MISS CAHILL GIVES BOOKS.

Starts Nucleus of Drama Library at Georgetown University.

Marie Cahill, the actress, has offered to found a library of value to dramatic students at Georgetown University, and her offer has been accepted by Rev. Father Buell, S. J., the president of the college. Miss Cahill arrived in Washington yesterday preparatory to her appearance at the Columbia Theater this week in "Marrying Mary."

Immediately upon her arrival, and in pursuance of the agreement she had reached with Father Buell through her representative, Miss Cahill caused to be delivered at the college a very valuable collection of Shakespeare, including twenty volumes, and which was published in London in 1875. The set is the only one of its kind, for while Bell editions of the above date are not extremely rare, this is the one that was especially prepared for Prince George of Wales, and contains not only a special dedicatory book plate, but has also on the outside binding the royal British coat-of-arms. The books were purchased in 1871 in London at the Duke of York's sale, by E. J. Brady, of New York, a Wall street broker. Miss Cahill secured the set from him at a big price for the purpose of starting her library at Georgetown.

In her letter of presentation to Georgetown, Miss Cahill declares her intention of adding to this collection as frequently as possible, and adds: "It is possible to elevate the stage by encouraging educated men and women to interest themselves in dramatic affairs, for with educated actors, playwrights, and managers the stage will naturally elevate itself. The present inferior condition of the American drama is not so much the fault of the public as some present-day managers would have us believe. The trouble lies with the managers themselves, and also with the playwrights and actors. Let us inject a little culture and refinement into the people who are closely allied with dramatic interests, and the atmosphere of the stage must of necessity be improved and clarified."

MINISTER CHAMPIONS LABOR

Rev. Mr. Stelzle Tells Hearers How Christ Reformed World.

Declares that Religion of Nazarene is Broader than Any "Ism"—Many Workmen Present.

"Christ, the Champion of Labor" was the subject of the address delivered by Rev. Charles Stelzle, recently appointed superintendent of the Presbyterian department of church and labor, in his address at the Sixth Presbyterian Church last night. With this topic in mind, he discussed the question first generally and afterward going more into detail.

"Christianity is not dependent upon the infallibility of the church," he said, "nor upon the infallibility of the Bible. We had a God before we had either church or Bible."

Dr. Stelzle then discussed the difference between Christ's manner of reform and the present-day methods.

"Practically every social reformer claims Christ as his champion. Whatever this may indicate, it shows that the Christianity of Jesus Christ is broader than any 'ism.' And yet Jesus Christ was a reformer. He lived in an age when social conditions were infinitely worse than they are to-day, and He denounced the conditions as no other man ever dared to do before or since. His method was different from all others.

"He did not try to reform the government—it was man who first received the word of God through his Son on earth. He recognized that great fundamental principle that no good government can exist until you have good citizens."

Dr. Stelzle's career has been a most varied one. Born as he was in the slums of New York and introduced at an early age to all of the misery of the New York slums, he has been able to appreciate the wants and privations which the poorer classes of workers in great cities are forced to endure. Before studying for the ministry he was a mechanic, working in that vocation until he was twenty-five years old. He has never had the benefits of a college education, being forced to study at night school for twelve years before taking the examination for the ministry. In his addresses, it is plain that his one object is to bring together a closer union between labor and church.

A very large number of laboring men, representing nearly all of the local unions, were present at the meeting. At the close of his speech many of the men stayed to meet the man who is so heartily interested in their cause, and offer him the assurance of their support in the work he is doing.

Dr. Stelzle delivered two addresses earlier in the day, one in the morning at 10 o'clock at the Eastern Presbyterian Church, and one at 4 o'clock at the Church of the Covenant. Both speeches were well received, and his address at the Sixth Presbyterian.

SEES PROPOSED DIVORCE BILL

President Receives the Committee with Copy of the Measure.

The President, Saturday, received a copy of the proposed uniform divorce law as adopted at the adjourned meeting of the Divorce Congress in Philadelphia last November. With the copy of the bill were the resolutions adopted by the congress for presentation to the President and the Congress of the United States.

The committee which called at the White House to present the documents consisted of Judge William H. Staake, of Philadelphia; Vice Chancellor John R. Emery, of New Jersey; Le Rue Munson, of Williamsport, Pa.; Walter George Smith, of Philadelphia, and F. L. Sidons, of the District of Columbia.

President Roosevelt is in accord with the measure represented by the bill and the resolution, and he had a long talk with the committee.

MISS E. B. JOHNSTON DEAD.

Was Authority on Historical Phases of Washington's Life.

Miss Elizabeth Bryant Johnston, a native of Kentucky, died yesterday morning at her residence, 1229 Florida avenue. She was for many years prominent in the social and intellectual life of the city. She was also identified with many historical and charitable organizations, and an active member of the D. A. R., having served as historian general. Her special study was of the life and times of Washington, and to these subjects she had contributed much valuable information, which is now being put in authority.

Her funeral will take place from her late residence, Tuesday, January 15, at 2:30 o'clock. Interment private at Rock Creek Cemetery.

Dies While Out Driving.

Long Branch, N. J., Jan. 12.—Pittman West, a retired merchant, while out driving on Cedar avenue, near West End, this afternoon, was stricken with heart failure. Pedestrians noticed the horse on a run with a man lying on the seat. The horse was for a moment in the street, and driven to the Monmouth Memorial Hospital. He was dead before arrival.

STIRRED BY CIRCULAR

Board of Trade Members Are Aroused.

LOWER FIGHT DUE TO-NIGHT

Criticism of Plan to Employ Commercial Secretary Answered by Robert N. Harper, Chairman of Committee—He Declares the Action of the Opposition is Unprecedented.

Whether the plan for encouraging the establishment of manufactures and commerce in the District of Columbia, for the consideration of which a committee was appointed by the Board of Trade last February, is to be adopted will probably be definitely decided upon at a meeting of the Board of Trade to-night. While fifty members of the organization have signed a statement opposing the move for the employment of a commercial secretary, the majority of the board is said to favor the proposition.

B. H. Warner is chairman of the committee that was selected to make a report on the suggestion. This is composed of sixty-two members. Later, a sub-committee of nine, with Robert N. Harper as chairman, was appointed to make a report to the original committee. Mr. Warner will submit his report to the Board of Trade to-night. The committee has several suggestions for the encouragement of manufacturing and commercial enterprises in Washington, and if one is not received favorably the other will be placed before the members for a decision.

"I was very much surprised when informed that a circular was being circulated," said Mr. Harper last night. "I have not seen it myself, nor have I been asked to sign it. The only information I have as to its contents comes through the columns of the press.

Action is Unprecedented.

"So far as I can recall, nothing of the kind has ever been done before regarding the report of any committee. It has always been the custom of the board to simply oppose, favor, or refer back to the committee with instructions when the majority of the board was against the provisions of a resolution.

"The move made by those having the circular in hand is most extraordinary and unusual. The statement sounds a warning to the individual members to be present and prevent the entire Board of Trade from being wiped out of existence. Surely no one desires to accuse us, either collectively or individually, of planning its destruction.

"Without wishing to draw a comparison between members, I will venture to say that there is not a more loyal set of members of the board than those who constitute the committee, which I am a member. There are no better citizens and well-wishers of Washington than can be found on this committee. Why any one wishes to distort or really misrepresent our position I cannot understand.

"To read this circular as it appears in the papers would look as though we had recommended the appropriation of $5,000 or $7,000 for this committee.

Board Not Endangered.

"The Board of Trade is composed of intelligent business men, capable of looking after the welfare of the city and the organization. I hardly feel that any one need fear that any committee will be permitted to damage, either by report or otherwise, any of the members of the organization. We are working for the board and the upbuilding of the city, and at the present time under instructions from the Board of Trade itself. We have been instructed to report a comprehensive plan to induce manufacturing plants to locate in the District."

"If any one is under the impression that any member of our committee, either singly or collectively, desires to do anything detrimental to the success of the Board of Trade or Washington he is very much mistaken.

"I feel that as our report only makes a suggestion, and recommends nothing at all radical, the individual members not on the committee should at least wait until we are heard at the meeting before they criticize the committee. If what we recommend does not meet with their approval the majority of the board has the remedy."

The matter to be decided to-night was brought before the Board of Trade at a meeting several weeks ago, and it was postponed because of the fact that there was a great deal of other business to be transacted. It is expected that the meeting to-night will be largely attended.

VOYAGE UP THE NILE.

Burton Holmes Gives an Interesting Lecture at Columbia Theater.

One of the best of the "travelogues" of Burton Holmes is his description of a trip up the Nile, which he gave at the Columbia Theater last night to a large and well pleased audience. His pictures of this "Egypt of Yesterday" are clear, brilliant, and artistic, and Mr. Holmes' lecture is entertaining and highly informative.

He begins his lecture with the museum at Cairo, where are stored many of the treasures which have been unearthed from the near-by tombs and palaces, and during the lecture he frequently returned to this museum to illustrate the matters of which he talked. Thus when he came to vanished Memphis and the tombs of Rameses he went back to the museum to show two striking pictures of the remains of the two mightiest of the Pharaohs as they appear to-day. Mummified as they are, they are so well preserved that it requires but little imagination to recognize the accuracy of the portraits of these mighty Egyptian kings as they are carved on the rock temples.

During the lecture, too, Mr. Holmes took occasion to dwell on the great work of irrigation carried out by the British in Egypt, and the comparison between the primitive method of irrigation, the "Shaduf" and the "Sakkia," was most striking. Here he showed Phylae as it lies now, half submerged by the building of the big barrage, and rendered, in a way, vastly more beautiful by the submergence.

The Temple of Hathor, the quarries of the obelisks, scenes at Abydos, the vocal Memnon, vanished Thebes, the colossi of the plains, ancient modern Luxor, and inside and out of the great pyramids—all these were illustrated in a wondrously beautiful way and described with faithful accuracy.

With the fine stereopticon views were many motion pictures, panoramas of passing ships and Nile boats, the fury of the Nile waters at Assouan, and a number of other interesting views. One thing, however, is rather to be deprecated, and that is the few freak motion pictures which Mr. Holmes introduces. They are laughable enough in their grotesque exaggeration, but they seem, in a measure, to lower the tone of the lecture, which otherwise is dignified, scholarly, and worthy of the highest praise.

ABOUT PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Percy G. Williams, the Boston vaudeville promoted, is trying hard to lure Thomas W. Lawson onto the vaudeville stage. He thinks Lawson can't be caught by a straight money offer, so he puts his bait in the form of an invitation to lecture to the public on financial topics for ten minutes each afternoon from the stage of the Orpheum, which Williams runs. If Lawson will do this, Williams offers to make a contribution to charity of such size as he and Lawson may agree on.

Lillian Russell thinks she is going to make so much money out of her new piece, "The Butterfly," that she can afford the princely luxury of a racing stable the coming summer. When she was down in Kentucky the other day, she visited J. E. Madden's stock farm and offered to buy a pair of stallions for $10,000. If she will do this, Williams offers to make a contribution to charity of such size as he and Lawson may agree on.

Some skeptical people may insist on affidavits before they will believe it, but it is said to be a fact that Edna Aug has made such a hit as the American coquette in the annual "revue" at the Paris Folies Bergeres that her fame is rapidly spreading all over Europe. She is the idol of the boulevardiers, and the Paris papers and magazines are extravagant in their praise of her. Yet Edna was never regarded here as much more than an ordinary vaudeville performer of no special talent.

Robert Mantell has got so genuinely big that he finds it in him to praise a fellow-actor whose funeral hasn't been scheduled. At a dinner in Baltimore the other night, Mantell spoke glowingly of the work of Richard Mansfield and the debt the American stage owes him.

When Ada Webster, who has been playing the part of the curate's wife in "The Hypocrites" in New York for five months, is asked to go to London on Saturday, it was disclosed that her real business is that of a modiste, and that she owns a very swell shop in London.

The Sothern-Marlowe engagement in New York will open next Monday night with Sothern's "John the Baptist." As John D. Rockefeller is quite a prominent member of the Baptist Church, Sothern's manager thought he saw a certain fitness to say nothing of other things, in trying to induce John D. to attend the performance. So he wrote placing a box at the multimillionaire's disposal, which the latter's secretary promptly declined with thanks on the part of his employer.

A New York theatrical sheet is responsible for the report that when E. H. Sothern goes on his English tour he will have a "u" in his name out of deference to the English prejudice in favor of the use of that letter in words like honor, parlor, &c.

There is no question that Pittsburg took to Richard Mansfield's "Peery Gunt" as if it were an original Smoky City discovery. It is said to have given up $20,000 to Mansfield in recompense for his week's stay there.

The latest addition to the long and lurid series of Charles E. Blaney melodramas is entitled "The Hired Girl's Millions." It has just been copyrighted at the Congressional Library.

For the first time in America, Cilea's opera of "Adrienne Lecouvreur" was produced in New Orleans recently by Henry Russell's San Carlo Opera Company. The new work seems to have been both an artistic and popular success as presented by the Russell troupe of singers. The leading roles were taken by Tarquinia Tarquini and Constantine.

To accommodate the people who want to see her in "Peter Pan," Maude Adams will give three matinees a week during the remainder of her engagement at the Empire Theater, New York.
