

OIL KING IN HIDING;
WHERE IS QUESTIONSubpoena Servers Plan Trap
to Serve Their Writs.

DEPENDS ON HIS HONOR

Would Get Him Into Ohio and Then Extradite Him

He is said to have been seen rowing on Onondaga Lake, and to have been observed on porch of daughter's villa, at Pittsfield—Employees at Pocantico Hills Say He Will Go to Cleveland This Week.

Cleveland, June 30.—John D. Rockefeller apparently is still in hiding, and now that he is wanted in the Federal Court in Chicago he probably will remain under cover until his presence is no longer wanted. The authorities of Chicago, it is understood, realize the futility of expending a large sum of money in an effort to serve a summons upon the oil king, and therefore, will depend upon W. L. David, prosecuting attorney of Hancock County, to bring him to court.

Rockefeller, it will be recalled, was summoned to appear in the action against the Standard Oil Company at Findlay, Ohio, but was excused from daily attendance upon court on his promise to appear and give testimony whenever the prosecutor desired. The Chicago authorities, it is said, are planning to have David summon Rockefeller for appearance before the court in Findlay, and then serve a summons upon him to testify in Cook County. The Chicago officers could wait the end of the Ohio trial, or could obtain extradition papers and take him to their city, pleading urgency as their excuse for such radical action. Prosecutor David, when talked to over the telephone tonight, said that it is possible that this plan might be followed. He said he would be guided entirely by the wishes of the Federal authorities.

Believe He's at Daughter's Villa.
Pittsfield, Mass., June 30.—Joseph Gardner, a real estate dealer, and William Harrison, a gardener at Taunton farm, say they saw John D. Rockefeller to-day, and it is believed here that he is at his daughter's villa. An investigation of the story of his departure at midnight Friday fails to substantiate it.

Gardner, who has a camp on the south shore of Onondaga Lake, feels sure that he saw Mr. Rockefeller in the Pontiac launch while taking a swim in the lake early this morning. Harrison asserts that he saw Mr. Rockefeller sitting in a swing on the east porch of the villa, which commands a wide view of the lake. The launch has been on duty on the lake from all day, and guards are again stationed at the entrance and about the grounds. Incandescent lights have been installed along the drive leading to the house, and an employee of the electric light company says a searchlight has been placed in the tower of the villa, from which all approaches to the house can be seen. When a reporter called the Pontiac villa by telephone to-day the butler replied that Mr. Rockefeller had gone to New York; that Mr. Pontiac would not talk to reporters, and that he knew nothing about Mr. Rockefeller.

Going to Cleveland, They Say.
Tarrytown, N. Y., June 30.—It was said at Pocantico Hills to-day that John D. Rockefeller spent the better part of Saturday there, playing golf with Rev. Father Lennon, rector of the Church of the Magdalene, of this town. Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was a spectator of the contest.

Informants at Rockefeller's house said that he was not making any effort to hide from subpoena servers. They added that Mr. Rockefeller, accompanied by his son John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the latter's wife, would leave Monday or Tuesday for Cleveland, to remain there until August 1. Notwithstanding these assertions, it is known that the place is closely guarded. Most of the employees have the powers of deputy sheriffs, this authority having been given them to keep automobilists off the premises.

LOVINGS ATTRACT ATTENTION.

Stop in Lynchburg for Dinner on Their Way to Oak Ridge.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Lynchburg, Va., June 30.—Judge W. G. Loving, who was acquitted yesterday at Houston of the murder of Theodore Estes, passed through the city this afternoon en route to his home, on the Oak Ridge estate of Thomas F. Ryan, in Nelson County.

In the party with Judge Loving were Miss Loving and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Loving, and a number of friends and relatives. Judge and Mrs. Loving and Miss Loving took dinner at the restaurant at the union station, because there was not sufficient time between their trains to go to a hotel. The party reached here at 12:10 o'clock and left at 1:40 o'clock.

The presence of the trio attracted a large crowd of the curious to the station. Judge Loving made no statement while in the city.

SELLS WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Husband Sues Other Man for $5,000, and Compromises for $12,500.

Boone, Iowa, June 30.—Henry Hammerstein, a workman of North Boone, last week sold his wife and two children for $12,500. Mrs. Hammerstein agreed to the bargain, and became the wife of Burt Hanes, where she is yet living. Hammerstein left home two months ago, going to Fort Dodge, where he worked on a railroad. Last week he visited his family, but found that in his absence his wife had gone to live with Hanes, taking the two children with her.

Hammerstein filed suit against Hanes for $5,000, but later the two got together and arranged that Hanes should pay Hammerstein just $12,500, and keep the woman and two children. This was satisfactory to Mrs. Hammerstein, and the transfer was drawn up, signed, and properly executed.

BRIDE-TO-BE HIS DAUGHTER.

Young Man Makes Startling Discovery Day Before Wedding.

Riverton, Wyo., June 30.—Erasmus Sniger, who has lived in this region for a number of years, says he received here from Lewiston, recently became engaged to his own daughter, Mrs. Nettie Farmer, and he did not find out that his fiancée was his daughter until the day before the time appointed for marriage.

Sniger was believed by those who knew him to be a bachelor until it came to light that he had narrowly escaped taking as a wife his own daughter.

A matrimonial agency in the East put him in correspondence with Mrs. Farmer, who was then staying temporarily with a friend near Anacostia, Mont., though her home, she said, was in Portland, Ore. In her letters to Sniger she told him she was a widow, young, good looking, and attractive, and that she had a comfortable property.

In his letters to her he protested that she was just the sort of woman he wished to take for a wife, and misrepresented the facts regarding his age, circumstances, and past life. He begged her to set the day for their marriage, and, finally, she did so.

They agreed to meet and be married at the home of her friend in Montana, and it was when he went there a few days ago that he discovered that she was his own daughter, whom he had not seen or heard from since she was a little girl, when, on the death of her mother, she was adopted by a man named Cooper, and brought out West, where she was married when only sixteen years old, and divorced a few years later, and where she led an adventurous life.

Havana, June 30.—First Lieut. Charles E. McCullough, of the Fifteenth Cavalry, who disappeared from Havana several months ago, leaving debts and muddled accounts behind, going to Mexico and ultimately to Fort McIntosh, where he gave himself up, will be tried by a court-martial at Camp Columbia soon. He was a very popular young officer. He is now with his regiment.

It is understood that he asserts he knew nothing from the time he left Havana until he arrived in Mexico, when he straightway surrendered at the nearest United States army post.

HARRIMAN'S CAPTOR HERE

Lieut. Billard Aided by Theodore,
Jr., According to Reports.

Revenue-cutter Officer Returns Home, but He Declines to Discuss the Regatta Incident.

That Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., was aboard the revenue cutter Officer Greham at the time E. H. Harriman was arrested at the Yale-Harvard regatta, is the latest development in the case that has made F. C. Billard, who ordered the arrest, famous. Lieut. Billard is at his home in this city, 2425 Eighteenth street northwest.

Further, it is understood that the President's son was the one who called attention to the fact that Harriman's motor boat was violating a rule of the course, which restrains boats from getting too close to the shells for fear the wash will result in an accident. This fact has not been verified, and probably never will, but if true, that it will not result in a potential reprimand is the belief of those who are familiar with the President's attitude toward the big railway magnate.

Lieut. Billard was on the Greham at the time the arrest was ordered, although during the course of the afternoon, and at the race, he had spent time on a number of cutters sent to the course by the Treasury Department to see to it that the rules of the course were enforced to avoid possibility of accidents.

As has been published, Mr. Harriman, in a motor boat, persisted in pursuing the shells during the race, notwithstanding the appeals and warnings shouted from the Greham and the other boats guarding the course. He has since satisfactorily explained the incident, and declares he did not hear the warnings because of the exhaust of his boat, which he was operating.

Lieut. Billard, who arrived in Washington last night, had little to say of the incident. When asked if it was true that he had ordered the arrest of the railway king, he modestly admitted that it was he who "ordered the boat removed from the course."

He further declares that he had no trouble with Mr. Harriman, and that the only argument Mr. Harriman had was with a member of the regatta committee. "I only ordered the boat removed," said Lieut. Billard, "and then I turned the matter over to Capt. Sims, commanding the Dexter, who was the senior Revenue-cutter Service officer there. As to what disposition he will make of the case I cannot say, but it is up to him. I have nothing further to do with it."

Mr. Harriman, according to the rules is liable to a fine of $500 and the loss of his license for his motor-boat. He has announced he will fight any attempt to rescind his license, as he was not provided with a copy of the rules of the course for the reason that his yacht, the Sultana, was anchored too far away from the course.

MARRIAGES.

O'HARA-MOSHER—Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Mosher announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, DOROTHY BRENT, to Mr. HARRY M. O'HARA, of Pittsburg, Pa., on Thursday, July 4, at the home of the groom's parents.

No formal cards to this effect have been sent out, but Mr. and Mrs. Mosher made the announcement verbally yesterday afternoon. The ceremony will mark the happy culmination of an unexpected romance that led the young pair into the arms of the police Saturday, when they eloped to Youngstown, Ohio, from the O'Hara home, in Pittsburg, and thereby greatly upset the parents and relatives of both.

Incidentally, the young pair are not the only ones to find happiness, as the announcement of the elopement Saturday brought about a reconciliation between Mr. and Mrs. Mosher, who have been separated for some time, and they will attend the wedding in Pittsburg together.

Mr. Mosher, who is chief of the copy sales division of the Patent Office, and who has been living at 1739 Twentieth street, was at the family residence, 2109 N. street northwest, yesterday, and making active preparations to catch the 10:40 o'clock train. Mrs. Mosher will follow him this evening. Both families, after recovering from their first shock, concluded they had no objections to offer, and arrangements for the wedding were consummated over the long distance telephone.

Mother Is Happy.

Mrs. Mosher appeared perfectly happy and contented when seen yesterday afternoon and spoke frankly of the elopement and the wedding plans. She had been talking over the phone to Miss Dorothy, who had returned to the O'Hara residence in Pittsburg a little while before. The intended Mrs. O'Hara, said, seemed "perfectly delighted," and, with her usual girlishness, regarded it all as a great joke.

"Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara," said Mrs. Mosher, "were not at all opposed to the match, but were incensed by the elopement because my daughter was a guest at their house at the time. Harry, who is the young man in question, seemed to come immediately to Washington to see Mr. Mosher and myself as soon as he realized how we were all upset, but we were perfectly willing to have the wedding in Pittsburg, as suggested by Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara, and assured him this was not necessary."

"I do not so suddenly. We influenced them to run off so knowingly. We were all taken by surprise. They were probably even more surprised in Pittsburg than I was here. I do not know how it was learned that they had started for Youngstown. Dorothy's brother, Alexander, Jr., was also visiting at the O'Hara home at the time, and he went with Mr. O'Hara, as soon as word was received that Dorothy and Harry had been stopped upon alighting from the train."

Thinks Girl Too Young.
"No, I have no objections to the marriage," continued Mrs. Mosher, "except the suddenness with which it was brought about, and the fact that Dorothy is nothing but a girl, and, in my opinion, too young to get married."

"You may see for yourself," she continued, bringing out a picture of Miss Dorothy. The photograph showed the young lady to be uncommonly pretty and girlish, her black tresses fluffing about a full round face with big, dark eyes. It bore a striking resemblance to her mother, who is a little woman, and still youthful looking.

Mr. Mosher had nothing to add to what his wife had said.

What plans the young people have made for the future, or where they will make their home, is not known. It is ex-

MOTHER IS HAPPY.

New York, June 30.—Complaints having been made by Harry K. Thaw and other prisoners on his tier that they could not sleep because of the noise made every night by the thirteen maniacs in the cells under them, Warden Flynn, of the Tombs, after consultation with Commissioner Conroy, to-day decided to send one of the demented prisoners to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue as a test.

They picked out Thomas McKeevergan, twenty-three years old, a fugitive from Roxbury, Conn. He tried to beat his brains out against his cell door Saturday night. When a prisoner is committed to the Tombs by a magistrate, he must remain there, whether sane or demented, until his case is disposed of. Usually a judge of General Sessions, when the case is called, at once appoints a commission in lunacy.

Fortunately for the comfort of the warden and his prisoners, most men who are really insane are, as a rule, quiet and make little or no noise, trouble to his other wards. But it happened last week that out of thirteen in this unfortunate plight, the majority were violent. These included ex-Policeman Hess, who eloped with a young girl, and an Italian named Eschbo, under indictment for grand larceny.

Judge O'Sullivan, in Part I of General Sessions, will be appealed to to-morrow by the warden for some remedy for the existing conditions.

AGAINST OWNERSHIP PLANK.

Senator Tillman Wants Income and Inheritance Tax, However.

Chicago, June 30.—Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, of South Carolina, stopped over in Chicago long enough yesterday to declare there would be no governmental ownership plank in the Democratic national platform next year.

"But," he added, "public opinion throughout the whole country is so crystallized on the subject of railroads, their financial juggling, and extortion, that a plank calling for their 'effective control by the Federal government—for the protection of the shipper and in the interests of the passenger—is inevitable."

The Senator said that he believed that the tariff reform subject, though a backbone of the party, will still be a political bone of contention, and that it would be taken up by one or both of the leading parties at the 1908 national convention. He looks upon a tax on incomes and inheritances as good Democratic campaign thunder. When asked who would be the Democratic nominee for President next year, he only said:

"The last man that asked me that question caused me to start to pick up a rock."

Senator Tillman is accompanied by his wife and three daughters. They left the city to-day.

MAY GET SHOT-TORN FLAG.

Baltimore Hears from Owner of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Special to The Washington Herald.

Baltimore, June 30.—Mayor Mahool has just received a communication from Eben Appleton, of New York, who has the flag that waved over Fort Mifflin during the British bombardment and inspired Key's song, "The Star-Spangled Banner." Mr. Appleton said he believed the flag should be turned over to this city, and added that he would take the question up with the mayor in a few weeks.

On more than one occasion attempts have been made to bring the flag back to Baltimore. In April and May of this year, Warfield tried to get Mr. Appleton to present the historic old banner to the State, but his effort was unavailing. Mr. Appleton gave the subject serious consideration, but decided not to present it to the State, although Gov. Warfield assured him that it would have a safe place in the State house at Annapolis, in a fireproof cabinet, which he himself would provide.

Fairbanks' Friends Worried

Quiet Efforts Being Made in Hughes'
Behalf in Indiana.New York Governor May Be Second Choice—Vice President Has Tronble in Two Districts.Indianapolis, Ind., June 30.—Friends of Vice President Fairbanks are considerably exercised over what seems to be a quiet movement throughout the State in favor of Gov. Hughes, of New York, for the Presidency, and it is being engineered with as much skill that it is baffling the Fairbanks managers.

It is not claimed that a movement is in progress to wrest the Indiana delegation from Fairbanks, but simply to create a sentiment in favor of the New York governor that shall manifest itself among the people, rather than among the politicians, and thus influence the national delegates from Indiana in reaching a second choice before the balloting begins in the national convention.

Within the last ten days something like definiteness has been given to the movement by direct overtures to Congressman James Watson to become the candidate of the party for governor.

It is known that Mr. Fairbanks, who is encountering opposition both in the Eighth and Tenth districts, has been quietly at work through his managers trying to make an arrangement by which the party candidate for governor can be selected from one of these districts, and the anti-Cromer men can have full swing in the selection of the Congressional candidate in the Eighth. By this arrangement it has been hoped to secure delegates for Fairbanks to the national convention without a contest, and the friends of Gov. Hughes are trying to offset the Fairbanks quest for harmony by bringing Watson into the race for governor.

It is charged in some sections that the Republican National Committee, presumably through Chairman Harry S. New, is at work in the interest of Hughes.

AOKI DISCUSSES CASE

Ambassador Says Door Will Be Kept Open.Explains that His Trip to San Francisco Is Postponed Solely Because of the Misconstruction that Might Be Placed Upon Object of Trip.Believes the Excitement in His Country Has Blown Over.

For the second time since his erroneously reported recall from Washington, Ambassador Aoki yesterday consented to talk for publication concerning affairs involving this country and Japan.

He discussed the matter of the reduction of the Chinese indemnity to the United States, the policy of the open door, his recent visit to the Pacific Coast, and among other things, declared that he had never had any misunderstanding with the President or with the State Department concerning any diplomatic affairs.

When asked whether he believed Japan would feel that the cancellation of the larger part of the Chinese indemnity by this country was prejudicial to Japan's commercial interest, he declared he did not think so.

"I believe," said the Ambassador, "that it is a great generosity on the part of the American people and President Roosevelt. It does not make any difference to Japan other than to create a good impression. China owes us an indemnity of $15,000,000, and she has fifty-nine years in which to pay it. She is able to pay it, and we are not concerned about it."

"We shall keep the open door in China. You can go in—anybody can go in. No nation should be preferred, and none will be. All will be treated alike and impartially. This is in accordance with the principles laid down by the late Secretary Hay."

Regrets Colleagues' Recall.
Ambassador Aoki said he deeply regretted the recall of Sir Chen Tung Liang-Cheng, but was disposed to believe that it was in the nature of a promotion. Discussing the subject of his talked-of visit to the Pacific Coast, the Ambassador said:

"Until now, I have not said whether or when I should go West. It is incorrect to say that my trip was postponed because of the disorders in California. In my eyes there is no disorder, consequently I could not have postponed my trip on that account. When first I was appointed to this post, I made up my mind to visit the Pacific States. That was long before there was any suspicion of trouble there, due to the strikes, and even before the public school incident. My purpose, therefore, had nothing to do with either of those matters. It was planned to enable me to learn how the Japanese on the Pacific Coast live. It is necessary for me to know that. But, of course, it would be impossible for me to interfere in case any Japanese had troubles in the courts."

"As to when I shall go to the Coast, that is now very uncertain. If I go at all, I cannot make any announcement of my purpose in that respect. The reason my trip is postponed is because of the danger that it might be misconstrued. Such incorrect, unauthorized, and exaggerated statements regarding my intention to visit San Francisco have been printed that I feel indisposed to do anything to place myself in a position where my actions and motives can be subject to such false deductions."

Respect Their Government.

"I think the excitement, as it is termed, is over in Japan, and, anyway, I do not think it was ever of any particular significance. The Japanese people have great respect for the government. They have had accounts for many centuries to have deep reverence for it, and they are not accustomed to rail at constituted authority. Consequently, when the government makes known its position on any matter, the people acquiesce."

"In this country the habit of obedience to authority is not so well formed. The country is still new, and many of its inhabitants have been citizens here for a very short time only. Perhaps they could not be expected to have that love and reverence for it which comes of centuries of uninterrupted national life."

"But much as we reverence our national traditions, we have elected to enter the concert of Western nations and have adopted the forms of European civilization. As a nation we do not wish to do anything which might be a bar to our progress. We are acting in the utmost good faith, and we are confident that we are quarrelsome or insincere in our protestations."

COMMISSION KEPT WORRIED.

Civil Service Body Running Down
Perilous Political Activity.

Members of the Civil Service Commission are again exercised over reports coming from the South concerning alleged pernicious political activity on the part of Southern officeholders. This is a sore spot with the commission.

Its officials are constantly busy directing the attention of department heads and bureau officers to cases involving alleged violation of the rules prohibiting political activity by Federal officials in the field. A member of the commission called up a bureau head the other day, and a long conversation ensued, the latter showing signs of irritation when he laid down the receiver of his telephone.

"What's the trouble?" said a caller to the bureau chief.

"The Civil Service Commission charges that one of our officers in the South voted the straight Republican ticket at the last election," replied the chief, facetiously. "The poor old commission is all worked up about it."

A "plant" was laid for the commission not long ago. One Henry S. Wise, of Grafton, W. Va., wrote charging that certain officials in that State were connected with all kinds of political organizations, that they were violating the rules, and that their activities should be investigated. This is a case where the commission was badly "stung." An investigation was made forthwith. The inspecting officer found Grafton without any trouble, but was reported that no such person as Henry S. Wise lived in that city. West Virginia cases will be handled rather gingerly by the commission in the future.
