

RESTS IN ARLINGTON

Body of Midshipman Cruse Consigned to Grave.

GIVEN A MILITARY BURIAL Army Joins Navy in Last Honors to Victim of Battle Ship Georgia.

The last of the dead of the battle ship Georgia was buried yesterday at Arlington, when the body of Midshipman James P. Cruse was consigned to the grave. Six officers of the navy, all classmates of the young man, came to Washington to attend the funeral as honorary pallbearers.

In addition, there were the parents of young Cruse and representatives of the United States army and navy. A handsome sheath of magnolia blossoms, neatly tied with white ribbons, was laid on the casket as the final tribute from President and Mrs. Roosevelt to one of the victims of the disaster.

Cortege Leaves the Chapel.

Two companies of marines, under the command of Maj. David Porter, and the Marine Band acted as the escort. The cortege proceeded in the direction of Arlington. The services began at Gawler's chapel, 1734 Pennsylvania avenue. Silently, while the marines stood at attention, and the crowd bared their heads, the body was taken from the chapel and placed on the heavy caisson. While this was being done, the Marine Band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee," which was a signal for the procession to move. Draping the caasket was a large American flag and the emblem of the navy—the Union Jack. With the Marine Band at its head and the companies of marines preceding the caisson, the cortege moved slowly in the direction of Arlington.

Following were Maj. and Mrs. Thomas Cruse, parents of the young man; Lieut. Frederick Cruse, U. S. A., a brother; Maj. and Mrs. Frederick Hodgson, relatives of the boy; and representatives of both branches of the service.

The honorary pallbearers were Asst. Paymaster G. H. Knapp and Midshipmen W. G. Child, W. P. Williamson, R. T. S. Lowell, J. W. W. Cummins, and E. A. King.

New Grave on a Hill in Arlington.

Passing through Fort Myer, the last respects of the army to the dead of the navy was paid by placing the flag at half mast. In this position it remained until the gates of the national cemetery were reached. Just south of the plot where the dead of the Spanish-American war lie buried, was the place selected for the grave of the midshipman. In the distance, the historic Potomac shanty wound its way to the Atlantic. Standing aloof against the fading sun of another day, the Capitol of the nation and the monument to the Father of His Country stood silently, while the people could not help but feel their hearts drawn to the spot and feel impressed as the short burial services of the dead were read.

Given "Soldiers' Goodnight."

When Chaplain Pierce, of the Washington Barracks, had finished his last rites, one company of marines stepped forward and three volleys were fired over the grave. Immediately following came the bugler, and taps—the soldier's good-night—as the people lowered their heads. The services were at an end. Slowly the relatives and friends moved away. Turning over the gravel driveway in the distance could be heard the big iron wheels of the caisson. Another of the Georgia's heroes had been laid away to his rest. Among those who attended the funeral were Admiral W. S. Coles, Admiral Thom Williamson, Capt. R. F. Nicholson, Capt. W. E. Haines, Admiral W. L. Capps, Commanders J. J. Knapp and F. C. Belgard, and Gen. J. B. Aleshaie, quartermaster general.

In addition to the floral offerings sent by President and Mrs. Roosevelt, there was a large wreath of roses from the officers of the quartermaster general's office and numerous bouquets from the officers of the battle ship Georgia.

Midshipman Goldthwaite's Family.

Midshipman Faulkner Goldthwaite, who lost his life in the explosion aboard the battle ship Georgia, was a grandson of Judge Henry Goldthwaite, who went from Montgomery, Ala., to Texas. His mother was a native of Kentucky, from whence the son entered the navy.

The Goldthwaite is a prominent Alabama family. The grandfather of the unfortunate young naval officer was at one time a member of the Supreme Court of the State. He was a grandnephew of Senator Goldthwaite, who was succeeded by the late Senator Morgan.

Faulkner Goldthwaite.

Faulkner Goldthwaite, a short time previous to his death, inherited a fortune. He was a nephew of the late Alfred Goldthwaite, who was State senator from New Orleans, elected on the anti-slavery ticket. It was his uncle who left the young man his inheritance.

LONGWORTHS SAIL THURSDAY.

President's Daughter Being Entertained by Frisco Society Folk.

San Francisco, July 21.—Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth left the city yesterday by automobile to visit Mrs. Longworth's uncle, C. M. Hammond, in Lake County. They will return Tuesday.

On Tuesday evening the Longworths will be guests of honor at a dinner to be given by Mrs. Eleanor Martin at her city residence. A theater party will follow.

Wednesday they are to go to Burlingame as the guests of Mrs. Rudolph Spreckels at a luncheon. Following the luncheon there will be an automobile ride through Burlingame County.

At 1 p. m. Thursday the Longworths are to sail on the steamship Siberia on a month's visit to the Hawaiian Islands. Many of their San Francisco friends will be at the dock to see them on their way.

Mrs. Henry H. Flather Dead.

Mrs. Henry H. Flather, a sister of an assistant cashier at the Riggs National Bank, who died Saturday, at her home, 306 D street northwest, will be buried tomorrow morning in Rock Creek Cemetery. The funeral services will be held at the residence, Mrs. Flather was formerly Miss Zaidie Nevius, and she was a native of this city. Her death was due to tuberculosis.

Falls from Stable Loft.

George Gormley, living at 75 Girard street northwest, yesterday fell from a stable loft in School street and sustained a fracture of his right wrist.

GEORGE O. MILLER DEAD.

Was Member of Washington's Old-time Police Force.

George O. Miller, a relic of Washington's old police force, and a well-known character in this city, died last night at the Casualty Hospital from apoplexy. He was seventy years old and he survived by three sons. He was taken to the hospital Saturday and sank rapidly until his death.

Miller was a member of the detective bureau when that institution was separated from the police force, and made for a record as an efficient hunter of criminals. When the police department was consolidated with the detective bureau, in 1883, Miller resigned and took a position at the Capitol. During his service as a detective he, with the other six detectives, was indicted for negligence when $5,000 in bonds were stolen from the Metropolitan Bank. All were acquitted. He was a stenographer by trade, and during his life ran a restaurant on Pennsylvania avenue. No funeral arrangements have been made.

TIPOS DENOUNCE STILLINGS

Pass Resolutions to Be Sent to President Roosevelt.

Direct Public Printer's Right to Fine Proofreaders Be Determined by Justice Department.

At a meeting of Columbia Typographical Union held yesterday afternoon, that organization unanimously condemned the action of Public Printer Stillings in firing proofreaders, and directed that his legal right to do so be determined by the Department of Justice. The resolution further charges Mr. Stillings with an attempt to disrupt the Government Printing Office by unnecessary and tyrannical acts, and orders that a copy of the resolutions be sent to the President of the United States and to the Public Printer. The resolution was introduced by James Monroe Kreiter. It is as follows:

"Whereas it is known that Public Printer Charles A. Stillings has inaugurated a system of arbitrarily deducting certain sums from the pay of proofreaders as a fine for inadvertently overlooking errors in proof read by them; and

"Whereas said Public Printer has ordered, and has already arbitrarily deducted, certain sums from the pay of certain proofreaders so fined by his orders; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That Columbia Typographical Union, No. 10, hereby protests against Public Printer Stillings' arbitrary and unjustified action in imposing fines upon proofreaders, believing that such action is inimical to the craft's best interests and contrary to the laws of the United States, and denounces said action in unmeasured terms as being prompted by the hope that it will result, combined with other unnecessary and tyrannical acts of said Public Printer, in the demoralization and disruption of our members now employed in the Government Printing Office.

"Resolved further, That Secretary Selbold is hereby instructed to lay the matter before the Department of Justice of the United States and obtain an opinion from that department as to whether the Public Printer has a legal right to deduct arbitrarily any sums from the pay of Government Printing Office employees as fines or discipline for errors overlooked by them in the discharge of their duties in that office.

"Resolved further, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the coming international convention at Hot Springs, Ark., copies be given to the press, and also be sent, under seal of the union, to President Roosevelt, Public Printer Stillings and the Department of Justice.

A resolution regarding the out-of-work fund, introduced by J. L. Rodler, was sent to the referendum. The resolution provided:

"Resolved, That Columbia Union, No. 10, create a fund for the unemployed, to pay its out-of-work members who have been in its jurisdiction for the last six months at the rate of $5 for married and single men; provided, that when an individual earns $10 in any week he shall not be entitled to such benefits. Provided, further, that any individual who refuses to accept such benefits shall forfeit his right to work, and also for such length of time as the job lasts.

CHINAMAN GETS FRIGHT.

Believes Display of Pistol Means End of Mortal Career.

Harry Puryear, of Richmond, Va., was arrested for carrying a concealed weapon last night. Lee On, a Chinaman, living at 255 Pennsylvania avenue, claims Puryear entered his shop and asked for a pipe of "hops," at the same time displaying a pistol. Lee became frightened and rushed out into the street, right into the arms of Sgt. James Conlon. When Lee had recovered his breath, he told the officer a man had threatened to shoot him. Puryear was taken into custody, and a revolver was found in his possession.

It developed later that Puryear arrived yesterday afternoon from Richmond, Va. He said that he was attempting to borrow a few dollars on the pistol, and in showing it to the Chinaman, frightened him into believing that his life was in danger.

CARNEGIE PLEASES KAISER.

Writes Letter Congratulating Emperor on Success as Farmer.

Berlin, July 21.—The Kaiser was much gratified when he recently received a letter of congratulation from Mr. Carnegie and a party of American millionaires who visited his potter factory and farm at Ladinen, in East Prussia.

The German Emperor had placed a special train at the disposal of the party, the factory and farm were thrown open for their inspection, and a bountiful luncheon provided for them. Before leaving Germany the American millionaires sent a letter to the Kaiser in which they congratulated him "because of his possession of successful factories and prosperous farms," and added "that they were deeply impressed by his wonderful efficiency as a practical business man and his abilities as a scientific farmer."

It is said that after this general invitation will be extended to American millionaires visiting this city to inspect the Hohenzollern stores where the imperial pottery is sold.

Funeral of J. F. English.

Funeral services over the body of James F. English, pair clerk of the House of Representatives, who died Saturday night, at his home, 624 Third street northwest, will be held at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning in St. Patrick's Church.

Father William J. Carroll, assistant rector, will officiate. Interment will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

The pallbearers will be selected from among Mr. English's friends at the Capitol, where for twenty-five years he was employed.

Funeral of Miss Ammen To-day.

Funeral services over the body of Miss Caroline Ammen, a daughter of Rear Admiral Ammen, U. S. N., who died Friday at Garfield Hospital, will be held this morning at St. Paul's Church, Fifteenth and B streets. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Falls from Stable Loft.

COLLINS LOANED OUT

Residents of Bethesda Borrow Glen Echo Marshal.

ADMIRATION SPOILS BUSINESS

Attempt to Arrest Speeding Autolists Frustrated by Crowd Which Conduits to Witness Hero of Conduits Road in Action—Suspicious of Drivers Aroused by Assemblage.

There is no end to hospitality and generosity in Maryland. It is nothing for a friend to appear at your back door and borrow a pat of butter to assist in the frying of chicken. It always has been considered the decent thing to carry a sample of your new quince preserves to the back fence and give it to a friend. Horses are loaned on camp-meeting days, and the day's milk of a cow has been cheerfully given up; but the acme of human kindness was shown yesterday when Mayor Garrett lent his most valuable possession—Mr. Marshal Collins—to his fellow-citizens of Bethesda, Md.

Bethesda has been having trouble with automobiles. They have been thicker than mosquitoes; they have prematurely garrotted little chickens; they have caused horses to run away that never even trotted before; they have frightened aged ladies into trembling palsy; they have splattered mud over the most reputable citizens; they have hoisted at night; they have chased little children—in short, they have caused the hearts of the townsmen to reek with thoughts of vengeance. So the Damon and Pythias of Glen Echo were parted yesterday, with Pythias Collins assuming the role of the avenger, and with Bethesda, on the Tennallytown road, as the scene of his expected triumph.

Collins Waits in Vain.

Far from his native haunts, Collins did not falter, but took his stand by the side of the road, and whistling, "You Just Ought to See Me and Mollie," waited. He was alone but a few moments, when his musical proclivities were interrupted by a citizen of Bethesda, who sat on the ground near him and waited. Soon more citizens came and likewise waited. The ground became covered with them.

Then a head appeared over the rail fence, followed by other heads, and soon a great portion of the community and the adjoining communities assumed a sedate patience on the rails. Invalids were carried out on the front porches to see the fun. Children "played hooky" from Sunday school, boys got into trees, bugles stopped and blooded the road, swains and maidens forsook the lovers' lanes and took their stand at points of vantage. All waited, and waited in vain.

Autolists Take Head. Any auto who could not see the gathering through his densest goggles should have been arrested, but the drivers all displayed the common variety of sagacity and slowed down. There were no arrests, and the crowd simply waited all day. Collins wasn't pleased, and advised some to wait and see the county fair. Bethesda enjoyed it, and invited Marshal Collins to do it some more. With Mayor Garrett's permission he will, for he has subdued the Conduits road beyond the wildest dreams of the plucky mayor.

There were only five autos in Glen Echo yesterday, and they went along with the speed of a horse, so that the township took its afternoon siesta in peace. Other towns are asking for Collins.

The bell system was in operation at Glen Echo yesterday in half-mile stretches, with a stop watch at each interval. Mayor Garrett intends to use this regularly, so that he can have positive proof of the speed.

Warrants for Mayor Garrett. It was rumored yesterday that local automobilists have prepared forty-seven warrants for Mayor Garrett, and will summon him to appear before a colored justice in this city to add to his humiliation. Mayor Garrett, when told of this last night, said that he would lose everything he owned and all his prospects rather than submit to such an indignity.

TWO CHILDREN DROWNED.

Go Beyond Their Depths Wading in Severn River.

Annapolis, Md., July 21.—Two children of Rudolph Rupp, a farmer living near Indian Landing, seven miles from Annapolis, were drowned in the Severn River Friday afternoon. Their bodies were recovered and buried to-day.

The two little ones were Louis Rupp, seven years old, and Katharine Rupp, nine years old. They were wading in water over a long sandbar, and it is supposed they got beyond their depth. No one was near to render assistance.

PRIEST CREATES FLUTTER.

Rev. D. Biegl Advises Parishioners to Get Married at Once.

Elwood, Ind., July 21.—The Rev. B. Biegl, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, created a flutter of excitement among the younger members of his parish when he admonished the young folks of marriageable age that the time had arrived when dilly-dallying in courtship should no longer be tolerated, and that they should get married at once. Long courtships, he said, should be avoided.

There has been a dearth in weddings in Elwood Catholic circles, and the advice of the priest is expected to stimulate activity in that line. The pastor stated that there were 100 good, pure girls in his parish who were ready to say "yes" to any good, hard-working, honest man who "popped" the question.

Negro Killed by Rockville Car.

An unidentified colored man was run over and killed by a Rockville car last night. As the death occurred in the State of Maryland, the District coroner could not move the body, which up to a late hour this morning was lying in the road. The dead man was 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighed about 180 pounds.

Alexandria Woman Injured.

Mrs. Henrietta Reim, of Alexandria, Va., yesterday fell from a car at Second and E streets southeast, slightly injuring her head. She was taken to Providence Hospital by Officer Price.

Excursions.

Commencing with trips of the big and fast steamer St. Johns to Colonial Beach to-morrow morning, the Washington and Potomac Steamboat Company has arranged to make a tick-off for the day only at 50c for the round trip. This ticket will be valid on all the day trips of the steamer to the Potomac summer resort. These trips are made daily, except Monday and Saturday, the steamer leaving her wharf here at 8:30 a. m. and reaching home again on the return trip at 11:30 p. m. In connection with the request of numerous of the younger patrons, the management of the steamer has determined to have a concert on that day. The regular week-end trips will be except every Saturday evening.

The steamer St. Johns will make the first of a series of Monday evening moonlight and dancing trips on the river this evening. She will leave her wharf here at 8:30 p. m., make a run of a couple of hours down the river, and return as usual to reach home about 11 p. m. The special feature of these outings will be the dancing, which will be given by the young ladies of Alexandria as well. Stops will be made at Alexandria on all these trips.

SIX NEGRO BOYS HELD.

Accused of Having Committed Numerous Burglaries.

Six little colored boys, all in a row, ranging from six to fourteen years of age, some of them on probation from the Juvenile Court, were locked up in the Seventh Precinct police station yesterday morning, with the charge of house-breaking chalked up against their names.

The boys, who are Schurman Marshall, Harry Strother, Edward Johnson, Daniel Boyd, Taska Janis, and William Stephenson, are believed to comprise the gang that has successfully pulled off a number of burglaries in Georgetown. They were taken into custody while in a grocery store, by Policemen Brook, Eber, Davis, and Lipscomb.

Several robberies have been reported to the Seventh precinct station of late, and the Roburn Coal Company and the jewelry store of King & Dugan having complained of deprivations. A watch and several other articles were recovered from the boys.

AGUINALDO'S COUSIN JAILED

Filipino Employee of War Department Flourishes a Revolver.

Displays Hardware Merely to Back Up Proposal Which May Kaiser Rejects with a Yell.

Because his girl companion would not consent to become his wife, Proctero Castro, a relative of Aguinaldo, a Filipino from Manila, last night threatened to kill Mayor Kaiser and himself, and was only restrained by the timely arrival of Mayor Policeman Connors, who arrived, like a hero on the stage, just in the nick of time.

Connors succeeded in getting the revolver, and Castro pocketed his homicidal tendencies and proceeded meekly to No. 1 police station, where he was carefully tucked away to dream of palms and bolos, if he succeeded in getting to sleep.

Castro, who is a messenger in the War Department, it is said has been paying attention for some time to Miss Kaiser, who lives at 632 E street southeast.

Last night Miss Castro went to the Montrose Hotel to pay a visit to her friend, Miss Laura Jackson. It was after they had reached the street, about 12 o'clock, that Castro accosted them, and pulling his revolver threatened to shoot and mangle further the torture upon she persisted in her intention of not becoming a near-Filipino by marriage.

When he flashed a shiny revolver, Miss Kaiser, girl-like, let out a yip that disturbed the sleeping jaybirds in Franklin Square and facilitated the timely arrival of the bicycle policeman.

According to Castro, he didn't draw a gun for any deadly and dangerous purpose, but merely to emphasize his sentiments, and to show that he was not having a fine time at the hotel during the evening, and that he (Castro) wanted to tell May that if she persisted in having so many beaux she would have to forego the satisfaction of permitting him to be introduced into her neighborhood.

At last accounts the relative of the friend of Edward Atkinson, of Boston, was worrying around about the little matter of bail and a charge of drawing a dangerous and deadly weapon.

INSANE MAN SENDS WARNING.

Wireless Operator on Vessel Temporarily Loses Reason.

New York, July 21.—James W. Walsh, the operator in charge of the De Forest Wireless Telegraph office, at 42 Broadway, received this message late on Saturday night from the steamship Como, of the New York and Porto Rican Steamship Company, then at anchor at Quarantine:

"Operator on board temporarily insane. Confined to room. Not responsible for actions. Notify my family on arrival at 8 a. m.—Thomas J. Dalton."

Operator Walsh at once notified the police to have a couple of policemen at the pier this morning.

In the meantime the police learned that the wireless operator was John E. Quinn, of Bayonne, N. J., and his brother, James Quinn, was notified. The brother was at pier 35 this morning. He went aboard with the policemen, and Capt. Dalton handed James over to the custody of his brother.

It was explained that as the vessel was about to leave San Juan, July 15, John Quinn, the wireless operator, who was standing on the dock, became temporarily insane and jumped overboard. He was rescued, and put in a stateroom. The vessel then sailed.

When the vessel reached this port Saturday evening Capt. Dalton had a talk with Quinn, and as he appeared to be rational, Quinn was sent a message. Quinn acquiesced and sent the message quoted.

EXPRESSION STRIKES AUTO.

Dr. E. J. Gallagher Killed and Miss Helen Madigan Badly Hurt.

New York, July 21.—Dr. Edward J. Gallagher, of 202 East Twelfth street, was killed and Miss Helen Madigan, daughter of James Madigan, a retired merchant, of 36 Madison avenue, was probably fatally injured when the auto in which they were riding was struck by the Amagazette Flyer at the Locust avenue crossing of the Long Island Railroad in Jamaica, Queens Borough, early this evening. Miss Madigan, to whom the doctor was to be married two weeks hence, has only a slight chance of recovery, and may die from her injuries. The doctor's body was so burned that it was almost unrecognizable.

The crossing at which the accident occurred is not protected by gates or flagman, although recently it has been much improved by motorized cars from the Merrick road across the Hoffman boulevard. The train which hit the doctor's auto was an express.

The machine was thrown but ten feet forward along the tracks when the train struck it. It overturned, and Dr. Gallagher and Miss Madigan were caught beneath it. The gasoline tank exploded at the time of the collision and the oil spilled over the man and woman and caught fire.
