PAIR CAUGHT ON FLY

Police Drag Two Men from Moving Train.

HOTEL GUESTS THE VICTIMS

Officers Trace Suspects by Their Suit Cases and Place Them Under Arrest as They Are Leaving the City—Prisoners Deny Their Guilt, but Are Held in Custody.

Passengers to Baltimore on the 8 o'clock train last night were astonished to see three large men rush madly from the station after the train had started, board the smoking car, make a hurried survey of the occupants, and seize two well-dressed young men who had been chatting amiably together. Then they dropped from the car with the pair as it was leaving the yards.

Another kidnapping, many of the passengers thought, as they thrust their heads out of the windows and saw the group wending its way toward the station, but those familiar with the local police department immediately recognized Detectives Hartigan, Mullen, and Evans, who had made a search of the city yesterday afternoon for several hundred dollars' worth of clothing and other articles and $100 in cash, which were stolen from the Riggs House some time Wednesday night.

The men who were taken from the train are thought by the police to be the ones, and it is hoped that several other hotel robberies which have occurred during the past two weeks can be traced to them.

Prisoners Give Names. When brought into police headquarters, after expressing their indignation and surprise at being arrested in such an unusual manner, the men gave their names as Frank A. Adams, 294 East street, Camden, N. J., and Henry Atwood, 217 West Thirty-eighth street, New York City.

They had no letters in their pockets, and even the trademarks in their clothing had been torn out, although several pictures, taken in the West, which were found in their traveling bags, lead the detectives to think that they are from that section of the country. After a severe sweatbox examination, during the course of which each man denied knowing the other, except with a casual acquaintance, they were sent to the lockup.

When the robbery was reported the three detectives immediately began a search for the articles which were missing. Among these were several valuable dress-suit cases, which finally led to the home of the man who was finally located at the Pennsylvania station late yesterday afternoon, where they had been checked.

The detectives sat down near them to wait for the owners, and it was nearly three times the night when a colored porter came for the bags, and started with them for the train.

Have to Sprint. So quickly did he secure them and get to the train that the detectives were forced to exercise their best sprinting abilities to reach it in time. Following the porter, they saw him give the bags to the two men, who received them unhesitatingly and began talking.

In an instant they were in the hands of the officers. Atwood was violent in his remonstrances, and said that he would bring all sorts of difficulty on the heads of the detectives for causing him the loss of so much time. Among the rooms entered were those of Silven B. Bennis, of Jamestown, N. Y., who lost $50 worth of apparel; Dr. Charles E. Lane, of Poughkeepsie, whose loss amounted to nearly $100; Miss Ida H. Pelher, of Winona, Minn., whose room was ransacked; Dr. L. W. Rose, who lost $4; Charles C. Levens, the cashier of the hotel, who missed a gold scarf pin and $15; and Miss Williamson, of Cameron, N. Y., who lost $25. None of the money has been recovered, but the dress-suit cases and their contents are held at the headquarters.

COL. BIDDLE SAYS FAREWELL

Engineer Commissioner Retires from District Government.

Takes Formal Leave and Shows Sincere Regrets Over Departure from His Former Colleagues.

Col. John Biddle, former Engineer Commissioner, yesterday bade a formal farewell to his colleagues and the officials of the District government with whom he conscientiously labored for the last five years in the interests and welfare of the District of Columbia. Every department of the District government was represented at the final reception to Col. Biddle, which was held in the board room of the District building. In replying to the many expressions of good will the former Engineer Commissioner spoke of the loyal support given him in the administration of his duties, paying an especial tribute to his colleagues, Commissioners Macfarland and West.

In his address, Commissioner Macfarland reviewed the many public improvements which have marked the administration of Col. Biddle, and to which he has given his best efforts. "You have," said he, "the longest service and the greatest opportunity for important work of any Engineer Commissioner. Your service, so faithfully and zealously rendered, has been crowned with great success. Although the general public cannot know the details of our service here, its extent—doubled in ten years—of its difficulties and perplexities, it appreciates in general what you have done, as the general regret of this hour attests."

Commissioner West also paid a tribute to Col. Biddle, and an address was made by Corporation Counsel E. H. Thomas, by whom a resolution was presented, expressive of regret at the departure of Col. Biddle and appreciation of his services to the District of Columbia.

The Rock Creek board of control yesterday afternoon adopted a minute, expressing the appreciation of the board of the services of Col. Biddle as its secretary and executive officer. Commissioner Morrow was selected as the successor of Col. Biddle.

CRIME WAVE GROWS

Capital Now in the Grip of Homicidal "Brain-storm."

TWO MORE DEATH ATTEMPTS

Thaw Expert Interested in Condition Prevailing—Physicians Attending Conventions Here Discuss Causes of Crimes—Insanity Runs at High Tide During May and June.

Two attempted suicides yesterday added to the long list of homicidal crimes that have striven Washington for the past five days, have aroused the public to a discussion of the question: "Is Washington in the grip of a crime wave?" Seven persons have come to their death through violence since Monday, and one of the two attempts at suicide yesterday is expected to prove fatal, that of Mrs. Christa L. Porter, wife of the assistant superintendent of the Reform School, who cut her throat and wrist arteries with a carving knife at 92 O street, and is in a dying condition at the Emergency Hospital. Charles Ross, who attempted suicide by drinking ether and chloroform, is expected by the officials of the Homeopathic Hospital to recover.

Such a record of homicide and suicide as has been the lot of the local police department to handle during the past five days would be remarkable even in a city of much greater dimensions than Washington. Here it is without parallel. Physicians, city authorities, and visiting medical and insanity experts, who have been attending the various conventions here this week, advance many theories as to the cause of the epidemic of violence, but all agree upon the unusual severity of the "wave."

A review of the record shows that since Monday there has been a suicide every day, and in two cases self-destruction followed murder.

The suicide of John Mottau, committed Sunday night, was the first of the series. The body was found Monday morning in the Commercial Hotel. Grief and ill health are supposed to have been the motives that led to the man taking "rough on rats." On Monday John Koehler, a furniture finisher, killed himself by inhaling illuminating gas, at 113 Tenth street, after having led a double life for several months.

Tragedy on Monday. The record of Monday was capped by the tragic double shooting at the Soldiers' Home, where William Parks, a hospital orderly, attempted, in a drunken frenzy, to shoot a nurse, Sister Paula, and killed James Leslie, another orderly, who attempted to interfere, then turned the revolver upon himself and committing suicide. Parks had been discharged from duty at the hospital the day before for drunkenness, and he attacked Sister Paula, in the belief that she had reported him to the superintendent.

On Tuesday Washington was shocked by one of the most heinous double tragedies in its history. William Rice, a telegrapher, shot and killed his wife while she held their infant child in her arms, the bullet penetrating the child's leg and passing through the woman's heart. Rice or his wife, it is believed, had been drinking heavily, and he attacked Sister Paula, in the belief that she had reported him to the superintendent.

Six Buried Yesterday. The bodies of six of these unfortunate were buried yesterday. Funeral services for Mottau were held at Wise's undertaking establishment and interment in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Koehler and many friends attended the services for her husband, at 1522 New Jersey avenue, yesterday afternoon. The interment was in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Parks was buried in the morning at the Soldiers' Home, while the body of the man he slew, Leslie, was being interred in New York City. The body of Rice was buried in Monocacy Cemetery, Beltsville, Md., and that of his wife, in Glenwood, after services had been held in the room in which she was killed, at 131 Heckman street southeast.

The attempt of Mrs. Porter to kill herself yesterday was marked by unusual delirium and gressiveness. She was suffering from neurasthenia, and her husband had engaged Mary Nichols, a colored girl, to spend the night with his wife while he went to the Reform School.

Hatchet Hidden in Bed. According to the girl's story, Mrs. Porter had a hatchet and knife hidden in the bed clothes. She is said to have cut several other inmates of the rooming house that she intended to kill herself. Yesterday morning she went down to breakfast and into the kitchen. The boarders saw her rushing upstairs with a large carving knife in her hand.

They followed, but Mrs. Porter succeeded in locking and bolting the door of her room. After some delay, an entrance was forced to the room through another door. Mrs. Porter was found lying on the floor with three cuts in the arteries in both wrists severed. The hospital ambulance was called, and Mrs. Porter rushed to the operating table. She was unconscious when she reached the hospital. The physicians worked over her for nearly two hours. Salt solutions were injected to keep life in her body. The severed arteries are considered more serious than the gash in her throat, which alone was not deep enough to be fatal. Little hope is entertained of her recovery.

Ross Drinks Anesthetics. Charles Ross, a photographer in the employ of the Geological Survey, made a futile attempt at suicide by drinking two small phials of ether and chloroform, in J. Donovan's saloon, 1523 Seventh street northwest. When he entered the place about noon he attracted attention by his strange behavior. Going into the rear room of the saloon, he drank some of the contents of the two phials, and returned to the front of the place, throwing the bottles upon the bar.

A policeman was summoned, and on his arrival found Ross succumbing to the effects of the poison. He was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital, where prompt treatment quickly brought him out of danger. Ross told the physicians that he tried to kill himself because he has a wife and child, living at 629 Newton street northwest.

"Brain-storm" Expert's Opinion. Among the prominent out-of-town medical experts visiting Washington, who are interested in the wave of homicide sweeping over the city, is Dr. Britton D. Evans, the insanity expert who testified in the Inaw trial, and gave the world a new insanity term, "brain-storm." Dr. Evans said yesterday that the record of violence here during the past five days admitted of profound sociological discussion, and that he didn't have time at that moment to enter upon it. He intimated that in his belief all such crimes are the result of a

MAKES HEAT FROM AIR. Petitioner Would Solve Smoke Nuisance for Small Reward.

In return for a temporary appointment of ten days, H. H. Swearingin, of 513 Second street northeast, offers to the Commissioners a permanent solution of the smoke problem. Mr. Swearingin states that his application is based on the fact that he has invented, or, perhaps, discovered, the method of transferring the natural heat in the atmosphere into mechanical energy. His ultimate purpose is to file a caveat in the Patent Office, and it is to obtain the fee for this that he seeks employment.

"Thermodynamics has been my study for some years," writes Mr. Swearingin, "and while there is little of which I can boast, with that little is the gift for solving unusual problems. Within four days after my service begins, I will furnish a written description of my process, and will show the mechanical availability of natural heat."

Mr. Swearingin's proposition is under consideration by the Commissioners.

OLD STARS TO SCINTILLATE. High School Teachers Will Play Baseball in Benefit Game.

The endowment fund of the Teachers' Annuity and Aid Association is to be the beneficiary of a baseball game between a picked All-High School team and an All-High School Faculty team. The directors of the American League Baseball Park have donated the use of the park for May 12, and the game will be called at 4 p. m. J. J. Decker, owner of the programme concession, has agreed to allow the high school committee to print and sell their own programme, and will donate a percentage of the candy and peanut sales.

Principal Wilson, of Central, is to captain the faculty team; Principal Davis, of Business, is manager. The game promises to be interesting, since there are enough old stars of the diamond distributed among the various high school faculties to make the boys play their prettiest.

PRESIDENT PARDONS GREEN. Negro Sentenced to Death Eighteen Years Ago Liberated.

The President has commuted the sentence of Albert Green, to expire immediately. Green was convicted in the District of Columbia, December 15, 1887, of the murder of one James Lucas; a new trial was granted, he was again convicted, and on January 19, 1888, was sentenced to be hanged April 6, 1888. On March 21, 1888, President Harrison commuted the sentence to imprisonment for life, and he now commutes the sentence to the Atlanta Penitentiary. He was twenty-two years of age when the offense was committed.

On the evening of the homicide, Green and Lucas were attending an entertainment at a colored church in the southwest section of the city. Green was under the influence of liquor and engaged in a fight with Lucas. During the fight Green cut Lucas with a pocket knife, as a result of which he died a week later.
