STILLINGS AT EASE

Public Printer's Secretary Gives Out Statement.

NOT WORRIED OVER RUMORS

Alleged Disatisfaction in Government Printing Office Said to Be Due Solely to Enforcement of Discipline Necessary to Conduct Department Upon Business Basis.

Not until Tuesday of next week will Public Printer Stillings return to his desk, Mr. Brian, in the meantime, acting in his place.

Mr. Stillings is said to be in New York in connection with business concerning the printing office. The nature of this alleged business is, however, persistently withheld from the curious and inquisitive by those who are supposed to be in close touch with Mr. Stillings.

One thing seems certain, and that is that Mr. Stillings is very unpopular with his force of employees. His champion from among the people over whom he has been placed—the men and women who work at the machines, at the cases, in the bindery, in the folding room, in the stereotype foundry, in the boiler shop, and in the stables—has yet to come to the front and defend the boss.

Many complaints have been made by employees against Mr. Stillings. Some of these relate to his alleged favoritism in the shop, where he is said to have advanced personal friends at the expense of experienced and efficient workers.

Much adverse comment has been made as regards the wholesale dismissals in the various departments of the printing, and reduction of wages all round. There is a fault has been found with Mr. Stillings because he is said to indulge too freely in issuing orders, the multitude of which is liable to tax the retentive powers of his subordinates.

There are other complaints. In fact, they are too numerous to mention. His successors have been picked by those who have axes to grind and those who want to see Mr. Stillings "bounced."

President Roosevelt has not, yet, been heard from, regarding the situation, although it was reported that he had no time to see Mr. Stillings when he was at Oyster Bay on Monday last.

When asked what foundation there was for the stories appearing in print that

Public Printer Stillings had been turned down by the President and that there would be a change in the office of Public Printer before the snow flies, the secretary to the Public Printer said yesterday:

"The Public Printer is working along in the even tenor of his way, turning out the government printing and binding in record time, increasing the output at a reduced cost to the government, and keeping well within the appropriations made by the last Congress for the administration of Uncle Sam's big print shop, Congress having cut the appropriations for the office nearly two million dollars.

"Congress was badly acquainted with his plan of reorganization, and that it was approved is shown by the fact that the House and Senate granted about everything the Public Printer asked.

"The whole trouble, the gravamen of the charge made by ex-employees and a certain element still in the office, is that they can no longer run the office as in the old days, when the Public Printer got in the front office, received visitors, perfunctorily signed a few papers and letters, and his subordinates did the rest. Then it was the ambition of printers, pressmen, binders, and the like, to get a job in the Government Printing Office, for it meant little work and good pay.

"But this has been changed by Mr. Stillings, who is a thoroughly practical man. He is Public Printer. And he insists that the employees shall give the government an honest day's work, the same as they would a private employer. He has bowled over in his plan of reorganization many traditions of the office, and in so doing he has created friction, but he has the backbone to withstand it.

"The records show that when a man at the head of a department starts in to make changes, to lift the department from the old groove, he is sure to meet with opposition from those on the inside who want the old order of things to continue, and when this element cannot block the wave of reform it immediately opens up a 'rumor factory,' and for weeks and months the papers of the country receive more 'copy' than they can use.

"Mr. Stillings is losing no sleep over the stories of his successor. His administration of the office is a business one, and he is getting results, which is what the President and Congress want.

"The office is thoroughly organized, with a chief in charge of each grand division. There is discipline in the office, which accounts for the discontent; but that is to be found in every department where discipline is enforced.

"The 'Mr.'s,' 'Mrs.'s,' and 'Miss' order, which has been persistently misinterpreted, has given some material for the paragraphs, but there is no foundation for the quips of the funny man.

"The order directed that the heads of divisions—foremen and other officials—in speaking to employees about the business of the office, should address them as 'Mr.', 'Mrs.', or 'Miss,' as the case might be, and that all employees speaking to officials and their immediate superiors should do so in the same manner.

REPRIMAND FOR HIRSHINGER.

Newberry Modifies Sentence Against the Naval Captain.

Acting Secretary Newberry, of the Navy Department, yesterday approved the findings of the court-martial in the case of Capt. Herbert J. Hirschinger, of the Marine Corps, who was charged with having failed to exercise proper supervision over the storeroom at the New York Navy Yard. In reality Capt. Hirschinger suffered for the offense of a quartermaster sergeant to whom he had entrusted the keys to the storeroom. The marine stole supplies and deserted at the time Capt. Hirschinger was about to turn over his accounts to his successor, and the thefts were discovered.

The court found him guilty and sentenced him to a loss of two numbers and to be reprimanded. In view of the circumstances of the case the court recommended clemency. Secretary Newberry accordingly commuted the sentence to a reprimand.
