THE MOUTHS OF BABES.

By TROY ALLISON.

"I'd like to come over there," said a small feminine voice, somewhere from the neighborhood of the hedge row. Drayton, sitting on his garden bench with a newspaper and a cigar, turned toward the hedge that separated the two gardens, and located his visitor. She was evidently standing on something high enough to enable her to overlook the adjoining territory.

papa. You are going to marry him at once and we are going to live in his house. You know you said his garden was ever so much prettier than ours."

"Hello!" he said, looking down from his six-foot height. "Where did you come from?"

"I've been here often and peeped through," she confided. "Lift me over," she commanded, in the tone of one accustomed to be obeyed, holding out her arms.

"I'm not prepared to entertain ladies," he said, smiling into her upturned face. "What can I offer you, madam?"

"I would hate to seem inhospitable," there was a note of shyness in her voice. He reached over the hedge and put the child in her mother's arms. She put her plump little arms around his neck in an overflow of affection.

"Good-by, baby," she said after her mother went toward the house under the hedge. "I'll be back soon, and I'll be sure to bring you some of the roses I saw in the garden."

"I suppose it's proper—Mr. Drayton—you see I know your sister."

"I'm doing to live here always—I'm doing to marry you," she announced. Drayton, thirty-six, and a bachelor, actually felt his face turn red.

EXCURSIONS.

Cool river breezes always blow at Marshall Hall, and the shade and spacious porches of the mansion afford protection from the warm rays of the sun. There are other attractions to make a pleasant outing. Schroeder's Band will be heard in concert, both on the boat and grounds. Table d'hôte dinner is served during the day, and meals a la carte during the day and evening. Harmless amusements of all kinds are to be found on all parts of the grounds. The steamer Charles MacIntosh will leave at 10 a. m. and 2:30, and 6:30 p. m. daily.

There is ozone in the air at Chesapeake Beach, and the weary traveler in town finds the delightful breezes that continually blow at this resort not only delightful, but invigorating.

Those who have visited the beach this season will find that it is cool when no other place is. Aside from the excellent crabbing and fishing to be found here, there are many other amusements that make the day pass without weariness, and, at the same time, with comfort. As the summer season advances, the crowds are increasing in size daily, and the scene on the beach in the afternoon presents a picturesque color that reminds the visitor of a Parisian boulevard.

Decidedly the most delightful, interesting and instructive excursion from Washington to this city to the Jamestown Exposition is afforded by the magnificent steamers of the Norfolk and Washington Steamship Company. They sail daily at 6 a. m., reaching the fair before daylight, or one may utilize the night for travel, leaving the city at 6:30 p. m. and reaching Norfolk early in the morning at 9 o'clock, after a pleasant and enjoyable trip. The appointments of the steamers are in every way first class; staterooms comfortable and well furnished, the dining service perfect.

Conditions for hearing the splendid music of the Marine bandmen are practically ideal at Chesapeake Beach. The section of the band arranged for the evening and noon performances of comfortable seats about the band stand are provided. Special programs are rendered Sunday evening, but on other nights programs are terminated at 9 o'clock, after dancing starts. No admission fee is charged at the pavilion, and the spacious well-lit floor affords pleasure to hundreds of people. The music is rendered in a theater, the bowing ability, and the many other amusements. New visitors to the resort never fail to comment on the beauty of the illumination.

Strangers in Washington will find desirable rooming and boarding houses advertised in The Herald.
