Early Fall Display

—OF—

Men's New Suits, New Overcoats, New Rain Coats, New Fancy Vests, and New Stiff and Soft Hats.

TRUE style depends largely on becomingness. The more becomingly clad one is the more individuality is asserted, and the more style assured. Our Men's Clothing Department has on display a splendid collection of new Suits, Overcoats, Rain Coats, and Fancy Vests—clothes of subdued character, for men who dress well, but in quiet taste. Others, of freer design and more pronounced contrast, for the ultra-fashionable—all being tailored with good taste, good judgment, and finished in the best possible manner.

Special interest is shown in the "new browns," which promise to be in strong demand for fall and winter.

Prices for Suits, $15.00 Upward.

Fancy Vests, in new materials, styles, and shapes—patterns which are quite removed from the usual kinds.

Fall Overcoats, in the popular soft shades of tan; also oxfords and black. We show the latest shapes and the various lengths, and special reference is made to the excellent manner in which they are made and finished.

Prices from $15.00 Upward.

New Rain Coats, in light tans, oxford and light grays, and figured blacks. These are high-grade coats, fully cravenetted, and guaranteed rain proof.

A splendid garment to use for a fall overcoat as well as for rainy weather.

Prices from $15.00 Upward.

We are also showing New Fall Neckwear, which includes the rich new browns in many shades, and we would call particular attention to the quality and patterns in our half-dollar grade; new Underwear for fall; new Dress and Business Shirts, new Gloves, new Collars and Cuffs, new Bath Robes, new Pajamas, and the various items of haberdashery in demand for early fall wear.

Men's New Fall Hats.

OUR display this season includes three new Stiff Hats—the "St. Regis," the "Colonial," the "Woodthrop."

The "St. Regis," at $2.00,

Is an all-fur felt, with silk trimmings and imported leather sweatband. Shown in correct shapes for quiet tastes, and the nobby flat brim for young men. A hat that belongs in the $2.50 class.

The "Colonial," at $3.00,

Compares most favorably with the usual $3.50 Derby. It is produced from carefully selected material, skillfully shaped and finished, and the variety of blocks from which to select is broad enough to satisfy every taste.

The "Colonial" is also shown in a nobby shape for young men.

The "Woodthrop," at $3.50,

Is made of a very fine wear-resisting fur felt, in all the correct shapes, stiff and self-conforming. This hat is the product of a hat shop which for years has stood for all that is best in the hat world—and is the best value on the market to-day.

IN THE SOCIAL WORLD

Calvert-Dorsey Wedding Solemnized at St. John's.

TWO OLD FAMILIES UNITED

Bridgroom and Bride Descended from Most Illustrious Colonists of Maryland and Virginia—Mrs. Townsland and Daughter in Paris—Postmaster General to Return Soon.

The marriage of Miss Lucy Harrison Dorsey and Mr. Charles Baltimore Calvert was solemnized in St. John's Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. Rev. R. Alan Castleman, a cousin of the bride, of Elkridge, Md., performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Edward Dunlap, of St. John's Church, Mr. Richard Peyton Whiteley, of Hyattsville, Md., was best man.

An effective arrangement of palms and foliage formed a background for white roses and other cut flowers used in decorating, which made a charming setting for the bridal party. The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Louis Dorsey Gassaway, of Annapolis, Md. The wedding gown was of ivory primrose satin, in modified Empire style, with a long court train, and trimmed about the bodice with ancestral lace. The soft folds of the tulle veil were caught with orange blossoms and a sunburst of pearls, and a pearl necklace and brooch—family heirlooms, more than a century old—were worn as ornaments. The bridal bouquet was a shower of lilies of the valley and Bride roses.

Miss Rosalie E. S. Calvert, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, was the bride's only attendant. She was charmingly gowned in a soft white dress with a tulle hat, and carried a cluster of blush-pink roses.

The ushers were Mr. George H. Calvert, jr., brother of the bridegroom; Mr. Richard Roberts, of New York, but formerly of Gaymount, Prince George County, Md.; Dr. Sothern Key, and Mr. Frank Sprigg Perry, both of Washington, D. C. Owing to the family of the bridegroom being in deep mourning, there was no reception, and immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Calvert left for an extended wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside with the groom's mother, at her beautiful residence, Macalpine, College Park, Md.

This wedding united in matrimony two of the most prominent families of Maryland and Virginia. The bride is a daughter of the late Charles Worthington Dorsey, of Front Royal, Va., and Mrs. Dorsey, now residing in Washington. She is descended from the Otho Holland Williams family, the Harrison, Stuart, Castleman, and Howard families. Mr. Calvert is a son of the late Charles Baltimore Calvert and Mrs. Calvert, of Macalpine, near College Park, Md. He is closely related to the Worthingtons, MacKubins, and other prominent Maryland families.

Among the house guests at the home of Mrs. Charles Worthington Dorsey, of the Imperial, who came to Washington to be present at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baltimore Calvert, are Miss Virginia Dorsey and Miss Carrie Dorsey, of Front Royal, Va.; Miss Emily Lawrence Reed, daughter of the late Maj. Walter Reed, U. S. A., and Mrs. Reed; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dorsey Gassaway, of Annapolis, Md., and Rev. Alan Castleman, of Elkridge, Md.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. F. V. Brooks was the scene last evening of a particularly pretty wedding when their daughter, Eva Lewis Brooks, became the wife of Harry Alfred Works.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Lee Allison, of the Gunton Memorial Presbyterian Church, took place at 7 o'clock in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

Great clusters of palms and white flowers were used as decorations in the drawing-room, while American Beauty roses, banked on the mantels and arranged artistically in vases, gave a pretty touch of color in the reception hall and dining-room.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore an exquisite gown of white crepe de chine elaborately trimmed with bands of white satin. The upper part of the bodice was hand-embroidered and trimmed with tulle lace. She wore a tulle veil, which was fastened to her hair with a wreath of natural orange blossoms and a diamond brooch. The bridal bouquet was a shower of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Mamie Johnston, a cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor. Miss Johnston looked particularly well in a gown of pale pink crepe de chine trimmed with lace and touches of gold embroidery. She carried a huge cluster of Bridesmaid roses.

The bride's brother, Mr. James Lester Brooks, was best man. The wedding music was played by one of the bride's cousins, Miss Marie Johnston.

The ceremony was followed by a reception, after which Mr. and Mrs. Works left Washington for a Northern wedding trip. Mrs. Works wearing a modish costume of dark blue broadcloth with hat to match.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Works will reside at the Sutherland, W street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth. Among the out of town guests present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. John Partridge, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Clarence W. Egan, of Baltimore.

Mr. Leonard L. Nicholson, jr., Mr. Harris Crist, and Mrs. Orville Ecker, of Washington, who have been traveling in Belgium, Germany, Holland, France, and England, have returned to their homes in this city. While abroad the party spent some time at Ostend.

Miss Louise Daugherty, who has been spending the summer with relatives in Owensville, Ky., has returned to Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. Jesse B. Schaffert have returned to the city from Buffalo.

The residence of the Postmaster General and Mrs. Meyer is being put in readiness for their return, and by Monday the family expects to be installed in their Washington home for the winter. Mrs. Meyer and the Misses Meyer spent the summer at Ostend.

LOEB MISSES HIS CUE

Fails to Explain Missions of President's Visitors.

STRAUS AND NEILL THERE

All Three, However, Positively Deny That Telegraphers' Strike Was Discussed in Any Manner—Secretary of Commerce and Labor Says Pacific Coast Is for Roosevelt.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Secretary of Commerce, C. G. Straus and Charles F. Neill, Commissioner of Labor, lunched at Sagamore Hill to-day. Both denied that any mention was made of the telegraphers' strike during their conference with the President.

Secretary Loeb, before the arrival of the guests, said that Commissioner Neill had come to discuss some phase of the eight-hour law. This Mr. Neill denied. He made the denial, however, before being informed of what Mr. Loeb had said, and it may have been merely a case of poor team work. Secretary Straus said that the conversation had been general.

"We discussed literature, history, economics, almost everything except the telegraphers' strike," said the Secretary. "I made a report concerning the condition of immigration, emigration, and industrial affairs in the places I visited during my trip."

The Secretary refused to specify as to the conversation. When asked for his opinion as to the anti-Japanese feeling on the Pacific Coast, the Secretary said that he believed that the causes of hatred lay rather in economic than in race differences. The dislike of the Japanese is confined to the laboring classes, he said, and one hears no objection from employers of labor.

Not Worried About Fleet.

"As to the feeling of the people in the Pacific Coast States over the reports that a fleet of war ships is to be sent to their waters, the Secretary said:

"I did not hear an expression on the subject. From the talk of the people you would never suspect that they had heard of all this strife about the war ships. The people on the Coast are not interested in that subject."

Secretary Straus said that there was but one word in the West when people were questioned about their preference for a successor to the President, and that word was Roosevelt.

"They will not believe," said the Secretary, "that the President will not run again. They demand that the impossible happen, and it was of no use to tell them that the President was a man of his word, and that he would not do so unless again he was a candidate for the office."

Secretary Straus said that on leaving Oyster Bay he would go at once to Washington to pitch into an accumulation of work. "I mean to push the extension of the usefulness of the foundation for the promotion of industrial peace which President Roosevelt started when he was awarded the Nobel peace prize. I shall have Commissioner Neill make an honorary secretary in order that we may take advantage of his large experience in industrial troubles."

Wants Million-dollar Fund.

The Secretary added that an attempt would be made to raise a million dollar fund. "We want and can use a million," he said, "but no more, and we will stop with that sum."

Pressed to say something about the situation in the telegraphers' strike, the Secretary would only say that it was not the fault of Commissioner Neill, but of the strikers, that no settlement had been made.

When the Secretary made his remark about bringing Mr. Neill into the industrial peace foundation, he added: "You know the Commissioner well. He had large experience in settling strikes, the telegraphers' for instance."

"His joking me now," exclaimed the Commissioner; "it is not fair to make fun of a man who has done his best and flunked, is it?"

Just before his train started Secretary Straus had said that he would see President Roosevelt. "He is a most wonderful man," exclaimed the Secretary. "He is the most widely read man in history that I ever met."

And here the Secretary lowered his voice. "An American word," he said, "great historians have also been great prophets. Mr. Straus did not specify whether Roosevelt the historian has been also Roosevelt the prophet."

Other luncheon guests at Sagamore Hill were Leonard S. Abbott and Ernest Hamilton Abbott, both of the Outlook Magazine.

Shoe Company and Not Its Treasurer in Financial Strait.

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 10.—It was announced to-day that the Patrick Lennox Company and not James P. Lennox, its treasurer, is financially embarrassed, and that the firm has failed for approximately a million.

There is little doubt, however, that the embarrassment is only temporary, and that a change in the money market within a reasonable time will enable it to settle in full with its creditors. The failure will carry down several small shoe manufacturers in this city, in spite of the efforts of the banks to carry them over the crisis.

Indianapolis, Sept. 10.—Democratic State senators and representatives in the legislature are assembled here to-night for a meeting to be held to-morrow which will probably determine whether Thomas Taggart will again be a candidate for chairman of the national committee.

An attempt was made by Taggart's friends during the legislative session last winter to commit the Democratic members to his candidacy, but owing to the development in the French Lick gambling cases, and the notoriety that they gave to the national chairman, it was abandoned after a canvass which developed some pronounced opposition.
