in Oak Ridge Cemetery at Sundown Near Resting Place of Lincoln.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 1.—The body of Shelby M. Cullom, former United States senator, was lowered into its grave in the family lot at Oak Ridge cemetery at sundown tonight. It rests between the graves of his two wives, Hannah and Julia Fleber, who were sisters, and in the same plot of ground are the resting places of their five children.

Funeral services were held in the hall of representatives in the statehouse, where the memorial sermon was preached by the Rev. Duncan C. Macleod, and eulogies were delivered by Governor Dunne, Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman and Clinton L. Conkling, from the same rostrum from which Mr. Cullom five times addressed legislatures which had elected him to the upper house at Washington.

With Governor Dunne among the speakers and former Governors Pifer, Yates and Deneen present, the audience included all the governors now living who followed Mr. Cullom into the gubernatorial chair.

The predominant strain of the eulogies was the unassuming honesty and steadfastness of the decedent.

Hundreds Turned Away.

The coffin, in a great mass of flowers, rested under the rostrum, and between famous paintings of Lincoln and Douglas, which hung on either side of the hall. The 2200 seats were quickly filled as soon as the doors were opened, and hundreds were turned away. In the hall were friends and acquaintances, political and social, of many years, but the penalty of the statesman's eighty-five years of life was seen in the absence of close relatives. Of his own blood there were present only two nieces, Mrs. G. H. Schlumpf and Mrs. George Davis, and their children, of Peoria. An aged sister, Mrs. Lina Lepper, survives, but is an invalid. All the others had preceded him to the grave.

Sister-in-law Present.

In the interment were Mrs. Charles Ridgely, whose son, W. B. Ridgely, former comptroller of the currency, married one of Senator Cullom's daughters, and Victoria Fisher, sister of the senator's two wives. Other members of the Ridgely family were among the mourners.

Part of the road to the cemetery followed by the funeral procession today is that over which the body of Abraham Lincoln, Cullom's early friend and predecessor, was borne nearly half a century ago. The burial ground lay deep in snow.

As the Rev. Macleod read the brief service at the grave he gazed into the glow of the declining sun, and in the foreground faced the great obelisk which marks the spot where Lincoln lies. "Thus," said Senator Sherman, "is the old associate of the two in life continued in death."
