

PLAN COLLEGE WORK

Southern Educators Would Raise Standing of Schools.

TO CLOSE EDUCATIONAL GAP

Important Conference Representing Eight Universities of the South and Many Other Institutions Maps Line of Work at Charlottesville.

Special to the Washington Herald. Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 23.—Perhaps the most interesting and important educational conference held in the South in years assembled this morning in Madison Hall at the University of Virginia.

The conference, which will consider especially the gap which, in many States, lies between the high school and the college, has brought together the heads of eight universities of the South, the heads of all Virginia universities and academic colleges, and the superintendents of public instruction of the States of North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, and Virginia, and the professors of secondary education in the same States.

Dr. Alderman Talks on Education. The conference was called to order at 9 o'clock, and upon motion of State Superintendent Joyner, of North Carolina, President Alderman, of the University of Virginia, was called upon to preside over the conference.

"We are here to-day, I think, primarily to consider methods of establishing and improving secondary schools in the Southern States. I perceive the following necessary things to be done: An extension of State aid to secondary education to the point of the establishment of a complete system of public high schools. Organized effort to multiply these high schools in town and country, and especially in the country, and to so develop them that they will be neither blind alleys to the colleges, nor cul de sacs for freight elementary school boys, but independent educational forms, with independent curricula, and independent methods, and yet, properly related to their curricula and social purposes to the schools above and the schools below."

Papers Read and Discussed. The feature of the morning session of the convention was the paper by Elmer E. Brown, United States commissioner of education, on the definite ways the State department of education may further the establishment of a system of public high schools.

President J. W. Abernethy, of the University of Alabama, followed with a paper on the definite ways the State department of education could develop a system of public high schools once established.

The first paper at the afternoon session was by Prof. J. S. Stewart, of the University of Georgia, on the relations of higher institutions of learning to high schools. The subject was further discussed by President David F. Houston, of the University of Texas, and others.

Dr. Wallace Buttrick, of the general education board, New York, and Prof. Bruce R. Payne, of the University of Virginia, spoke of the definite work of professors of secondary education.

GRAND LODGE SESSION ENDS. Odd Fellows Will Meet in Charlottesville, Va., Next Year.

Special to the Washington Herald. Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 23.—The forty-first annual session of the Grand Lodge of West Virginia, I. O. O. F., closed this evening after a three days' meeting here. Next year's meeting will be at Charlottesville. The following officers were elected: A. M. Woldridge, grand master; A. H. Cecil, deputy grand master; Frank Rhodes, grand warden; E. A. Billings, grand secretary; and A. J. Smeaton, grand treasurer.

GUilty OF SHANGHAIING. Capt. Crockett Fined $500 for Ill Treatment of Oyster Boatmen.

Special to the Washington Herald. Norfolk, Va., Nov. 23.—Andrew A. Crockett, of Tangier Island, and master of the oyster vessel, James A. Whiting, who has been on trial in the United States District Court for the last two days on the charge of having shanghaied the men at Richmond, and also with having abused them while on the vessel, was pronounced guilty this afternoon. The penalty imposed by Judge Waddell was a fine of $500.

CHARLES W. HENSELL DIES. Winchester Merchant Succumbs to Pneumonia and Paralysis.

Special to the Washington Herald. Winchester, Va., Nov. 23.—Charles W. Hensell, one of Winchester's best-known residents, died to-day, aged sixty-nine years. Mr. Hensell was stricken with paralysis last Sunday and pneumonia developed, causing his death. Mr. Hensell was for twenty years engaged in the dry goods business, retiring a few years ago.

Attempt to Wreck Train Fails. Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 23.—The time-by discovery by two colored men who were out hunting, and who notified the operator at Millersville, of several pieces of iron tied to the main track of the Washington Southern Railroad, about one mile north of Millersville, prevented a wreck. Railroad detectives have been put on the work of locating the attempted wreckers.

Soldier of Fortune Is Dead. Winchester, Va., Nov. 23.—Augustus Ehrhart, a familiar figure about town, died at the Memorial Hospital to-day, aged fifty-six. Ehrhart was a veteran of the Civil war. He was born in Allegheny county, Pa., and was a soldier of fortune, and wandered all over the world.
