WHY HERMANN QUIT

Compelled to Resign by Secretary of Interior.

THREATENED WITH REMOVAL

Hitchcock and His Assistant, W. Scott Smith, Testify that Demands Were Made on Land Commissioner, Intercession by Senator Mitchell, Holsinger Report Read to the Jury.

W. Scott Smith, private secretary to former Secretary of the Interior E. A. Hitchcock, was the last witness called by the prosecution yesterday in the trial of Alger Hermann, who is indicted for the alleged destruction of government letter-press books.

Had Several Interviews.

It was testified by Mr. Smith that Mr. Hermann had a number of interviews with Secretary Hitchcock, and that the latter, about two or three weeks after he first made Hermann acquainted with the fact that his resignation was desired, sent for Hermann and told him that if his resignation was not forthcoming he would have to ask the President to remove him.

Senator Mitchell handed Hermann's resignation to Mr. Hitchcock a few days thereafter, but asked that action be deferred until the latter part of January.

Mr. Hitchcock proceeded Mr. Smith on the stand. He stated that the resignation of Mr. Hermann was involuntary and that he had information that affairs in the Land Office might not be just right.

The Holsinger report, giving the details of the alleged Hyde-Benson-Schneider-Diamond land frauds was offered in evidence by District Attorney Baker, and it was read to the jury. Mr. Baker also produced in court practically all the records of the Land Office bearing on the creation of the Blue Mountain forest reserve.

Albert A. Tanner Testifies.

Albert A. Tanner, a former law partner of the late Senator John Mitchell, was a witness. Being asked by Mr. Baker, Mr. Tanner stated that his firm practiced extensively before the Land Office in expediting cases. Requested to name some of their clients, Mr. Tanner mentioned John A. Benson, of California, who, he stated, paid a few of $500 for legal services in connection with a case involving lands in the State of Washington.

The fact was developed by Mr. Baker that Mr. Benson voluntarily promised the firm the fee of $500 if an early action was secured on his land case. The fee was paid in two installments of $250 each. Mr. Tanner further testified that the fee paid by Benson was placed with the receipts of the firm of Mitchell & Tanner and was divided between himself and Mitchell at the end of the month.

Mrs. Maud T. Gordon Seeks Writ Against Her Husband.

Maud T. Gordon yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to issue a habeas corpus against John C. F. Gordon, requiring him to produce their child, Dorothy Turner Gordon, who, Mrs. Gordon alleges, has been removed out of the jurisdiction by the defendant.

Phillips gave him a check for $15 as payment of a bill, which, when presented at the National Bank of Washington yesterday, was found to be worthless.

CANNOT HELP INDIAN MAID. Government Temporarily Balked in Effort to Care for Lily Small Rib.

Uncle Sam finds himself balked temporarily in his efforts to care properly for a little Indian maiden who has been made totally blind from a shot fired by a regular soldier.

The girl is Lily Small Rib, an Arapaho child, living in Oklahoma. Her parents have no means, and the government has no funds of that tribe from which to draw. Deeply interested in the case, the Secretary of the Interior has hoped the existing law might permit him to place the child in the Columbia Institute for the Blind in this city. He has been advised by the Comptroller of the Treasury, however, that such provision cannot be made.

PAOLUCCI SEEKS NEW TRIAL. Bases Plan on Statement Made by District Attorney.

Attorney Thomas C. Taylor yesterday filed a motion for a new trial for his client Joseph Paolucci, who was convicted last Friday of murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Elizabeth V. Dodge, September 12 last. The principal reason advanced why the verdict of the jury should be set aside, according to the motion, is the statement made by the prosecutor in his address to the jury, in which he said:

"This modern Romeo has boasted to a mass of his Italian acquaintances in this city that he had a beautiful American girl for a sweetheart, but when he found he had not, it wounded his pride, and he, in hatred, brutally shot her."

NOW THEY ARE HAPPY

Papa and Mamma Wilson Pacified in Court.

JUDGE ACTS AS ARBITRATOR

Pair Dismissed with a Dissertation on the Duties of Husband and Wife. George Washington Hancock, & Co., Learns the Penalty for Stealing Tobacco—Reckons She Loves Him.

Because this is the dull season for paperhangers, and husband John, who makes his living by putting people's parlors and bedrooms out of commission for two or three days at a time, was, therefore, unable to provide the new spring dress and bonnet desired by Mrs. John, Mamma and Papa Wilson and two little Wilsons appeared in Judge De Lacey's Juvenile Court yesterday to see what the strong arm of the law could do about it. Papa Wilson appeared at the instigation of Mamma Wilson, who charged him with nonsupport. Mamma Wilson was there with the little Wilsons to back up her assertions and get the sympathy of the court. Papa Wilson's mother-in-law was also present to help make things unpleasant for him.

Upon rigid investigation by the gentle, kindly magistrate, it developed that up to two weeks ago all had been peace and harmony in the Wilson abode. It was then that Mamma Wilson presented her claim for the aforesaid spring bonnet and gown. Papa Wilson told her that he had the money, but wouldn't give it to her. This, it appeared, was a "bluff" meant to cease his young spouse, and when Judge De Lacey heard about it he chided Papa Wilson in gentle but firm tones.

Lectured by Court. "You ought to be ashamed to nag your wife," the court said. "Doesn't she stay at home and work to make things comfortable and pleasant for you? Doesn't she take care of the children? Young man, do you know that if you had to stay in the house two days and do the housework and take care of those two little ones you would—"

"He'd go crazy," interposed Mamma Wilson. "And you ought to be patient and loving toward your husband," said Judge De Lacey, turning to Mamma Wilson. "Doesn't he work hard when there is work for him to do, and doesn't he bring home his earnings to you? You know that at this time of the year there is little or nothing for the paperhangers to do, and you ought to be unselfish and not make demands that you know your husband can't comply with. When he said he had the money, but wouldn't give it to you, didn't you know in your heart that he was teasing and that he didn't have any money?"

"No, sir! I didn't know it." Reckons She Loves Him. "Well, it has been shown here by his attorney and employers that he hasn't earned any money during the last few weeks; you know it now, don't you? Do you love your husband?" "Yes, sir, I reckon I do." "Don't you love your wife?" "Sure."

"Shake hands." (Mamma and Papa Wilson complied tearfully.) Now both you go home and behave yourselves and try to make things happy for each other. There is enough unhappiness in the world now without you two young people looking for it. Next case." Papa Wilson made a nod and they went east on F street. Mamma Wilson, the little Wilsons, and mamma-in-law went west on F street.

Enter George W. & Co. Little George Washington Hancock, & Co., Smith, or maybe it was Jones, was next ushered in and wriggled slowly up to the judge's desk. It appeared that George, & Co., had been in custody for several days, charged with having broken into a little store and stolen a large quantity of cheap tobacco. He had admitted the theft, but was being held in the hope that he would turn "State's evidence" on the other members of the "gang," of which he is suspected of being an integral part.

George's allegiance to the "gang" was worthy of a better cause. He strenuously denied having had accomplices in his burglarious enterprises, and when asked how he was able to carry off such a large quantity of tobacco himself, some thirty-six packages having been stolen, he replied: "All made two trips for it."

Judge De Lacey tried to impress upon the uncomfatable, squirming youngster something of the character and majesty of the law. He told him how the law was made to protect even him from law-breakers, and that the court asked him if he would like to live with a thief.

Knows the Answer. George's wriggles assumed a serpentine character, and after great effort he managed to make audible an ejaculation that to the layman was entirely noncommittal in meaning. But, apparently, Judge De Lacey recognized from long experience that his interrogation had been answered in the negative.

"Why wouldn't you like to live with a thief?" further queried the court. "Murmpf," said George. "Is it because you are afraid he would steal all your clothes and things?" "Is it?" persisted the court. "Umppf," admitted George, in the affirmative.

"Then, you surely don't want to grow up a thief yourself," said the court, "and to protect you against any such possibility I am going to turn you over to the Board of Children's Guardians, who will see that you are sent to a nice place where you will be taught useful things and learn to work with your hands and become a respectable member of society."

"Umppf," said George, as he was gently escorted away.

POLICE BOARD SUSTAINED.

Private John B. Lipscomb Will Be Permitted to Resign. The Commissioners yesterday reaffirmed the findings of the police trial board in the case of Private John B. Lipscomb, recommended for dismissal upon the charge of having shot Daniel Boyle. In view of the previous good record of the officer it was stated that he will be permitted to resign. The shooting occurred on the Conduit road July 29 last.

Campbell Carvington, attorney for Lipscomb, reviewed the case, stating that the evidence showed that the shooting of Boyle was unintentional, and that it was proven conclusively that the policeman's pistol was discharged as he arose from the ground, having fallen while in pursuit of Boyle.

The attention of the Commissioners was directed to his record, first as a fireman, and later as a policeman, tending to prove that he was sober and even-tempered. It was stated that he had no animosity toward Boyle, and that since the shooting has offered to make every reparation by offering to pay his hospital and other expenses. Boyle, it was stated, has fully recovered.

At the conclusion of a hearing given by the Commissioners yesterday to Private B. F. Doulan, recommended by the police trial board for dismissal from the force for a violation of the police regulations, Commissioner West announced that he would recommend the reinstatement of the officer. Doulan was represented by Attorney Wilton J. Lambert.

MARKET MEN HEARD.

Farmers Present Arguments Regarding Allotment of Space. The allotment of space along the line of the wholesale produce market was the subject of a hearing given by the Commissioners yesterday to a delegation of Maryland, Virginia, and District of Columbia farmers. The alleged preference shown by the sealer of weights and measures in assigning space to the Maryland farmers was discussed, the majority of the speakers announcing their satisfaction with the present system by which a certain locality is allotted for a fixed period. Col. W. C. Haskell, sealer of weights and measures, denied that discrimination had been shown, and submitted a statement signed by 117 farmers, announcing their satisfaction with present conditions.

Funeral of 279 John Marshall place, owner of a truck farm in Maryland, stated that the abolition of the old system "first come, first served" has proven satisfactory to the majority of farmers, as it permits them to leave their homes at a reasonable hour with the assurance that his stand would not be occupied. Addresses in advocacy of the present system were also made by Charles R. Howinson, Charles E. Churchman, and others. The Commissioners announced that the arguments presented would be taken under consideration.

May is a particularly delightful month for travel. Spring is well on with all its refreshing aspects, and nature is never more attractive. A thirty-day tour of the continent, covering the scenic points of Colorado, the Grand Canyon of Arizona, twelve days in California, visiting Los Angeles, Pasadena, Redlands, Riverside, Santa Barbara, Del Monte, San Jose, and San Francisco, and a daylight trip through the magnificent Canadian Rockies, will leave on April 27 by special Pullman train under the Personally-Conducted System of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The round-trip rate, covering all necessary expenses while on the special train, and a number of carriage drives at interesting points, will be only $200 from stations on the Pennsylvania Railroad east of Pittsburgh.
