

TOLERATE BOSS RULE

Americans Neglect Politics, Says Woodrow Wilson.

AVERAGE MAN IS TOO BUSY

President of Princeton Shows How Government is Run by Professional Politicians—How Appointive Power is Superior to Elective—President Could Be a Boss if He Desired.

New York, April 26.—In the last lecture in the course that he has been delivering at Columbia University, Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, pointed out to-day that the United States government is, in fact, one in which the people do not and cannot rule.

"There is nothing," said Dr. Wilson, "in which the people are fooled so much as in the election of their officers. I remember once talking with a man in another State about a railroad commission that was to be elected, and I asked him if he really meant that the commission was to be elected by the people. He smiled, and said as he before he replied, 'Well, theoretically, yes.'"

"He added that, knowing which political party was in power, he could name six men who would really appoint the commission. How much preferable it would be to have such things appointed by the governor, whom the people know and can watch, than by men whom the people do not know, and consequently cannot watch."

Favors Concentration.

Dr. Wilson argued for the concentration of responsibility in local governments in the hands of a few people, on whom the citizens can keep an eye. This, he said, was the case with the national government, in which the President, with his appointing power, was an absolute executive force.

Black Hand Bandit Points Out His Confederates in Court.

Wilkesbarre, April 26.—Luobono Orlandi, who is accused of intimidating Daniel Samanca, a witness in the trial of the thirteen alleged leaders of the Mafia and the Black Hand societies here, was arrested to-day by attorneys from the district attorney's office, and later turned State's evidence.

GIMBEL NOT DEAD, IS RUMOR.

Reported in Philadelphia That Mill-Honoree is on Way to Paris.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 26.—Rumors that Benedict Gimbel, arrested in New York City on Monday last week, and reported to have died in a hotel in Hoboken several days later as the result of a desperate attempt to commit suicide, is on his way to Paris, have been spread with remarkable persistency in Philadelphia since the funeral of the millionaire merchant last Tuesday.

ATLANTIC CITY TO BE WET.

Dry Spot in Effect Only During Church Hours on Sunday.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 26.—Indications of a truce in the Sunday closing war are now in sight, a conference of the chief combatants having been held to-day in the Union Bank Building. Former Prosecutor Samuel E. Perry, counsel for the Royal Arch Order, the license holders' organization, and W. I. Garrison, retained by the Good Citizenship League, acted as spokesmen.

It is rumored that an agreement was reached whereby future prosecutions of Sunday law violators will be stopped under the assurance of the observance of a tacit agreement to close the saloons during church hours. Another feature of the agreement is that pressure shall be brought to bear upon the city council to have the license bill passed last Monday night reconsidered, and the fee made $500 instead of $425.

Louis Kuehne, leader of the political forces, and Allen K. White, one of the proprietors of the Marlborough-Blenheim, were present at the conference in behalf of the license holders.

ARGUE $30,000,000 SUGAR SUIT

Attorneys Present Case in Which Philadelphia Suicide Figures.

Henry W. Taft Appears for the Defense—Violation of Anti-trust Law Charged.

New York, April 26.—A motion to strike out certain matter from the answer of the American Sugar Refining Company in the suit for $30,000,000 for violation of the anti-trust law, brought by the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, of Philadelphia, was argued to-day before Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court. The suit grew out of the financial mix-up which was revealed by the suicide of Frank K. Hipple, president of the Real Estate Trust Company, of Philadelphia. Hipple killed himself when his affairs went to smash about a year ago.

He held about 25,000 shares of stock, the controlling interest, in the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, and he had placed this stock in the hands of Adolph Segal, the Philadelphia promoter. In the suit, argument to clarify which was heard to-day, conspiracy to ruin a rival concern is alleged. The complaint alleges that the American Sugar Refining Company, through Segal, negotiated a loan from Gustave E. Kissel, the banker acting as agent for the American company. The American company gained this control through the loan of the 25,000 shares of stock in the sugar company, which he had obtained from Hipple.

At to-day's argument Joseph Junkin, of Philadelphia, and H. S. Marshall, of the law firm of Battle & Marshall, of the same city, appeared for the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, and Henry W. Taft, of the brother of Secretary Taft, for the defendant. There was no attempt made by counsel for either side to block the effort to get at the main facts in the case.

Mr. Taft consented to strike out from his answer the allegation that if an attempt had been made to ruin the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company it would have been done by money fraudulently obtained from the Real Estate Trust Company, of Philadelphia, of which Hipple was the head.

The only other point of importance brought out during the hearing was the consent of the defendant, Adolph Segal, to the suit as a conspirator and a necessary party to the defendant. It held that the Pennsylvania company could not recover because Segal was principally interested in the maintenance of the suit as a large stockholder. Judge Lacombe thought that this particular line of defense should be pleaded separately so that the portion of the defense should be so tested.

Problem of Getting Visitors to and from Grounds More Difficult Than Providing Food and Shelter—Boat Service Wholly Unsatisfactory.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Norfolk, Va., April 26.—Baron von Rosen, the Russian Ambassador, with a lady and two gossypiously-appeared officers, sat, this afternoon, at a table in the "Swiss Village" restaurant, which visitors to the Jamestown-Ter-Centennial Exposition are told is the best on the grounds. If not the only one that even the most complaisant would care to patronize.

The wearers of the blue badges heard the salute of guns fired at the foot of the government pier when President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt, the two boys, Quentin and Archie, and the invited guests of Mr. Roosevelt landed there from Admiral Davis' launch at 11:30. The party was met by Harry St. George Tucker, president of the exposition, and the directors of the exposition. Marines lined the road up to the Administration Building, and the grand stand behind, where the opening exercises were to be held. A troop of cavalry cleared the way.

Diaplay of Fine Feathers.

Norfolk had never seen such feathers. There were attached in red and gold, with medals on their chests like the men on the cigar box corner, naval officers with plumes hanging to their shoulders, two from the Chinese Legation in blue silk robes, and severe-looking frock-coated ambassadors with buttons of honor inlaid with the stars of the American government's staff. Each governor, and there were a lot of them, vied with the other in the gorgeousness of his retinue.

Not Ready for Public.

Only in the sense that dedicatory exercises have been held is the exposition ready for the public. The plain truth of the matter is that practically no feature, no building, no exhibit, no machinery, no street, and no sidewalk is complete. The managers must exert themselves to finish their work in the six weeks that will elapse before the next "opening," and even if they are thoroughly successful in that respect, it will be necessary for them to institute many reforms, if all their hopes are to be realized.

Then the president of the exposition position, after his car, President Roosevelt. Through there was a constant roar caused by the feet of late-comers finding their seats up in the rear of the grand stand, the President's voice carried well.

American Stand-up Luncheon.

Downstairs, in the left wing, the great American stand-up luncheon was served to the uniformed and armed attaches of legations, Congressmen, and citizens variously stand-up luncheon where you duck low and get a plate of salad and a sandwich before your neighbor gets them.

Congressional Party Suffers.

The Iris, a lighthouse tender, placed at the disposal of the Congressional party which left Washington Thursday morning, was one of the vessels the people on whom suffered in this way. After giving the lawmakers a chance to see the war vessels in the Roads, the Iris steamed up to the exposition pier in ample recognition all round well, to enable her party to get to the place where President Roosevelt was to speak.

President Reviews Troops.

To the tune of "Dixie" came down the green three battalions of the Twenty-third Regiment, Col. Philip Read at the head. Then a battalion of Coast Artillery, under Maj. Strong. The crowd cheered the artillerymen and their commander. President Roosevelt lifted his hat to the officer with a smile of recognition.

Various Prices of Admission.

One Washington woman, who became separated from her friends outside the gates and found it necessary to buy a ticket of admission, gave the ticket seller a $10 bill and received $3.50 in change. The price of admission is 50 cents, as the lady learned afterward.

Another Washingtonian who stopped at the Inside Inn with the understanding that the rate she paid there entitled her to leave and enter the grounds as she wished, was subjected to much annoyance by attendants who claimed her tickets were not good. Finally, however, an official was found who validated them and all others like them. These are but a few simple experiences.

COULD NOT PAY POLL TAX

Must Spend Life in Prison Unless Public Comes to His Rescue—Was Only Man in Whole Community Unable to Pay Poll Tax.

Example of Aged Cripple.

Burlington, N. J., April 26.—Deprived of that freedom which alone could bring cheer to his declining years, Ghoram Phillips, a crippled and aged colored man, of Burlington, is a prisoner in the county jail, at Mount Holly, N. J., because he owes the municipality of Burlington $1 for poll tax and $1.75 for costs.

Deformed Since Boyhood.

Ever since his boyhood days Phillips has had to shift for himself in his crippled condition about the streets of Burlington. One of his legs has been deformed since his birth. There is one set in Phillips' life so heroic that it has overshadowed in the minds of many Burlingtonians whatever faults he may have.

Years ago, when he was a young man, an epidemic of smallpox broke out in Burlington. There was one man, Frank Stowell, residing on the outskirts of the town, who fell a victim to the disease in its most malignant form. It was impossible to get any one to attend him, and at last the physician having charge of the case called for volunteers. There was but one to answer the call, and that was Phillips—who is now languishing behind prison bars.

May Be Called to Court.

One day this week, while Mayor C. Taylor was in Burlington, was making a trip through the county jail, the aged colored man, peering through the bars, caught a glimpse of him.

Reader Case Resumed.

New York, April 26.—When the trial of Athole B.
